3000-Mile Range Asked For Guided Missile Tests

Military Chiefs Say 500-Mile Rockets To Be Ready for Trials This Year

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

America's military chief's asked Congress yesterday for authority to build a huge 200-million-dollar proving ground for guided missiles with a test range 3000 miles long.

Disclosing marked progress toward globe-spanning controlled rockets, they said that missiles with ranges up to 500 miles will be ready for tests this year.

We haven't now a test center large enough to fly even these 500-mile rockets—which will travel twice the horizon distance of the V-2. Eventually 5000-mile guided missiles may be attained, officials declared.

Location Not Disclosed

Military and scientific leaders testifying on the project before a House Armed Services Subcommittee did not disclose the proposed location of the vast missile proving ground.

However, it was learned that two sites were under consideration. One would be in the Banana River section of Florida, extending over the Everglades and across the Gulf of Mexico. The other is in southern Utah. Presumably it would extend south into Mexico.

Air Force Brig. Gen. William L. Richardson told the subcommittee that the proving ground should consist of:

(1) A large base area within continental United States, with "rather complete" shops, laboratories, concrete launching sites and living facilities for base personnel. As the base would have to be isolated for security reasons, an entire community such as at Oak Ridge, Hanford and Los Alamos would have to be constructed, ultimately having a population of 13,000.

Large Bare Area Preferred

If possible, other officials said, the base area should cover hundreds of square miles — with a range within the base of "several hundred miles".

(2) A range "at least" 3000 miles long, with "impact areas" at various points along the line of flight for the controlled missiles to land. In addition, Richardson, said observation stations would have to be built every 50 to 100 miles along the path of flight for the first 500 miles.

Scientists at these posts would record data sent down by "telemeter" equipment installed in the rockets as to the functioning of its wings, motors, rudder, stabilizers, electronic equipment, etc. Radar and high-speed cameras also would be installed at the observation posts, along with weather stations.

Richardson also told the group that a climate permitting all-year operations is another essential. Areas in which very cold weather, fog, or excessive rain occur are thus ruled out.

Anticipating protests from communities over which the range would run, top level officials declared there would be little danger.

70 Forecast Today To Give District Hottest Feb. 15

A balmy flow of Gulf Coast air currently caressing Washington may bring the hottest February 15 in the memory of the Weather Bureau—probably 70 degrees.

If the high of 70 comes to pass as forecast, it will be one degree higher than the previous record set in 1909 for this day. But don't break out the smoked glasses and suntan potions, because the gentle ozone will be darkened by considerable cloudiness and a few showers.

In full defiance of the omniscient groundhog, who saw his shadow last February 2 and predicted six more weeks of chilblain weather, forecasters foresee continued warmth for the rest of the week.

Pope Attacks Cardinal's Trial As a Manipulated 'Outrage'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
Pope Pius XII enters consistorial hall in Vatican City.

Vatican City, Feb. 14 (AP).—Pope Pius XII today attacked the trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty as rigged and an outrage against the Roman Catholic Church. He declared that Catholics should resist man-made laws "inconsistent with divine and human rights."

In an address before a secret and extraordinary consistory of the College of Cardinals, the Pontiff charged, that Hungary's Communist-dominated government sought "to disrupt the Catholic Church" there by striking at Cardinal Mindszenty.

The Pope expressed the belief that confessions made in a Budapest courtroom by Cardinal Mindszenty were wrung from him. The physical condition and behavior of the Hungarian primate appeared to be an accusation "against his very accusers and condemners," the Pope said.

Pope Pius warned that "those who rashly dare to trample upon the liberty of the church and the rights of human conscience, may at length understand that no civil society can endure when religion has been suppressed and God, as it were, driven into exile."

Deplores Supreme Indignity

Cardinal Mindszenty was convicted last Tuesday on charges of treason, spying and black market money dealings. In his address today, Pope Pius deplored the "supreme indignity" visited on the cardinal who was doomed "like a criminal to life imprisonment."

The Pope told 16 cardinals locked into the apostolic palace's consistorial hall with him that the fullest publicity was given to protests which developed in the non-Communist world against the treatment of the Hungarian primate. Then the pontiff added:

"But, as you are aware, the full light of publicity did not shine over the trial of this prelate who deserved so well of all . . . In fact, from the beginning the news that arrived caused alarm. People outside Hungary who asked permission to be present at the trial were refused permission if they seemed likely to judge impartially or to give a sincere report. This led them to believe, and all upright and honest men as well, that those who were conducting the trial in Budapest seemed to be afraid to allow all to see what was taking place.

Action Clearly Demanded

"Justice, which is worthy of the name, does not begin with prejudices and is not based on a decision previously taken, but it gladly admits of free discussion and gives everyone due facility for thinking, believing and speaking."

The Pontiff told the assembled cardinals of the Vatican and the Italian Sees that "we are doing what the outraged rights of the church and the dignity of the human person clearly demand."

His 20-minute-long allocution, delivered in Latin, held no hint of further action. The Holy Con-

Reds' Lawyers Told to Halt Jury Attack

'Clear, Reversible Error' Is Charged To Judge in N. Y. Case

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Federal Judge Harold R. Medina today ordered the defense for 11 indicted United States Communist leaders to halt temporarily its attack on the Federal jury system here.

The defense retaliated with a charge that the judge had committed a "plain, clear, reversible error" and asserted that "we will leave it to a higher court to eradicate some of the errors committed here."

In an ensuing exchange, the judge called Harry Sacher, one of the defense lawyers, "insolent" and accused another, Richard F. Gladstein, of approaching the bench "in a threatening way."

"The way this case has been conducted was something I never thought I'd see in a court of justice," Medina said.

Louis McCabe, another defense lawyer, retorted: "I agree with Your Honor. I never hoped to see a case conducted this way."

"You mean by me," Medina replied, "but I am talking of defense counsel."

"We will leave it to a higher court to eradicate some of the errors committed here," McCabe said.

"That's the sort of threat I've heard in many other cases," Medina replied. "I am here to protect the rights of defendants despite the conduct of their counsel.

At that point Gladstein began to argue. Medina interrupted him to say he was "approaching the court in a threatening way."

Gladstein asked the judge to explain the remark, and Medina said:

"I meant you walked right up to the bench and pointed your finger at me."

Gladstein replied: "I want the record to show that I made no threatening gesture."

The judge's action in curbing the jury challenge apparently was his answer to what he has repeatedly called the "deliberate and wilful" delaying strategy of defense counsel.

After calling a temporary halt to further testimony against the way juries are picked here, Medina directed the prosecution to begin its own case.

Postman Pages Indians

A package from a class of Arlington sixth-graders — addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. Hungry Bird, Billings, Mont."—finally reached its destination.

But not without some anguish to the postman who tried to deliver it to a nearby Crow Indian reservation. He found a Birdleg family, a Turkey Feather, a Running Bird, but no Hungry Bird.

He so informed Miss Eleanore W. King, teacher of the sixth grade at the Henry Clay School in Arlington.

She told him promptly that the package contained bird seed for relief of songbirds—not Crows—in the blizzard-ridden West.

Back came a reply from Billings Postmaster Merl L. Fagg; he had distributed the feed. Billings residents "appreciated the thoughtfulness of you and your pupils," he said.

Miss King yesterday explained that the program she and her sixth graders are undertaking is part of a Nation-wide campaign to relieve hungry birds in the West. She pointed out that the Postoffice Department has directed its postmen to distribute the food.

Union Head Calls Layoffs Pressure Aid

Industry Is Trying To Sway Congress On Tax, Labor Laws, IAM President Says

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A major independent labor leader yesterday charged that industry was laying off workers in order to obtain favorable labor and tax legislation from Congress.

The charge was tossed into the Senate Labor Committee hearings on repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act by Harvey W. Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists. The union, with some 650,000 members, is one of the largest in the country. It is not affiliated with either the AFL or CIO.

Brown declared that "a good proportion" of the current layoffs in industry are being made as a "threat" to Congress to get the kind of legislation management seeks in labor relations and in taxes.

Quizzed by Humphrey

The machinists' leader came up with the accusation while being quizzed by Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.).

The youthful Humphrey—elected with a strong indorsement of labor—himself charged, obliquely, that there's been "a stiffening of the economic spine of employers" in order to create strikes and thereby arouse Congress to labor-restrictive legislation.

The former Minneapolis mayor further implied that "in a period of decreasing employment"—such as right now—the Taft-Hartley Act could be used to destroy unions through the device of strikebreakers.

It has been the contention of organized labor that striking unionists are penalized and strikebreakers given undue protection under the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Senator Humphrey also indicated he feared prolongation of the congressional debate on the Administration's labor bill would serve to handicap the great unions in coal, steel and auto manufacturing in contract negotiations due to open in the spring.

Pepper Makes Charge

Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) came up with another charge against industry—that during the war some industrialists were already building plans to weaken or break up the unions with the return of peace. Since the war, Pepper asserted, there has been a "concerted effort" on the part of management to destroy unions.

Pepper's charge was challenged by Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.). He demanded evidence. Pepper retorted that "it has been estimated" 100 million dollars has been spent in propaganda to establish and retain the Taft-Hartley Act.

Donnell and Senator Robert Taft (R., Ohio) sharply cross-examined Machinists' President Brown. They jumped all over Brown—figuratively, of course—when the IAM chief charged that the Taft-Hartley Act had ben written by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Donnell again demanded evidence, and Taft, outlining in detail the history of the act, denied that the NAM had anything more

New Agency Proposed as Housekeeper

Government Supply And Maintenance Would Be Assigned To Central Unit

A Government housekeeping agency, to be called the Office of General Services, is recommended by the Herbert Hoover Commission for Reorganization of the Government.

The OGS would take over purchases of Government supplies, storing of old Government records and the maintenance of public buildings, except for a few such as postoffices and military establishments.

The agency also would relieve the President of administrative relations with the Smithsonian Institution, the National Parks and Planning Commission, the Commission of Fine Arts and the District of Columbia.

At present, the report delivered to Congress yesterday states the three chief activities named "suffer from a lack of central direction." They are "carried on in several places . . . with varying degrees of adequacy. Huge sums of money are involved."

Later, the report states, Mr. Hoover and Arthur Flemming, a commission member, will make a report on budgeting and accounting. This will recommend that the statistical and publications units now in the Office of the Budget be placed with the new OGS.

The recommendations were made under separate headings. In several, legislative changes were suggested to make them operative. The duties to be assigned to OGS would include:

1. SUPPLY: That a central Bureau of Federal Supply be set up in OGS, and that the Federal Bureau of Supply in the Treasury be abolished.

The new bureau would primarily deal with policy-making and coordination of procurement and other supply functions for all executive agencies. It would assign responsibility for the purchase and storage of commodities peculiar to an agency to the agency best suited to buy or store them. All supply activities, civilian and military, would be coordinated through a Supply Policy Committee.

2. RECORDS MANAGEMENT: That a Records Management Bureau be set up in OGS, to include the National Archives, for "more effective preservation, management and disposal of Government records." Also that a records management program be set up in each agency.

Six Pentagons would be necessary to hold all records now in existence, the report states. At present they fill 18 million square feet. The rental cost of the space alone is at least 20 million dollars a year. The filing equipment is worth 154 million.

The report estimates that half the records of the average Government agency can be eliminated;

Flood Dangers Remain

Sheep and Cattle Losses Less Than Expected, Reports Reveal

New Ground Blizzards Stirred Up by Wind In Wyoming and Idaho

By The Associated Press

Whistling winds stirred up new ground blizzards in Wyoming and Idaho yesterday.

In western Kentucky, rain-swollen rivers and streams overflowed, flooding some sections.

However, in the Nebraska-South Dakota disaster area weekend snow and high winds moderated and temperatures climbed, giving relief workers the chance to restart digging-out operations.

The threat of flood dangers mounted higher in the upper Missouri Basin, too. One observer said only a very gradual thaw could avert serious flooding in areas where winter storms have piled drift on drift.

Snow, freezing rain and sleet made travel hazardous in Missouri. Sleet was reported as deep as 8 inches in spots at Jefferson City, Mo., and the bad weather was expected to continue for 24 hours.

The Union Pacific's newly opened tracks in Wyoming drifted closed again between Rock River and Wamsutter before a train went through. The U.P. had just moved its last stranded train out of Wyoming yesterday.

Travel was prohibited on a 340-mile stretch of U. S. Route 30—main highway link across southern Wyoming—except for rescue and snow-clearing vehicles.

Reports from Rawlins, Wyo., in the center of the blizzard area, said

Post Survey Augments Federal Agency's Data On Western Sections

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Cattle and sheep losses in the blizzards that swept the West and Midwest in January and February were surprisingly small, a belated report by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics said yesterday.

The report covers only January, and only four of the 16 States swept by the severe cold and storms. The bad weather that has continued this month, with increasing losses, is not covered.

Shortly after the department made its report, Senate Langer (R., N. Dak.) introduced a bill authorizing a 150-million-dollar Government outlay to pay stock raisers for sheep and cattle they lost in the storms.

Losses in the four States—South Dakota, Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado—totaled 81,000 cattle and 97,000 sheep, BAE states, averaging about 2 per cent of the cattle and 5 per cent of the sheep. Death losses of other livestock and of poultry were comparatively light.

To round out the report, The Washington Post asked Agriculture Department statisticians to give up-to-date estimates for their areas.

P. J. Cree of Helena, statistician for Montana reported: "Livestock losses in Montana to date are light, but may show up more at calving and lambing time in April,

Connally, Vandenberg Promise Atlantic Pact Won't Be War Pledge

Press Foresees Scrap of Paper

Millions of Britons Told U. S. Is Welshing on Atlantic Pact

London, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Millions of Britons were told by their newspapers today that the United States is trying to water down the Atlantic defense pact, in its final stages, to a mere scrap of paper.

Readers generally were bombarded with newspaper headlines which, if stripped to their real meaning, would say: "United States Welshes."

Partly because of a secret diplomacy surrounding negotiations, according to some western diplomats, Europeans have been led to believe that the United States was prepared to make commitments in the pact which actually it never considered and could not make under its Constitution.

Today's headlines and editorials stemmed from two things:

1. Reports that the United States wants to make its military commitment in the Atlantic pact general and not precise.

2. The situation of the Scandinavian countries, which are under pressure from the West to join the pact and from Russia not to. This situation is blamed entirely on the United States.

The Daily Express here headlined:

"Atlantic Pact Crisis — United States Pledge Watered Down Still More."

The Daily Mail, in a first-page editorial, called on the British government to give Norway the military guarantees which, it said, the United States has refused.

The Scotsman of Edinburgh said in a dispatch from Washington that there was intense dissatisfaction in European circles at last minute American proposals to limit United States commitments.

"The view expressed here is that the proposals water down what was intended to be a full and forthright military alliance into a less powerful instrument comparable in some respects with the ill-fated Kellogg Pact."

Congress to Keep Right of Decision, Say Two Leading Policy Spokesmen

By Ferdinand Kuhn jr.
Post Reporter

The Senate's two leading spokesmen on foreign policy promised yesterday that there would be no legal or moral commitment to go to war in the coming North Atlantic defense treaty.

Chairman Tom Connally of the Foreign Relations Committee and his Republican predecessor, Arthur H. Vandenberg, took the floor during a sudden two-hour debate and made it clear that Congress would not lose its constitutional right to declare war.

This had been thoroughly understood when negotiations for the treaty began last summer. It had, in fact been a condition laid down in the Vandenberg resolution of the Senate, under which the State Department began the treaty discussions with Canada and the five so-called western union countries of Europe.

Two Odd Angles

What was new, and odd, about yesterday's discussion was:

1. The Senate was debating a treaty which was still kept secret from the public and from most of its own members.

2. Connally seemed to be quarreling with the underlying idea of the new treaty, namely, that an attack against one of the signers would be regarded as an attack against all.

"We are not responsible for the disagreements that might grow up in the countries of Europe," Connally said. "Any European nation might attack another nation, not merely the one country about which we hear so much talk.

"We want to preserve the peace of the world, and we will do all we can to preserve it," he said at another point. "We cannot, however, be Sir Galahads, and every time we hear a gun fired plunge into war and take sides without knowing what we are doing and without knowing the issues involved."

Call on Acheson Later

All this may have been Connally's way of re-stating the rights of Congress rather than of expressing doubts about the new treaty. Not long after his speech, he and Vandenberg were discussing the Atlantic treaty in Secretary Dean Acheson's office at the State Department.

Their appointment, however, was said on good authority to have been made before the Senate debate began, and was not produced by anything the Senators said on the floor.

Senator Forrest Donnell (R., Mo.) began the unexpected debate by asking whether the pact would contain any legal or moral commitments. Vandenberg was the first to answer him, saying that the new treaty was based on "the same general assertion of common interest" as the Rio treaty of inter-American defense.

Although the Rio treaty and the new one left the war-or peace decision to each signer, Vandenberg went on, "the mere formal recognition of this community of interest in the event of an armed attack upon the Atlantic community, without another word in the treaty, would be an infinite assurance against World War III."

Knowland Interrupts

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) interrupted to suggest that the United States could not sit back "twiddling our thumbs" while European nations were overrun by an aggressor. Vandenberg applauded him, declaring that "I would not want the debate today to indicate that our sole interest in the peace and security of the North Atlantic community is con-

Truman Calls Social Security Huddle Today

President to Explain 'Improvements' for House Unit Democrats

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee have been called to the White House today for a round-table discussion of the President's Social Security program.

This was learned last night as Mr. Truman prepared to spell out in detail proposed "improvements" in the old-age and survivors' insurance structure mentioned in general terms in his opening message.

The Administration's social security bill, soon to be sent to the Capitol, is said to provide among other things for a 100 per cent increase in lower bracket old-age insurance benefits.

To Open Hearings Feb. 28

The Ways and Means Committee voted last week to open hearings on Social Security revision February 28 and today's White House conference was described as the Administration's follow-up.

Whether Mr. Truman's request for a four billion tax increase will also be aired at the meeting could not be learned. Ranking members of the committee, however, are prepared to tell the President that the committee's decision to schedule social security legislation ahead of taxes in no sense rules out tax action this session.

Congressional leaders take the position that no tax legislation can be written until Congress has virtually completed its "spending" record and if necessary Congress can act late in the session to make up any deficit.

Budget Message Proposals

In his budget message, Mr. Truman proposed these improvements in the old-age insurance system: (1) extension of coverage to nearly all of the 25 million gainfully employed persons not now covered; (2) a sharp increase in the scale of benefits; (3) benefits for women at an earlier age, and (4) higher part-time earnings without disqualifying those otherwise eligible for benefits.

In addition, Mr. Truman proposed to increase the payroll tax to 1½ per cent each on employers and employes on July 1, 1949, instead of January 1, 1950, when the step-up would be automatic. The payroll tax now applies to only the first $3000 of earnings and the President has asked Congress to raise this ceiling.

Israel Takes Place Among World Nations

Jewry's Homeland, First in 2000 Years, Becomes Actuality

By Kenneth Bilby

Jerusalem, Feb. 14 (NYHT).—Israel's constitutent assembly convened today in Jerusalem's bomb-scarred Jewish Agency Building and accepted the reins of government from the provisional regime which nine months ago proclaimed the new state.

In the presence of top-hatted diplomats and long-robed Christian and Moslem religious leaders, 120 assembly members swore allegiance, bringing into being Jewry's first homeland in 2000 years.

From Dr. Chaim Weizmann, Israel's first president, they received a directive to build a state based upon "supreme values of justice and righteousness, peace and love."

"Great Day in World"

"This day is a great day in our lives," Dr. Weizmann said. "Let us not be thought too arrogant if we say that it is also a great day in the history of the world. At this hour a message of hope and good cheer goes forth from this place, from this sacred city, to all those throughout the world who are persecuted and oppressed and who are struggling for freedom and equality. A just struggle is indeed of avail. If we, the people sorrow and affliction, have been snatched this event of today then truly there is hope at the end for all who long for justice."

Dr. Weizmann reiterated in measured tones the long struggle for establishment of the Jewish state. Israel was no longer an isolated band of pioneers, he concluded, but an independent nation dwelling in its own country.

"Today we stand on the threshold a new era," the 74-year-old leader said. "We leave the dawn light of provisional authority and enter the full sunshine of orderly democratic rule."

Thousands Line Avenue

Thousands of flag-waving citizens lined King George ave. to cheer the arrival of the state's leaders and a host of visitors. Police bands, military honor guards and horsemen greeted Dr. Weizmann's limousine as he and his wife drove up King George ave. to the Agency building.

Watch Out for Sore Throats

Diphtheria on Increase Here, Ruhland Warns D. C. Parents

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, yesterday warned that diphtheria and deaths from the disease are on the upswing here.

He blamed apparent failure of doctors and parents to heed the disease's early warning signal, sore throat.

Of 13 cases of diphtheria reported since last October 1, four have proved fatal within a few hours after admission to the hospitals.

Both this fatality rate, about 30 per cent, and the total incidence are "much higher" than those of the previous three years.

"Early recognition of diphtheria, early hospitalization, and prompt treatment undoubtedly could have prevented these untimely deaths," declared the health officer.

Dr. Lewis K. Sweet, chief of the communicable disease division of Gallinger Municipal Hospital, said some of the cases were diagnosed as diphtheria only after several days illness.

The four fatal cases were of children under 5 years of age.

Dr. Ruhland urged that all infants be immunized against diphtheria between ages of 6 and 8 months; that each child be given a "booster" shot before entering school; and that parents suspect diphtheria and call in the doctor early in "sore throat" cases.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

New Liaison Man From Foggy Bottom Liked at Capitol for Straight Answers

Ernest A. Gross, named yesterday as Assistant Secretary of State for Congressional Relations, is to be the liaison between Foggy Bottom and Capitol Hill. One of his tasks, in the days ahead, will be to tell Senate and House committees about the Administration's program for supplying our friends abroad with arms. As the State Department's chief legal officer, he has been head of a committee of three that has been working on the arms program, trying to determine what the other countries will need and what the United States can spare.

Gross is well known on Capitol Hill, having appeared there many times to provide information on the Marshall Plan and other legislation. He has the reputation of being well liked by both Democrats and Republicans. This is not because he is a back-slapper or a good story-teller, but because the law-makers have learned that he comes up with facts and straight answers.

Gross, a man of medium height with big, frank eyes and heavy brows, was born in New York City on December 23, 1906. He attended Harvard and Oxford and was graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1931. He also attended the Geneva School of International Studies in Switzerland.

Gross entered the Government service in 1931 as an assistant legal adviser in the Department of State. Two years later, he left the tranquillity of that department to serve as a division counsel in the noisy National Recovery Administration.

About this time, he was married to Miss Katherine Watson, daughter of the late Senator James E. Watson of Indiana and Mrs. Watson. Their home now is at 15 Newlands st., Chevy Chase, Md.

In 1934 Gross left the Government to become general counsel to the Printing and Publishing Industries Graphic Arts Coordinating Committee, and two years later signed up as assistant general counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers. Subsequently he became associate general counsel of the NAM.

He entered the Army as a captain in July, 1943, and rose to lieutenant colonel. He served with the economic section of the civil affairs division of the War Department General Staff. In recognition of his services he was awarded the Legion of Merit and the Order of the British Empire.

Gross returned to the State Department in 1946 as Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Occupied Areas, serving under Gen. John Hilldring. In August, 1947, President Truman named him as legal adviser to the department. As such he was an alternate in the United States delegation to the third session of the General Assembly of the United Nations in Paris last year.

Gross was designated this year as coordinator of the foreign assistance program. Along with Maj. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer of the Army and Alex Henderson of the Economic Cooperation Administration, he has been working out the aforementioned arms program.

He is a member of the American Bar Association, the American Society of International Law, the Federal Bar Association, the Middle Temple of the Inns of Court in London, and is a member of the bars of the United States Supreme Court, the District of Columbia, and New York City.

Transamerica Case

Letters Show Approval of Bank Growth

By The Associated Press

The Transamerica Corp. presented evidence yesterday that its policy of expanding by buying up other banks was approved by the Federal Reserve Board in 1917.

The approval, according to this evidence, was given in arranging for banks affiliated with Transamerica to become members of the Federal Reserve System.

Now the biggest bankholding company in the Nation, Transamercia is being tried by the board on charges of building a credit monopoly by gaining control over 600 banks in five Western States.

The new evidence was put in the record as Marriner S. Eccles, a member of the Reserve Board since 1934 and its chairman until a year ago, finished six days on the stand as a witness.

As the cross examination of Eccles was completed, it was indicated that Washington sessions in the case will be finished today. The hearing will be resumed again in San Francisco sometime late in March.

Transamerica put into the record correspondence in 1917 by Reserve Board members of that day and its chairman, A. P. Giannini, at that time president of what is now the 500-branch Bank of America, Transamerica's chief affiliate, to show its activities were approved.

West Mark Held Solution of Berlin Currency Issue

Berlin, Feb. 14 (NYHT).—Ernst Reuter, mayor of West Berlin, who has just returned from high-level talks in France and Great Britain, indicated here today that the controversial Berlin currency issue would be resolved soon by the introduction of the west mark as the sole legal tender in the western-occupied sectors of the city.

Reuter said: "I believe I can state that the idea of the introducion of the west mark as sole legal tender has been accepted by the western Allies."

The Soviet-sponsored mark and the west mark are both circulating in western sectors now, and are equally valid for payment of essentials.

The establishment of the west mark as the sole legal currency in west Berlin has been delayed principally by the French belief that such action might prejudice attempts to negotiate the blockade issue with the Russians. The Soviets used the introduction of the west currency in Berlin as one of the main excuses for clamping the blockade on this city.

Southern Senators Organize Fight Against Rules Change

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday squared off for another filibuster as Southern Democrats formally voted to oppose a change in Senate rules designed to break filibusters.

The rules change, permitting the Senate to force any matter to a vote by a two thirds count of those present, is tentatively slated to come before the Senate week after next.

Democratic leaders delayed formal announcement of a timetable, however, pending a luncheon conference of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee today.

21 Votes Claimed

The Southerners decided to oppose the rules reform "to the limit of our strength and ability," which means filibuster. Something of an anticlimax, the decision was reached at a meeting of 18 Southern and border State Senators in the office of Senator Harry Byrd (D., Va.).

Allowing for absentees at yesterday's conference, Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), spokesman for the group, said 21 Senators in all will "resist" the rules change as "the No. 1 bill in the civil rights program."

So far as could be learned, only two Southern Senators will support the proposed "holeproof" two thirds cloture rule—Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) and Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.).

Won't "Surrender Weapon"

The present rules provide cloture by a two-thirds Senate vote, but have been held inapplicable to motions to call up legislation and amendments to the Senate journal. The Senate Rules Committee last week approved a resolution plugging these two loopholes.

Southern Senators have threatened all along to oppose the change but yesterday was their first formal vote to do so.

"Members of this (Southern) conference are unalterably opposed to the civil rights program," Russell told reporters. "We think it destructive of racial relations in sections where there is a racial problem."

Saying "we don't propose to gamble," Russell added:

"It would be folly on our part to surrender the only weapon we have with the certain knowledge we will be impaled on it."

Compromise Suggested

Russell said the group would support a proposed compromise by Senator John C. Stennis (D. Miss.), ending debate in four hours on National emergency questions when 86 Senators signed a cloture petition.

He said they would be "glad to consider" any compromise offered by the other side. He mentioned one proposal to invoke cloture by a three-fourths majority of those voting.

Americans for Democratic Action and 16 other organizations supporting the civil rights program have been plugging for majority vote cloture, contending the proposed a two-thirds rule isn't tight enough to break a filibuster.

Bigger Airport Terminal Building Plans Rushed

Plans for a 280-foot extension of the National Airport Terminal Building are being rushed to relieve the airport's "growing pains," Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator, announced yesterday.

Bids for the work, which will be supervised by the Public Buildings Administration, will be asked in March, according to the announcement.

The building project will consist of a three-story and penthouse extension of the arc of the present terminal building in a southwesterly direction. The top floor of the present building also will be extended some 70 feet to join the new section.

Gross Named To Congress Liaison Post

President Truman yesterday appointed an Assistant Secretary of State in charge of relations with Congress.

He is Ernest A. Gross, who has been the State Department's legal adviser. Gross also will continue to serve as coordinator of the Government's scattered foreign aid programs.

Mr. Truman sent the nomination to the Senate after accepting with an expression of regret the resignation of Garrison Norton as Assistant Secretary of State in charge of transport and communications. Norton is returning to private life. His duties will be divided among other department officials.

Officials said the changes are in line with recommendations of the Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization. There has been no Assistant Secretary in charge of congressional relations since the post was filled by Secretary of State Acheson when he was Assistant Secretary in wartime.

President Truman also nominated Walter L. Pope of Montana to be circuit judge of the United States Court of Appeals of the Ninth Circuit.

Other nominations:

Stuart A. Rice of Virginia for reappointment as United States representative on the United Nations Economic and Social Council's Statistical Commission.

Philip M. Hauser of Illinois for reappointment as United States representative on the Population Commission of the same council.

Administration Asks Congress to Help Farmers Install Telephones

The Administration asked Congreee yesterday to help farmers get telephones.

What is proposed is loans for lines and equipment just as the Government's Rural Electrification (REA) has financed construction of power lines to serve farming areas.

Claude R. Wickard, REA administrator, gave the Administration's argument to a House Agriculture subcommittee. He said the number of farms with telephones is about the same today as in 1920, and added:

"Today the need for reliable rural telephones is urgent. Yet, the progress of providing this essential service has been dismal."

The committee has before it a bill by Representative Poage (D., Tex.) that would provide loans for REA or private company expansion of rural telephone facilities. Senator Hill (D., Ala.) is sponsoring a similar bill in the Senate.

Wickard said a telephone is more important to a farmer than to a city dweller. He testified:

"The farmer who produces our food and fiber must have facilities for rapid communication if he is to operate efficiently.

"The ability to summon help in time of illness, fire or other emergency, the general convenience, and aid to better community living, are a few examples of need.

He said only 42 per cent of farms now have telephones and service to a large percentage of these is unsatisfactory.

Gordon Persons, president of the Alabama Public Service Commission, testified that "if the people of Alabama and the other 47 States are ever going to have rural telephones on a large scale, it will only be through a bill such as the one under discussion today."

Arlington Holds MP

An Army MP, whom Arlington Police accuse of breaking into five county business places, yesterday was ordered held for the grand jury after a hearing in Arlington County Court.

The defendant, Pfc. John Maxwell Havens, 19, pleaded guilty to all counts and was released in $5000 bond. Warrants stated he is stationed at Arlington Hall. The Washington Post, in a story Monday, erroneously said he was stationed at Fort Myer.

High Court to Hear Tideland Argument

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

The Justice Department yesterday won a preliminary round in its effort to have the Supreme Court determine Federal rights to the submerged oil lands off the coasts of Louisiana and Texas.

Oral arguments to help decide if it has jurisdiction to entertain the Justice Department suits were ordered by the Supreme Court over objections of both States.

The high court, in 1947, ruled that the Government has "paramount claim" to the oil lands off California, and the underwater lands in the Gulf of Mexico are estimated to hold even larger oil deposits.

Other Actions

In other actions, the Supreme Court yesterday:

1. Agreed to decide if a landlord seeking to sell his property in a rent-controlled area must have an actual sales contract before he can evict a tenant.

2. Ruled, 7 to 2, that an employer who fails to obey a court order to stop violating the wage-hour law may be held in contempt of court, even though the contempt was not "wilful."

Arguments before the high court in the oil lands case probably will be heard in April, it was said.

The Justice Department, contending that the issue is of "first magnitude" to the Nation, is attempting to gain the Supreme Court ruling rather than press its suit through the lower courts.

Should the Government win, it could claim royalties from sales of oil obtained by oil companies from offshore wells. Such wells are already being operated in the Gulf of Mexico as far as 10 miles offshore and some estimates place oil reserves there as high as 10 billion barrels, or half the known oil reserves in the Nation. Royalties now go to the States.

Louisiana contended in a brief that, "Louisiana is a sovereign State which cannot be sued without its consent, and which has not consented to be sued herein."

Texas contended that Attorney General Tom C. Clark—a Texan himself—"seeks to invade the power of Congress and has no authority to bring this suit because the Congress has not in the first instance asserted the rights herein alleged against the State of Texas."

The Texas brief also contends that when Texas came into the Union in 1845, it reserved certain rights which it had had as an independent republic, and that these rights embrace sovereignty over its offshore oil lands.

Meanwhile, bills are pending in Congress on both sides of the so-called tidelands dispute. One, similar to a bill passed by the Seventy-ninth Congress and vetoed by President Truman, would establish State rights to lands. Two others would authorize Federal management.

Eviction Case Up

In the eviction case the high court agreed to review landlord Elizabeth Ellis Durr won a court decision to eviet a tenant from property in Newark, N. J.

Her attorneys said she was trying to sell the property for three years because of threats to foreclose on an overdue $8000 mortgage, but was unable to sell it because the tenant would not permit prospective buyers to make a proper inspection.

The eviction was upheld by the United States Circuit Court in Philadelphia under a 1948 amendment to the 1947 Rent Control Act, which permits eviction where the landlord seeks in good faith to withdraw such property from the rental market.

Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods said that amendment must be read in conjunction with another section, which states:

". . . the landlord has in good faith contracted in writing to sell the housing accommodations to a purchaser for the immediate and personal use and occupancy as housing accommodations by such purchaser."

No sales contract was signed in the case at issue, said Woods, and if there can be eviction for "purposes of sale, any person desiring to sell a house could honestly assert that he was seeking to withdraw it from the rental market. It would be immaterial to him whether any purchaser of the property subsequently rented it or not."

Justice Douglas wrote the court's majority opinion in the wage-hour case involving the Jacksonville (Fla.) Paper Co.

In 1943, the company was enjoined from violating minimum wage and hour provisions of the Federal law, and in 1946 the administrator of the Labor Department' Wage and Hour Division instituted the contempt proceeding, claiming violations of the injunction.

A United States District Court agreed there were violations, but said there was no showing they were "wilful." The U. S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit upheld this view. Justice Douglas, in the majority opinion reversing this decision, said "The absence of wilfulness does not relieve from civil contempt."

He said the firm "took a calculated risk" and "knew full well the risk of crossing the forbidden line."

Justice Frankfurter dissented, joined by Justice Douglas. Frankfurter said the District Court's original injunction was not specific, and "To be both strict and indefinite is a kind of judicial tyranny."

In another case, the high court ruled 8 to 1 that an employer does not have to pay total disability compensation where a worker was partially handicapped through blindness in one eye when he got a job, and was totally disabled through a further injury, costing the sight of the other eye.

Justice Murphy delivered the decision, involving the Federal Longshoremen's and Harbor Worker's Compensation Act. Justice Douglas dissented. Under the ruling, the employer pays for only partial disability and the balance is paid from a special fund under the Longshoremen's Act. To hold otherwise, said Murphy, would make employers decline to hire partially handicapped persons.

Prays, Assumes Son's Affliction

SON CAN WALK—Mrs. Robert E. Slater, of Windsor, Ont., prayed for 19 years to assume the affliction of her son Joseph (top) who was left completely paralyzed as a result of an operation. Doctors had called his case hopeless. Mrs. Slater said she never abandoned hope and kept praying all the time . . . and in my prayers I asked Him to visit an affliction on me if that would make Joseph walk again." A few months ago Mrs. Slater fell, suffered a spinal injury and became partly paralyzed. Joseph, by this time had recovered his voice and following his mother's injury began to recover the use of his limbs. Today he is able to push his mother around in her wheelchair. Said Mrs. Slater: ". . . there are some things prayers can do even after doctors failed."

Agency Cash Bill Heads for House Battle

By The Associated Press

The House Appropriations Committee paved the way yesterday for the first big money fight of the Eighty-first Congress by approving a 466,882,177 cash bill for miscellaneous agencies.

The funds are to supplement money previously granted the agencies for the present fiscal year ending June 30.

The bill, due for House debate today, contains several items certain to touch off controversies.

Among them are a $2,500,000 grant to begin work on a steam generating plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn., by the Tennessee Valley Authority, and permission for the Reclamation Bureau to use general funds for unlimited labor hire.

Taber to Fight Both

Representative Taber (R., N. Y.), fiscal spokesman for House Republicans, told newsmen he would fight both items as well as several others.

Taber fired the opening round yesterday afternoon before the Rules Committee as he opposed procedure protecting the bill from being torn apart on technicalities known as points of order.

Over this objection, the Rules group sent the bill to the House floor.

The last Congress, in which Taber served as head of the Appropriations Committee, refused to provide money for the TVA steam plant.

And it put a limit of 8 per cent on the construction funds the Reclamation Bureau could use to hire labor for work on smaller projects. The pending bill seeks to remove that limitation and Taber claims it would allow the bureau to spend its construction money for hired labor instead of doing its construction work on a contract basis.

Oppose Removing Ban

Republicans also are opposed to a provision of the bill striking down a 1948 ban against paying the salaries of Michael Straus and Richard Boke, Reclamation Bureau executives. The Eightieth Congress held that the head of the bureau, and the regional director at Sacramento, should be engineers. Straus and Boke are not so listed.

The bill includes 102,977,000 for the Postoffice Department, 27 million dollars for the Army engineers for river and harbor and flood control work, $17,707,140 for the Commerce Department, $10,734,500 for the Agriculture Department, $99,379,000 for the Veterans' Administration and $159,387,000 for the Federal Security Agency.

Freight Rate Fight Headed By Thurmond

Richmond, Va., Feb. 14 (AP).—Virginia's Governor Tuck, chairman of the Southern Governors' Conference, today announced the appointment of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina to head the conference committee on equalization of freight rates.

Thus the South Carolinian, who headed the states rights presidential ticket in the November election, will be at the forefront in battling against what many in the South regard as discrimination in the non-equality of freight rates.

Another important committee chairmanship—that of the committee on regional education—went to Gov. W. Preston Lane of Maryland. This committee, Tuck said, will work with the regional council for education, headed by Millard F. Caldwell, former governor of Florida. The council was set up last year under the auspices of the Southern Governors' Conference to broaden educational facilities in the South in the fields of higher and specialized education. The aim is to increase educational opportunities for white and Negro students.

The tidelands committee, to promote the States' claims of jurisdiction over submerged lands in the coastal areas with a view to protecting their interests in oil and other natural wealth, will be headed by Gov. Beauford H. Jester, of Texas.

Serving with Thurmond on the freight rates committee are Governors James E. Folsom, Alabama; Herman E. Talmadge, Georgia; Sidney S. McMath, Arkansas, and Fuller Warren, Florida.

ADA Asks That D. C. Rentals Be Put Under National Law

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The District of Columbia should be brought under national rent control, the Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action told Congress yesterday.

Mrs. Frances Adams, AD representative, testified before the House Banking and Currency Committee that "there is real need to strengthen rent control in the District of Columbia."

The most effective way to do this, she said is to bring it under Federal control.

Meanwhile at the Willard Hotel property owners from all over the United States got into a hot battle over whether landlords should engage in mass evictions in protest against continued rent controls.

"Defiance" Plan Shelved

Amid heated argument the group shelved a resolution which would have committed it against "defiance" of rent controls.

Instead a resolution expressing "unalterable opposition" to "property control" in any form was adopted.

The group assembled under the auspices of the Property Owners Association of America as a mass protest against the Administration's proposals for continued and tighter rent controls.

Speakers divided along two lines of argument. One said the meat industry had succeeded, by withdrawing its product from the market temporarily, in having Government controls removed. These speakers contended rental property should thus be closed down until rent controls are abandoned.

Other speakers argued that "defiance of the law" was undemocratic and improper. Harry Hansen, Des Moines, Iowa, attorney, said "We should go on record saying we will comply with the law, but do everything in our power to kill property controls."

"Let's go ahead in a legal way and kill Government controls," said Ronald Kahn of Dallas, Tex.

Rev. Murphy Heard

One of those urging the group to "defy" any rent control extension was the Rev. Wallace Murphy of Tulsa, Okla., originator of the mass eviction idea, who said he "never agreed with rent controls even in wartime."

Finally, with several hundred persons all seeking to be heard, Hansen's resolution to commit the group to "comply with the law" was dropped and the motion declaring opposition to controls was substituted.

Speakers said members of the group will buttonhole Congressmen seeking support for defeat of the Administration's rent control extension bill. The House Banking Committee is to begin hearing opposition witnesses today.

Both the ADA before the House group and Walter Reuther, UAW-CIO chieftain before a Senate committee, urged Congress to adopt the Myers-Douglas rent control bills. These are stronger in some provisions than the bill drafted by the housing expediter.

Senate to Get Compromise Housing Bill

A compromise housing bill incorporating both Administration and Republican suggestions probably will be ready for Senate consideration next week, The Washington Post learned last night.

The measure will be tailored to give liberal aid to the "little man" who wants to build his own home, as well as to provide low-cost public housing and slum-clearance help to States and municipalities.

Once this is out of the way, the Senate Housing subcommittee headed by Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.) plans to give serious study to a proposal made yesterday by President Walter Reuther of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) for the mass production of prefabricated homes.

The scrappy red-headed union leader, his arm still in a brace from a shotgun attempt on his life, suggested the Government help private capital turn idle airplane plants into assembly lines for prefabricated homes.

Reuther said this method of solving the housing crisis would contribute to national defense because the now deteriorating plants could be quickly switched back to plane production if war threatened.

The UAW chieftain estimated that airplane fuselage presses could quickly stamp out some 20 million prefabricated homes that could sell in two-bedroom models for less than $6000.

Sparkman told The Washington Post that Reuther's proposals merited "serious consideration."

The subcommittee, Sparkman said, plans to pursue Reuther's suggestion at a round-table discussion to which Reuther, Donald Douglas, airplane manufacturer, representatives of the Air Force, and officials of the Lustron Housing Corp. would be invited.

Douglas, it was reported, has already worked out the engineering problems in connection with such a program but could not find sufficient private capital interested in financing it.

The subcommittee is considering an Administration bill to erect 1,050,000 Federally financed public housing units during the next seven years. Reuther urged that the program be squeezed into four years instead.

Rodney M. Lockwood, vice president of the National Association of Homebuilders, denounced the public housing program as one which would give tenants a "free ride" at high cost to other taxpayers.

He said each family in a proposed project would cost other taxpayers $37 a month in rent subsidies.

Horace Russell of Chicago, general counsel of the United States Savings and Loan League, opposed the public housing program as "unconstitutional" and "socialistic."

Rep. Rankin Asks Committee To Call Condon for Hearing

By The Associated Press

Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) demanded yesterday that the House Un-American Activities Committee call Dr. Edward U. Condon, chief of the National Bureau of Standards, for a public hearing.

Rankin, a former committee member, made the demand during a flareup on the House floor. The exchange was touched off in a brief speech by Representative Holifield (D., Calif.).

The committee in a report last year accused Condon of being one of the "weakest links in our atomic security." Holifield referred to complaints by some scientists that the committee accusations were given a "trial by newspaper."

Rankin jumped to his feet to demand that Condon now be called for a hearing.

Representative Case (R., S. D.), a new member of the Un-American Activities group, said he would support such a move. Chairman Wood (D., Ga.) has said Condon would be given an open hearing if he still wants one.

Six prominent scientists earlier had asked Congress to set up a "minimum charter of rights" to protect persons under congressional investigation. They based their plea on handling of the accusations against Condon.

Soviet Slave Labor Probe Asked by U.S.

Over Reparations

Austria Pact Talks Again Deadlocked

London, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Russia gave support in principle today to Yugoslavia's reparations claim against Austria.

The Western powers, however, stoutly rejected the claims and the Big Four representatives working on the Austrian peace treaty went into another deadlock.

All four powers agreed to hear any testimony which Yugoslav Deputy Foreign Minister Ales Bebler wants to offer. The West previously refused to hear Bebler unless he softened his reparations and territorial claims against Austria.

The fact that the West has now agreed to hear Bebler indicated that Yugoslavia was ready to suggest some compromise deal. Bebler conferred privately with American Delegate Samuel Reber on Saturday, but neither would discuss the conversations.

Previous attempts to write the Austrian peace treaty broke down nine months ago when Russia insisted on granting Yugoslavia's claims for reparations and more than 700 square miles of Austrian territory. The West refused and the talks were abandoned.

Soviet Delegate George Zarubin insisted today that Yugoslavia's claims for reparations should be "favorably considered."

Zarubin did not specifically support Yugoslavia's demand for 150 million dollars in American currency, but he said that, somehow, Austria should be made to pay for taking part in the war against the Allies.

The United States and Britain, with implied support from France, argued that the Big Four powers agreed at Potsdam that no reparations should be extracted from Austria. Zarubin said Russia waived its claim to Austrian reparations, but did not agree that Austria should be released from paying any reparations.

Bebler did not specifically ask for territory as he has done before. This raised some hopes that he might drop the claim for territory and thus clear one of the major obstacles to the signing of an Austrian treaty.

Lake Success, N. Y. Feb. 14 (U.P.).—The United States charged in the United Nations today that there is evidence Soviet Russia has forced from eight million to 14 million people into slave labor camps.

American Assistant Secretary of State Willard C. Thorp proposed an international inquiry into the situation.

Thorp challenged Russia to open its borders to an impartial, international investigating commission which could pin down or disprove the charges of forced labor behind eastern Europe's boundaries.

The American spokesman told the U. N. Economic and Social Council that forced labor also has been put into practice in other eastern European countries. He said that "wherever Communist regimes have come into existence, they have brought in their wake a return to practices of slave labor similar to those abolished in the same countries about a century ago."

The issue was injected into the Economic and Social Council by the American Federation of Labor, and Thorp proposed that the council forward the allegations to the International Labor Organization for an inquiry. The ILO is affiliated with U. N.

gregation of the consistory already has pronounced major excommunication on "all those who dared raise their hands against the person of Cardinal Mindszenty, brought him to trial and participated in his infamous sentence."

Although there had been speculation that the church might resort to the ancient and dire penalty of anathema, the Pope made no mention of this extreme form of excommunication in his address today. That penalty fell into disuse long ago.

Pope Pius branded as "completely false" accusations made at Cardinal Mindszenty's trial that the Apostolic See, "in furtherance of a plan for political domination of nations, gave instructions to oppose the republic of Hungary and its rulers." He continued:

"Everybody knows that the Catholic Church does not act through worldly motives, and that she accepts any and every form of civil government provided it be not inconsistent with divine and human rights. But when it (a civil government) does contradict these rights, bishops and the faithful themselves are bound by their own conscience to resist unjust laws."

The Pope said the physical condition of the cardinal at the trial "is indeed inexplicable except as a result of a secret influence which may not be publicly revealed, which suddenly made of a man, until then exceptionally energetic by nature and by way of life, a feeble being and of vacillating mind, so that his behavior appeared an accusation not against himself but against his very accusers and condemners."

The Pope declared: "The principal object of the trial was to disrupt the Catholic church in Hungary and precisely for the purpose set forth in the sacred scripture:

"'I shall strike the shepherd and the sheep of the flock shall be dispersed.'" (Mat. XXVI, 31).

In an unusual gesture, the Pontiff quoted a pagan author, the Roman Cicero, to the effect that priests "defend the city more securely by religion than by its surrounding walls," and said:

"Let all those into whose hands public government has been entrusted recognize this truth; and let due liberty be everywhere restored to the Church, that untrammeled she may be able to enlighten the minds of men with her salutary doctrine, rightly instruct youth and lead them to virtue, restore to families their sacred character, and permeate with her influence the whole life of men."

The consistory was concluded in a half an hour.

Czechs Storm Ration-Free Food Stores

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Thousands of eager buyers today overwhelmed five Prague shops where scarce foodstuffs went on ration-free sale for the first time today—some at staggering prices.

The eager crowds lined up for blocks at the shops here and some 60 others across the country as such "luxury" items as butter, eggs, sugar, cheese, chocolate and ham went on free sale.

Though the prices were staggering, they were often lower than the black market cost. So many people crowded in that the shops had to impose self rationing. For example, some allowed only 100 grams (3.5 ounces) of rice per customer.

Rice disappeared from Czech menus early in the war and since has been available in very small quantities, only for children.

Most expensive of the released items were coffee, tea and liquors.

A fifth of domestic cognac was tagged at 2200 to 2400 crowns ($44 to $48) and the Czechs' beloved slivovice (plum brandy) and other liqueurs were around 1400 crowns ($28) per fifth.

Coffee went for 1500 crowns ($30) per kilogram (2.20 pounds and $13.60 per pound) compared with 130 crowns for very limited quantities on ration cards.

Tea was 2000 crowns per kilogram, about half the recent black market rate. ($18.18 per pound.)

Government announcements said establishment of the "free shops" was a further step toward a completely free market for consumers, although, they added, that the day when ration cards could be abolished was still a long way off.

Turkish Schools Again Give Moslem Training

Istanbul, Feb. 14. (U.P.).—Moslem religious training will be resumed in Turkey's public schools Tuesday for the first time in 20 years. It has been banned since Kemal Ataturk's antireligious campaign in the late 1920's.

Ataturk blamed much of Turkey's backwardness on the ties between religion and government.

The revival was largely the work of the opposition party, the Democrats.

Lange Sees Norway Joining in Accord

London, Feb. 14 (AP).—Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard Lange was quoted today by Scandinavian diplomats as saying he believes his country will join the North Atlantic Alliance as a founding member.

Bevin

Lange spent the day here in talks with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Norwegian, Danish and Swedish Ambassadors.

[Bevin also met twice today the Turkish Foreign Minister, Nedjmeddin Sadak. A Foreign Office announcement said only that the two ministers had conversations "covering a wide range of subjects of mutual interest."]

The Scandinavian sources said Lange came away from his recent conferences in Washington with knowledge that the United States will refuse priority on arms deliveries to nations or groups of nations outside the planned Atlantic Security system.

For Norway Security

Thus, the informants continued, Lange feels he will have a better chance of convincing his government that the interests of Norwegian security would best be served by entering the Atlantic pact.

Sweden has proposed that she and Norway and Denmark enter a Scandinavian defense alliance which would not be linked with any other grouping of nations.

After his talks with President Truman and United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Lange said he thought there was little likelihood of a compromise between the Atlantic pact and a Scandinavian alliance.

Truman Needs Three Weeks

The British have been told by Washington it will take about three weeks for the Truman Administration to line up congressional approval for the alliance. Originally the pact was expected to include at least the United States and Canada and the Brussels Alliance powers—Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Irish Foreign Minister Sean MacBride told reporters in Paris that Eire will not take part in the Atlantic accord as long as Ireland is partitioned.

MacBride said Eire would join enthusiastically in the new European council and consultative assembly, however.

From a political and strategic point of view "it would be impossible to organize the defense" of Ireland under present circumstances, he said.

Harassing Move

Reds Plan West German Resistance

Berlin, Feb. 14 (AP).—A Communist resistance movement, backed by Russia, was reported taking form today to harass the West German government.

Its principal aim is to sabotage the Bonn constitutional convention, the British licensed weekly newspaper Montags Echo said. Tuesday has been fixed for start of the campaign, the paper added.

Allied officials said they had expected some such move to develop in the Russian zone, but that the Communists have practically no influence in the areas occupied by the Western Allies.

The Montags Echo said it had detailed plans of the resistance movement.

"The Soviet Union will support this movement by corresponding statements on foreign policy," the newspaper predicted.

At Duesseldorf, Communist leader Max Reimann resumed his blasts against the West just two days after being released from jail on furlough. The British freed him until he completes his work as a member of the consitutional convention. Then, they said, he must complete his three months sentence for encouraging discrimination against German politicians who cooperate with the Western Allies.

fined to our ability to avoid any responsibility in connection with it."

"In my opinion, there is no obligation contemplated in the North Atlantic community which is not already inherent in our pledge to the United Nations and our membership in it," Vandenberg declared. "The thing we are undertaking to do in the North Atlantic pact is nothing more than to acknowledge in writing the facts of life as they are."

Connally's language was more negative. The Texas Senator said he "certainly would not desire the adoption of any language which would morally commit us to fight."

He said he had already told Secretary Acheson that the Foreign Relations Committee "would not approve or adopt any sort of language in an international agreement which would commit us to go to war when some other country in Europe might be attacked."

And he promised Senator Kenneth Wherry (R., Nebr.), another questioner, that the State Department would not sign any treaty until the Foreign Relations Committee had had "a look at it."

Yesterday's debate will add to the pressure on the State Department to release at least a summary of the treaty, so that the public and members of Congress will not have to discuss it in the dark as some Senators did yesterday. Until now Connally and Vandenberg, as ranking members of the Foreign Relations Committee, are the only Senators to whom the State Department has shown the treaty draft.

3000-Mile Range Asked

of the Research and Development Board, declared the missiles tested would not have "explosive warheads." He indicated, however, that they might have light charges aboard which could be set off by remote control high in the air to destroy the racket if it wandered too far off course.

"From a safety standpoint," he added, "they will be no more dangerous than a conventional airplane flying overhead—from a nuisance standpoint they will be less objectionable. Most important of all, the test range will be located in a region so sparsely inhabited in the areas where there might be danger, that the hazard will be wholly negligible."

Gen. Muir S. Fairchild, Air Force vice chief of staff, told the subcommittee the proposed proving ground will be a joint effort of all the armed forces, though operated by the Air Force. He and Compton both declared the project "urgent."

Future Possibilities Outlined

"Our experts who are working in this field," said Fairchild, "feel it quite likely that within 10 years we will be replacing present guns and bombs by guided missiles, and that within 15 years surface to surface guided missiles will have been perfected to the extent that they will have important applications in the field of tactical and strategic bombardment operations.

"Our program has proceeded to a point where a flight test range of far greater length than any now in existence is an absolute necessity. Missiles with ranges up to 500 miles will be ready for testing during 1949, with a range of sufficient length on which to fly them."

Under questioning, Dr. Compton said that an ultimate range of 5000 miles for guided missiles "certainly is within the range of possibility." Whether such a range would be attained, he added, depends upon the accuracy of the control mechanism employed.

Street Fighting After Irish Vote

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Stone-throwing and street fighting between victorious partitionists and advocates of "One Ireland" were reported in rural areas over the weekend following the partitionist victory at the polls last Thursday.

Twelve people were injured at Downpatrick, County Down, when police were forced to use clubs against conflicting groups of Nationalists and Unionists. Jubilant Unionists burned effigies of Eire's premier, John Costello, and unsuccessful Nationalist candidates.

In Clonmore, County Armagh, Hibernian Hall was burned for the third time in recent months.

In Fivemiletown, County Tyrone, on the Irish Republic-North Ireland border, Unionists, led by an advance guard of pipers, broke up a dance at a Catholic hall. They smashed down the door and marched in singing Unionist Party songs, drowning out an Irish Republican orchestra. Police had to escort the Republican band back across the border.

Burning of haystacks and some breaking of windows were reported from other scattered districts.

ECA Official Sees Possible Fund Cut

Congress was told yesterday that falling prices may make it possible for the Administration to trim the $5,580,000,000 it has asked for European recovery.

The Economic Cooperation Administration's deputy head, Howard Bruce, informed the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that an "intense study" is being made to determine whether the amount asked for the 15 months starting April 3 can be cut.

If ECA finds it can carry on the program with less money it will do so, he said.

Bruce promised the Senators that his chief, Administrator Paul G. Hoffman, will come before the committee Wednesday to give his views on what can be done.

One Democratic Senator who declined to be quoted by name said Hoffman will propose a reduction.

"They (ECA) are interested in a volume of commodities," this Senator informed a newsman. "If they can get that same volume with fewer dollars, that's agreeable to them. But they want to be protected, too, if the price should go the other way."

Another ECA official, Assistant Deputy Administrator Richard M. Bissell, estimated that the entire Marshall Plan will cost this country about 13 billion dollars over its anticipated four-year life.

Bissell told the committee it is a "rough guess" that ECA will ask for about $2,780,000,000 for fiscal 1951 and $1,500,000,000 for the final year.

The last Congress appropriated $5,055,000,000 for the current year. If Congress approved the figures Bissell cited, including the full amount asked for the coming year, the four-year total would be $14,915,000,000.

Bruce mentioned the possibility of a reduction in the current request in reply to questions from Senators Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Lodge (R., Mass.). Both noted that wholesale food prices are now lower than they were last November 30 when the ECA estimate was made.

Vandenberg said he opposes any "arbitrary, meat-ax approach" to ECA's request, but he added: "I earnestly urge that the authorization figure be reconsidered in the light of the current price index."

The Foreign Relations Committee is considering only the authorization; the money for the program will have to be appropriated in later legislation.

During the hearing, Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) challenged statements made to the committee last week by Secretary of State Acheson that the State Department has advocated political unity in Europe. Acheson was not present yesterday.

Fulbright, long an advocate of a federated Europe, said he looked up a statement to which Acheson referred and that it mentioned "unity" but not "political unity."

Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) interjected that it doesn't think "it would be wise to gum up this (recovery) program with that far vision stuff of political unity."

Fulbright said Connally misrepresented his purpose, adding that he does not propose that federation should be forced on Europe.

This exchange came during the questioning of N. H. Collison, chief of the ECA's mission to western Germany. Collison said he believes personally that a political union would aid recovery efforts.

Collison also said that much of Germany's production is being smuggled out of the country. He testified that border patrols are being tightened to halt the smuggling.

Collison asked to be heard in a secret session to discuss the situation.

Meanwhile, there were these other related developments:

1. ECA submitted to Congress a 100,000-word report on its progress to date. Administrator Hoffman said in the report that foreign spending next year may exert "further inflationary pressure" on the domestic economy.

2. President Truman told Congress in a formal report that wartime lend-lease aid to 38 Allies cost this country $50,205,229,788.

Royall Says U. S. Planning More Aid in Reviving Japan

San Francisco, Feb. 14 (AP).—Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall declared today "we intend to do more" to help Japan get back on its feet economically and politically.

Royall

His statement was made in a talk before the San Francisco Democratic Luncheon Club. It offered further refutation of speculative reports the United States intended to pull out of Japan.

Earlier, at a press conference, Royall insisted he had made no satements in Tokyo indicating United States plans to withdraw occupation forces.

He said he made these two points in talking to correspondents in Tokyo:

1. He knew of no plans to change the military strength in Japan in any material respect.

2. It was his opinion this country would not be involved in a war in the Orient and, if it were, "we can meet all comers."

Again he voiced belief "war at this time is unlikely."

In his address before the Democratic group, the Secretary said the occupying powers are attaining their new objectives in both Germany and Japan: to make them sound economically and politically to help preserve world peace.

Carmona Wins Portugal Election

Lisbon, Portugal, Feb. 14 (AP).—Unofficial returns from Sunday's election indicated today that President Antonio Oscar de Fragoso Carmona had been reelected for another seven-year term.

Carmona, who has held the office since 1926, rolled up a lead of more than 75 per cent over Maj. Gen. Jose Norton de Mattos, the first opposition candidate the government has allowed to run in 22 years. Ninety per cent of eligible voters cast ballots in some provinces.

Kravchenko Called a Deserter

Paris, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—A Frenchman and a Russian charged in court today that Victor Kravchenko, Russian refugee author of "I Chose Freedom," was a wartime time deserter.

Alexei Govorov, a former general in the Czarist army, said Kravchenko was a captain in the Soviet army when he left the Russian purchasing commission in Washington in 1944.

"He must have realized that his country was at war," Govorov said. "It is therefore evident that Captain Kravchenko deserted."

"That's a lie," Kravchenko shouted, jumping up to face the witness. "I was not an officer, but an engineer according to my passport."

Earlier, a French general accused Kravchenko of deserting France in time of war.

Gen. Ernest Petit, head of France's wartime military mission in Moscow, made the charge in Kravchenko's one million franc ($3150) libel suit against the Communist weekly newspaper Les Letters Francaises.

"Let me say that I consider Kravchenko deserted his post at a time when Frenchmen in the resistance were working for the Allied landings," Petit testified.

Jules Cote, a 71-year-old French engineer, who spent 35 years in Russia, testified that the Soviet Union, which Kravchenko condemned, was a "worker's paradise."

Chinese Peacemakers Quarrel, Snarl Negotiations With Reds

Nanking, Feb. 14 (AP).—Members of an unofficial Nanking peace delegation disagreed among themselves today, adding new complications to the Chinese government's efforts to arrange a surrender to the Communists.

Prof. Wu Yu-hao and two other educators, newly returned from talking to the Reds at Peiping, flew to Canton to report to Premier Sun Fo.

Six other members of their party, however, issued a statement in Shanghai denying much of their optimistic report.

Red Promises Denied

This report, already given to acting President Li Tsung-jen in Nanking, said the Reds promised full-dress negotiations within a month, would not attack Nanking or Shanghai in the meantime, and were conciliatory about the "war criminal" and army reorganization questions.

The statement in Shanghai, carried by the official Central News Agency, denied all these points except the promise of negotiations, which was not mentioned.

Professor Wu, however, said Acting President Li was "pleased and satisfied" with their efforts. Wu said they relayed to Li suggestions on "technical steps and methods leading to opening of peace negotiations." Li told them "these steps can and should be carried out," Wu said.

May Consult Chiang

One member of the party said "it may be necessary to present information on technical steps and methods to Chiang Kai-shek himself."

He denied, however, there was any definite plan to see President Chiang, who retired January 21 to his home at Fengwha.

Another unofficial peace mission—this one from Shanghai—meanwhile arrived by plane in Peiping. The group included at least one personal representative of Acting President Li, but its unofficial nature was emphasized.

War Criminals' Arrest Pressed by Red Chief

Peiping China, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Gen. Yeh Chien-ying, Communist mayor of Peiping, and chairman of the military affairs control commission, today told a rally of 200,000 persons that the arrest of war criminals and final dissolution of Kuomintang splinter elements in Peiping were among objectives of the present period of military control.

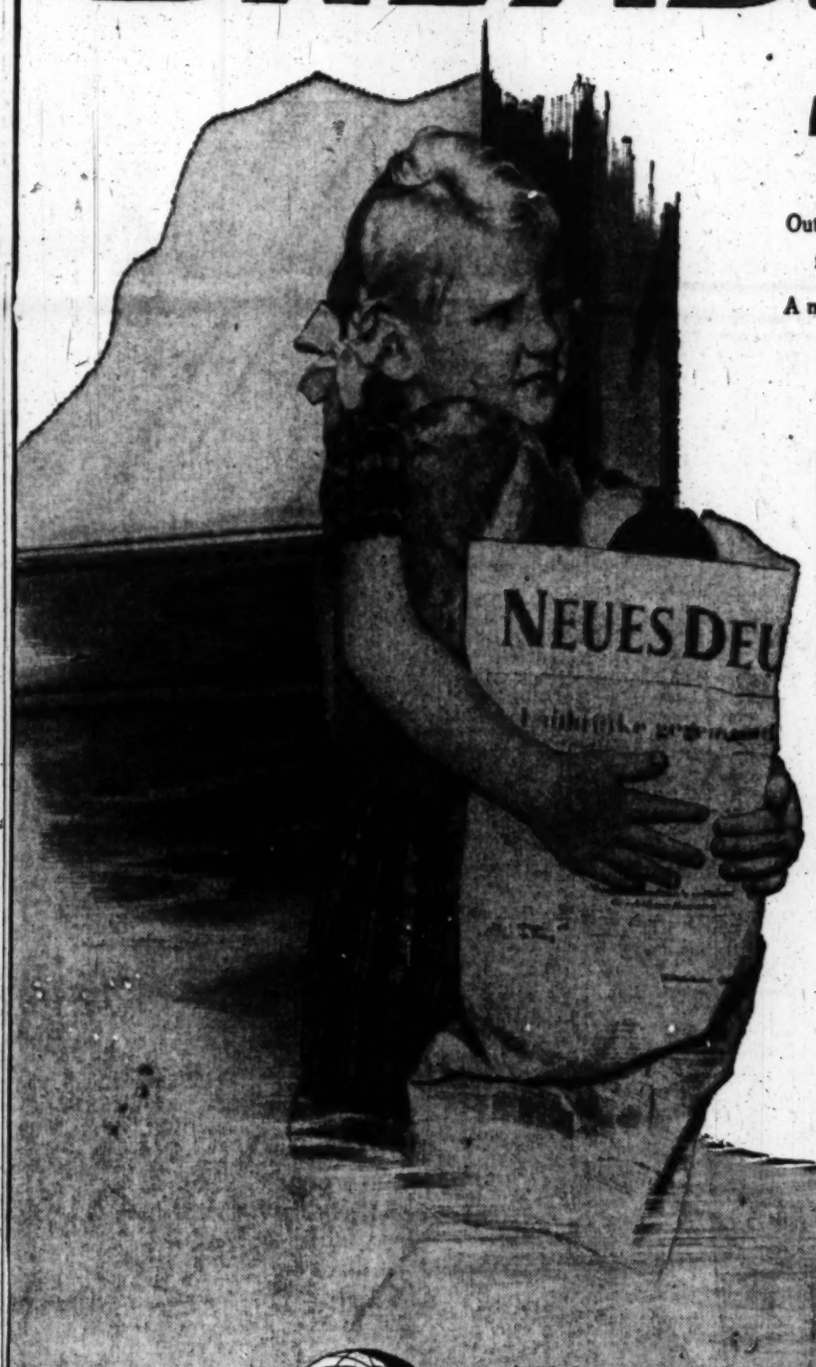
BREAD...so millions may live!



Out of a Berlin bakery, this German child trundles bread made from flour flown in by American pilots in Douglas planes.

A marvel of modern mass transportation, the Berlin Air Lift was made possible through the courage and efficiency of Air Force personnel, plus the foresight and creative skills of Douglas craftsmen and engineers.

For, ready to meet this need—as they were ready to meet the needs of war—were fleets of Douglas DC-4s (Army C-54...Navy R5D)—the backbone of the Air Lift.

Realizing the vital importance of dependable air transport—both military and commercial—Douglas continues to pioneer new transport models. Now under construction is the new DC-6A air freighter capable of flying loads up to 30,000 lbs. at 300 mph. Future operations, utilizing the DC-6A, will require half as many planes, three-fourths the men, and reduce operating costs one-third, compared with present Berlin Air Lift requirements.

Only by thus continually applying its creative skills and maintaining its production facilities can Douglas be prepared to meet the air transportation needs of the country in time of national emergency.

Dutch Crooner Puts 'Sally' in Major Role

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

A fresh-faced, 26-year-old Dutch radio crooner, who had defied efforts to make him speak on a German wartime propaganda broadcast, yesterday pointed out Miss Mildred E. Gillars, 48, as having played a leading role in that and similar programs.

Federal Judge Edward M. Curran adjourned court for the day with the singer, Jan DeVries, still on the witness stand. He has not yet received a chance to tell of the clash which an earlier witness said involved Miss Gillars.

The first witness, E. J. Wijgnaard, Dutch radio technician, told the court "Miss Gillars asked Jan to speak something into the mike. He wouldn't and he walked away. She was very angry and Jan was very nervous, too."

Was German Program

Wijgnaard, who said he observed the incident through a window from an adjoining radio control room, declared under further questioning:

"He wouldn't speak because it was a German program." The witness declared that he saw Miss Gillars participate in four propaganda playlets, part of a "Home, Sweet Home" series.

Further testimony along the same lines was offered by DeVries and another witness, A. C. Helwig, former saxophonist with the Dutch radio studio orchestra.

This evidence was offered by Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., as tending to prove four additional overt acts of what the Government claims is treason.

Under cross examination by Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin, Wijgnaard and Helwig both declared they faced drastic punishment at the hands of the Nazis if they had refused to do as they were told by German overseers after occupation.

Laughlin, who in his opening statement at the beginning of the trial had said he would prove Miss Gillards had been coerced into broadcasting for the Germans, asked Wijgnaard:

"Was the radio station under control of the German Army?"

"Yes."

"Could you do anything contrary to the Army?"

"No, sir."

"Otherwise you'd be shot?"

"Yes, sir."

Helwig, who played a saxophone in the band providing music for the recordings to be broadcast, flushed as he recalled that he "had to do what he was told at all times," in response to Laughlin's queries.

Their German masters forced them to applaud and laugh at certain portions of the program, he testified, "even though we were not especially in the mood for laughter."

Wijgnaard and Helwig also testified Miss Gillars was accompanied in the broadcasts by Prof. Otto Koischwitz, whom Laughlin described as having a sort of Svengali-Trilby relationship to the defendant.

Wijgnaard drew a chuckle in the crowded courtroom when he testified that at the signal for laughter given by Miss Gillars during the programs: "We always came in a little late."

2 Mistrial Motions Denied

Earlier two motions for mistrial made by Laughlin were denied by Judge Curran, and a third such motion taken under advisement.

Curran denied motions based on newspaper article written by Austine Cassini (Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, jr.) in the Washington Times-Herald; and on a comment bade by Judge Curran himself during the trial.

The Washington newspaperwoman had charged Miss Gillars received preferred treatment at District jail. This Laughlin said was "prejudicial," even though the jury is instructed to read no newspapers.

The second motion was based on a remark by Curran to the effect that the wife of a Government witness, Hans von Richter, was a German citizen, when testimony had brought out that she, too, had been connected with the German radio.

The third motion for mistrial, based on an editorial column written by Mrs. Ruth Montgomery of the New York Daily News and reprinted in part by the Washington Times-Herald, was taken under consideration.

To be disposed of at the end of the trial are contempt proceedings started by Laughlin against Mrs. Hearst.

The morning session yesterday opened with a playback of a "Home, Sweet Home" broadcast, picked up and recorded by United States monitors July 13, 1944.

The recording, which apart from sound effects and music, consisted of a dialogue between "Midge" (identified as Miss Gillars) and "Fritz" (identified as Professor Koischwitz) contained such patter as:

Midge: (referring to United States troops) . . . "Can you tell me now on the level (pause) why you're fighting in Europe?"

Fritz: "What a question, Midge. Can't you see they want to win the war?"

Win Land or Money?

Midge: "Win what (pause) win land? . . . Why, they got enough of that, goodness knows."

Fritz: "Yes (pause)."

Midge: "Well (pause) win money? . . . Gee (pause) the United States has got all kinds of money."

Fritz: "But you see (pause), ah (pause) . . . one could say the United States has won all it could possibly win . . . land and money . . . of course they've occupied Africa and the (pause), they have got Canada, more or less (pause), they have got important islands from Britain (pause), they still have got a big merchant fleet and the Navy so they'll run the Seven Seas after the war . . . so practically, you see, of course, they've got everything already."

The trial will be resumed at 10 a. m. today with testimony from two former American soldiers concerning recorded interviews.

Envoy Seeks To End War In Indonesia

Batavia, Java, Feb. 14 (AP).—Dr. Louis J. M. Beel, the Dutch crown's high representative here, left by plane for the Netherlands today to demand swift settlement of the fighting in Indonesia.

Armed conflict between Dutch troops and Indonesian guerillas has been almost incessant since Holland's troops conquered the Republic of Indonesia in December.

The Indonesian Republican information office at Singapore reported 213 mutinous Dutch soldiers were killed by other Dutch forces in Sumatra. The Republicans said the mutineers rebelled in the face of constant harassing by Republican guerilla forces.

This report, if confirmed, might explain in part Beel's desire for swift terms of settlement. There had been earlier unofficial reports of unrest among the Dutch troops. United Nations observers in an official report said recently the Dutch lack enough strength to preserve order in Indonesia.

A Dutch army communique reviewing operations in the past week asserted guerilla fighting was on the wane, with many guerillas retreating into the hills.

Unofficial sources, however, said the guerillas have placed a virtual paralysis on broad sections of Java and Sumatra. Travel through those areas is possible only in armed convoys, these informants said.

The army reported 100 Republican fighters were killed and many were wounded in a battle near Pengalean in West Java. It did not mention Dutch casualties.

Guerillas also suffered substantial losses in battles south of Soebang, northwest of Soembang and south of Tjiawai in West Java, the summary reported.

cluding the United States, were conspicuously absent.

Word that the western states were boycotting the meeting because of concern over Jerusalem's international status had passed through the crowds. When Russia's youthful minister, Paval Ivanovitch Yershov, arrived he received a warm greeting.

Dr. Weizmann spoke in Hebrew. He at times had difficulty reading his text, and was forced to pause frequently to wipe his eyes. The 20-minute speaking effort appeared to tax him greatly.

Perhaps because of the western boycott he made no allusions to the dispute over Jerusalem's status other than to mention "our eternal city of Jerusalem." He charged the Assembly with responsibility for giving the world a new spiritual heritage akin to that of the Israel which existed two thousand years ago.

Allegiance Pledged

When Dr. Weizmann concluded, each member stood as his name was called and pledged allegiance. Two Arab members, one wearing a white kaffiah and the other a red fez, had the oath repeated separately by an Arab translator.

Then Dr. Weizmann called for nominations for the permanent chairman of the assembly. Josef Sprinzak, Mapai leader, who was chairman of the provisional state council was elected without opposition.

A murmur swept the hall when Nathan Friedman Yellin, Stern Gang leader just released from jail, answered to his name, and also when Menachem Beigin, former Irgun Zvai Leumi leader, stood forth as head of the 14-member Heruth delegation.

Polish, Czechoslovakian and Yugoslavian diplomatic chiefs witnessed the session. The western bloc was represented by the Scandinavian states, Cuba, Spain and Paraguay, but Britain, France and United States and Turkey were not present.

Col. Johnson Confirmed

The Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of Col. J. Monroe Johnson of South Carolina to continue as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He will serve a new term ending December 31, 1955.

Housepainter to Face Grand Jury in Sex Case

Samuel B. Stengel, 50, a housepainter, was charged yesterday in Municipal Court with taking indecent liberties with a nine-year-old boy.

Stengel was ordered held by Judge Walter J. Casey under $5000 bond for grand jury action on the charge. According to Assistant United States Attorney Edward Carey, Stengel offered $1.25 to the boy to lure him into a room at 1349 Newton st. nw. The boy said he was given only a quarter, however.

Reds Hold U. S. Writer As Spy

London (Tuesday), Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Anna Louise Strong, American journalist who organized the English-language Moscow Daily News, was arrested by Russian state security police yesterday and accused of being a spy, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

Mrs. Strong, 64, a correspondent for various newspapers in the USSR since 1921, is expected to be deported from Russia within a few days, Tass said.

Tass quoted Moscow newspapers as reporting that the "notorious intelligence agent American journalist Anna Louise Strong who, through the negligence of certain foreign relations officials, made her way into the USSR, was arrested by organs of the state security on February 14.

"Mrs. Strong is accused of espionage and subversive activity directed against the Soviet Union. It is reported that she will be deported from the limits of the Soviet Union in a few days."

Mrs. Strong is the author of a number of articles and books on the Soviet Union, including "The Soviets Conquer Wheat," "I Change Worlds," "This Soviet World," "The Soviet Constitution," "The Soviets Expected it," and "Peoples of the USSR."

She organized the Moscow Daily News in 1930.

Baltimore, Feb. 14 (AP).—The president of the Maryland State Dental Association said today the organization is "definitely opposed" to a national system of compulsory health insurance.

Dr. Daniel E. Shehan said his association knows that "the public will not get the proper service" under socialized dentistry.

Transit Walkout Cripples Business

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (AP).—The average man got to work today, somehow, on the fourth day of Philadelphia's crippling transit strike. But his wife didn't do as much shopping as usual.

Travel was tough—and slow. Thousands walked. Thumbs worked overtime. As the result retail business was 50 per cent below normal Monday levels.

One threat to even greater complications disappeared—temporarily, at least. The Quaker City's taxicab drivers, working 11-hour shifts, postponed a walkout of their own for 54 hours. The cab strike originally was set for midnight tonight.

Negotiations between the CIO-Transport Workers Union and the Philadelphia Transportation Co. continued.

The United States mediator kept mum—but the leaders of the 11,000 strikers and PAC management issued communiques.

Both sides accused the other of causing the strike. Both sides apologized for the "hardship" to the public.

But the public was making the best of it. Business appeared the big loser.

"Things are very sick," said a spokesman for the city's major department stores. He declared "business has been halved."

The Chamber of Commerce estimated the daily strike loss at 10 million dollars.

Generally, industry reported workers on the job—though a little late as feet and bumper-to-bumper motor travel slowed all types of transportation down to a snail's pace.

The big firms—and the Federal Government, too—operated pickup trucks or chartered buses to get workers to plants and home again.

The issue is wages. The strikers want 20 cents an hour. The PTC offered 3 cents. Workers average $1.09 to $1.63 an hour.

Legislators' Pay Plan of AFL Opposed

Baltimore, Feb. 14 (AP).—The American Federation of Labor may run afoul of the State constitution if it tries to put Maryland legislators on its payroll.

The federation's League for Political Education has suggested each State unit consider augmenting the salaries of legislators known to be sympathetic to labor.

The idea is to induce more such individuals to seek election. Many of them, the AFL figures, refrain now from seeking office because of the low salary of State legislators. They are paid $1000 a year in Maryland.

Commenting on the AFL plan, Attorney General Hall Hammond said:

"There is considerable doubt in my mind whether such action in Maryland would not be in violation of the State constitution."

He cited article 6 of the declaration of rights which begins "All persons invested with the legislative or executive powers of government are trustees of the public . . ."

Yeggs Get $100,000 Haul From Richmond Jewelry Store

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

DIDN'T BELIEVE SIGN—This hole shows how safecrackers burned through the door of the main vault in the Schwarzschild Bros., Inc., jewelry store in Richmond and removed money and jewelry estimated at approximately $100,000. The sign at right warns burglars to beware of tear gas and alarms

Richmond, Va., Feb. 14 (AP).—In the undisturbed quiet of a Richmond weekend cracksmen did a thorough "job" on the Schwarzschild brothers jewelry store and made off with a haul estimated at well over $100,000 in gems, cash and other valuables.

Employes of what is perhaps the city's toniest store of its kind made the discovery at opening time today. The showcases showed evidence of a somewhat disorderly inventory. But it was in the main business office, where more valuable stones and jewelry are kept overnight in a vault, that the scope of the job became clear.

Burglar Alarm Ignored

On the floor lay gas and oxygen cylinders for a cutting torch and a big tarpaulin obviously used to "black in" all light while the safe opening operation was in progress. White gloves, a crowbar and masking tape to seal the doors also lay nearby.

The cracksmen chose to burn into the safe at a point near the tumblers where a sign warned all burglars that it was protected by an automatic burglar alarm. A knotted rope dangled from a skylight on the roof of the three-story building. A bar from a second floor lavatory window was missing—a possible means of exit.

Major John Wright, superintendent of detectives, called the job "the biggest ever pulled in the state of Virginia."

It looked to police like the job had been pretty thoroughly "cased" from a number of angles before the men went to work—probably early Sunday morning.

Gas Cylinders Traced

With an assist from the FBI they found that two men had bought the gas cylinders from a local dealer Saturday morning. He said they told him they intended to open a jewelry repair shop.

A store clerk said a man, who inquired about unset diamonds last week, asked to be shown a lavatory and went into the one on the second floor.

A dentist with an office in a nearby building which commands a view of the Schwarzschild building said he found a man in his office when he came in several days ago. The fellow told him he was just looking "for my wife", and left.

Lawyer Slays Wife of Officer, Then Kills Himself

Montreal, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Fingerprints on the gun showed that the "compartment H" deaths of a prominent attorney and the attractive wife of a police inspector aboard a Toronto-Montreal train was a case of murder and suicide, police said tonight.

The pajama-clad bodies of Mrs. Martha L. Kelly, 31, wife of provincial police inspector Frank Kelly, and Earl Fauman, 39, were found today in the locked sleeping car compartment. Both had been shot to death. Fauman also was married.

A test showed that only Fauman's fingerprints were on the death gun and police theorized that he shot the Detroit-born Mrs. Kelly and then took his own life. The gun belonged to Mrs. Kelly's husband.

Fauman's wife was so shocked at hearing of the deaths that she had to be taken to a hospital.

1500 Harvester Men Walk Out at Louisville

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 14 (AP).—Nearly 1500 of the 5500 employes of International Harvester Co. here walked off the job today.

Plant officials called it a "wildcat strike" and said it was in protest against the firing of two workers who also are officers of the Farm Equipment Workers Union Local No. 236.

The union issued no statement. Plant officials said Frederick Marrero, financial secretary of the union local, and Robert Mimms, shop steward, were discharged after a hearing this morning on charges of causing a work stoppage.

to do with the legislation than any other organization which appeared before the committee to testify.

Earlier in the day, Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, heatedly denied he was a "biased partisan." This charge had been made by Senator Matthew Neely (D., W. Va.).

Denham made a vigorous defense of his office, created by the Taft-Hartley Act, as independent of the NLRB and giving him sole authority to investigate and prosecute cases. It was Denham's fifth appearance before the committee.

Three others testified in behalf of various provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. Glenn Gardiner, a woolen mill executive and president of the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce, and William Guffey, a St. Louis labor relations attorney, argued that organized labor had become so powerful that legislation is necessary to maintain a balance of power between labor and management.

Lawrence Chandler, representing a group of engineering societies, urged that any new labor law distinguish between professional employes, like engineers, and non-professional workers like clerks.

The Senate committee hearings are scheduled to be held daily, morning and afternoon, through next Wednesday. President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, will testify this morning. The afternoon session will be given over to four witnesses favoring Taft-Hartley Act provisions.

$81.50 Stolen at Church

A total of $81.50 in cash and checks was taken from a desk in the office of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church, 3146 16th st. nw., Sunday night. The thief apparently entered the church during the evening services and remained after every one left, police said. The culprit entered the office by removing the hinges from the door, they said.

Grain Speculators Active in February

Speculation in grain during the first 11 days of February—at the time of the crash in prices—was nearly double the average rate in January, Agriculture Department sleuths have discovered.

In fact trading, in corn futures, where the biggest drop in prices took place, was almost 2½ times the average for January.

The Agriculture Department's Commodity Exchange Authority revealed those figures yesterday. They were the first report from CEA since it was ordered by Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan last week to see if any undue speculation accompanied the market break.

In the first 10 trading days this month 226,200,000 bushels of corn changed hands on the Chicago Board of Trade. In the 26 trading days in January 243,804,000 bushels were bought and sold. The average daily volume in February was thus almost 23 million bushels, in January the daily average was only 9.3 million.

Between 95 and 100 per cent of all corn futures transactions in the country take place on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Futures dealing in wheat in Chicago totaled 173 million bushels in the first 10 days of February, or 17.3 million bushels a day.

In the 26 trading days in January a total of 237 million bushels of wheat futures changed hands, for a daily average of only about 9 million bushels.

Soybeans futures totaled 213 million bushels in January, an average of 8 million bushels a day; in February they totaled 129 million bushels in 10 days, or almost 13 million a day.

The investigation has not gone far enough, officials admitted, to determine whether the unusually large dealings in futures were reponsible for the wide-open break n wheat, corn and soybean prices —which took other commodities tumbling down with them—of whether the break in prices touched off thin margins and forced many traders to sell.

Whatever the cause, the investigation and other steps taken by Brannan and others to stop the downward crash in food commodities, were apparently succeeding. Prices continued the recovery that set in just after the crash early last week; with livestock virtually making up the entire loss they suffered in the last 10 days.

Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin warned the Nation to be on its guard, because, he said, it is going through postwar readjustment. He was testifying before the Joint Congressional Committee on the economic report.

Livestock Loss Is Estimated

with cows and ewes that are too weak to give birth to offspring.

"My estimate actual storm loss in Montana to date, 3000 cattle (value $420,000) and 15,000 sheep (value $285,000.)

"Heavy precipitation should be beneficial to grains planted this spring and also to fall seeded grains unless there is alternate freezing and thawing during February and March which would form a smothering ice cover.

"Main rivers and tributary streams are laden with ice and pose a real flood threat if temperatures rise rapidly and are accompanied by heavy spring rains."

In Wyoming, George Knutson reported from Cheyenne:

"From 20,000 to 30,000 cattle and 30,000 to 50,000 sheep have perished from storm or its effect. Value from three to six million dollars.

"Floods unpredictable but danger not great because snow is packed hard into crevices. Livestock losses mounting daily. Stock in storm areas are emaciated and cannot stand for long bombardment of storms and short rations of feed and water."

Losses in Idaho "somewhat heavier than usual, but not serious," R. C. Ross, statistician at Boise, reported.

"Effects of storm on winter grains problematical as yet," he said. "Damage may develop later from washing if snow melts rapidly, or from smothering if ice sheets form."

In Nebraska, A. E. Anderson, Government statistician, reported "heavy spring losses of cattle expected unless weather turns favorable soon, and short calf crop because of the weakened condition of cows and the shortage of hay."

ground blizzards yesterday were worse than last week's smothering blasts, with the snow being whipped in blinding sheets.

Russell Thorp, head of Wyoming's emergency relief board, said "the plight of livestock throughout the State is daily becoming more desperate."

At Hopkinsville, Ky., a flash flood early yesterday sent the Little River from its banks into the streets, flooding at least 75 homes and about 20 buildings in the business district.

Approximately one-half the business district of the southwestern Kentucky town was affected by the high waters. Weather observer W. K. Morris reported a rainfall of 4.75 inches in the past 24 hours.

Two feet of water stood in the main part of the business district.

Heavy rains covered a wide section of the midwest and southwest yesterday. The downpour preceeded severe cold in Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri. Northern Missouri's fourth ice storm in five weeks glazed some regions to a depth of two inches. Four inches of rain fell in eastern Missouri.

Sleet and snow from one to three inches deep blanketed nearly all Kansas. Some Oklahoma roads were closed by sleet, rain and ice.

Scores of towns had 10 to 20 below throughout Montana, Wyoming, Utah, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa and Nevada.

California Industries Have Sharp Slump in Employment

San Francisco, Feb. 14 (AP).—The sharpest January drop in California factory employment since 1939 was reported today.

The percentage of layoffs, amounting to about 5 per cent, cut the number of production workers from 480,700 in December to 457,600 by the end of January.

Paul Scharrenberg, State director of industrial relations, in making the report, said the reductions were general in nearly all manufacturing industries. He described the decline as both of a seasonal and non-seasonal nature. Scharrenberg said the primary steel industry appeared to be an exception to the downward trend.

267 Will Be Dropped By Northern Pacific

Brainerd, Minn., Feb. 14 (AP).—Two hundred and sixty-seven men will be laid off from the Northern Pacific Railway shops here, effective Friday, Superintendent John Vanni said today.

"Due to a serious falling off of traffic, these reductions are necessary for the time being," Vanni said.

This figure is 48 more than the 345 films released in 1948. Every studio has big plans for the next few months.

New Drug Declared Seasickness Cure

After Radio Riot

20 Bodies Found in Quito Ruins

Quito, Ecuador, Feb. 14 (U.P.)—Salvage crews combing the ruins of the riot-wrecked El Comercio building today uncovered 20 charred bodies, and it was feared that the death toll would mount as the search progressed.

Police announced they had arrested 15 persons.

The bodies were those of victims of Saturday night's rioting, touched off by a local copy of Orson Welles' famous "Men from Mars" broadcast.

The radio dramatization of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" caused widespread panic in the Quito area and when it was revealed as a hoax furious Ecuadoreans stormed and burned the building housing the radio station and publishing facilities for two newspapers.

Police announced today that they had arrested most of the persons responsible for the misleading broadcast and the consequent rioting, except for station Manager Alfredo Vergara, who was believed to have evaded capture by fleeing the city.

Defense Minister Manuel Diaz Granados today took personal charge of the salvage effort.

Executives of Editora El Comercio, the company which ran the offending radio station and the newspaper, El Comercio and Ultimas Noticias, announced that El Comercio would resume publication as soon as new premises could be found.

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Accidental discovery of an almost sure-fire cure and preventive of seasickness was reported out last night by two Johns Hopkins physicians.

The agent, a drug being studied for other values, has already stood the test of a bucking Army transport in a recent rough Atlantic crossing, they said.

It is not yet commercially available.

Scientific account of the drug, Dramamine, and their experiments with it were presented in Baltimore last night by the physicians, Drs. Leslie N. Gay and Paul Carliner, at a regular meeting of the Johns Hopkins Medical Society.

Car, Air Sickness, Too

It follows—in fact it came first in discovery—that the drug—taken orally offers complete relief to other forms of motion sickness, such as car sickness and air travel distresses, they said.

The seasickness study was carried out on the United States Army transport General Ballou on a voyage from New York to Bremerhaven, Germany, November 27 to December 7, with 1376 men aboard.

And although the daily scientific log of the transport's pitches and rolls is almost enough to make the reader look for the nearest island, administrations of the drug produced these results:

1. Less than 2 per cent of the pretreated GIs developed seasickness.

2. More than 97 per cent of those given Dramamine after onset of sickness were quickly and completely cured.

Remedies for seasickness are legion, but until the two physicians stumbled on Dramamine's potentialities, they reported, "no drug that could be used liberally and repeatedly had been found."

But of Dramamine, or more formally beta - dimethylaminoethyl benzohydryl ether 8-chlorotheophyllinate, they reported:

"During the course of this experiment careful observation was made for unpleasant symptoms from the drug but in no instance, even though thousands of capsules were administered to more than 300 men, was there a complaint or evidence of discomfort which necessitated discontinuance of treatment."

Limited to Lower Decks

The transport studies were confined to 485 men quartered in lower decks of the ship, where seasickness is generally supposed to strike first and hardest. Many of these men received either no medication, or valueless pills of sugar, as a basis for comparison.

Dramamine's benefits in motion sickness were first reported by a woman patient under treatment for hives at the allergy clinic of the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

It apparently was helping out with the hives, she reportedly told them, but it was "doing wonders" with her car sickness.

One of those unfortunates who can't board a streetcar without getting sick, she found "complete relief" if she took 50 milligrams (one capsule) of Dramamine a few minutes before boarding, the physicians reported.

They followed up the clew, found it effective for other victims of car and air sickness. Last summer they tried Dramamine aboard the luxury liner, U. S. S. America. The findings were exciting enough to warrant the Army-sponsored experiment, the doctors reported.

Motion sickness has been one of the truly baffling medical problems of all ages. It is caused by disturbance of man's equilibrium mechanism, and sometimes passes away within two or three days when the apparent balancing apparatus, the semicircular canals in the ears, adjust itself to movement of ship, plane, train or car.

Just how Dramamine works within the body to accomplish its results is not known, the doctors admitted.

The new seasickness drug is given orally as a preventive, and similarly as a cure except for those patients so acutely ill they are unable to retain even the contents of the small capsule in their stomachs.

In the General Ballou experiment, the men under study were divided into two main groups. One group of 123 men were given sugar capsules, with no effect except on the imagination. Within 12 hours of departure, 35 had crept to sick bay. Dramamine brought "complete relief" within three hours to all but one of these.

Another 134 men, similarly compartmented and undergoing the same sea travel conditions, were given Dramamine before embarkation, another dose six hours later, and capsules before each meal and retirement for the first 48 hours of the voyage. Not one developed nausea or vomiting, and only two complained of some dizziness, the physicians reported.

The Dramamine used was supplied by G. D. Searle & Co. of Chicago. It is not yet available commercially.

that savings of 27 million dollars a year can be made in office costs.

3. OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS: This bureau in OGS would manage 54 million gross square eet of Government-owned space and more than six million of leased space; of which 24 million tre outside the District.

The bureau's duties would include: (1) to prepare standards of efficiency in buildings management; (2) to allot space in Government buildings in towns with several agencies; (3) to operate the buildings; (4) to prepare standard leases and deeds, and to maintain such records.

4. RELATIONS WITH CERTAIN INSTITUTIONS: To act as a clearing house for contacts and problems between the District of Columbia and Government agencies. Also that matters involving presidential action be referred by District officials, or officials of the Smithsonian Institution, National Parks and Planning Commission and the Commission of Fine Arts to the director of OGS.

5. ORGANIZATION AND MANAGEMENT OF FEDERAL ACTIVITIES: At present more than six billion dollars a year is spent for new material, supplies and equipment for civilian and military agencies. In addition enormous purchases are made for export for foreign-aid programs. Huge purchases are made of strategic and critical materials from foreign sources for the national stockpile. Also, the Government has military and civilian inventories valued at 27 billion dollars.

The Government has motor vehicles worth at least two billion, with no accurate estimate of Government personal property being used currently possible. The Government pays out a billion dollars annually for transportation of property and 440 million dollars in pay to 150,000 employes in supply operations.

The commission recommends legislation to "clear the books of present restrictive and often conflicting decisions and regulations, and provide the basic principles for an effective supply system." It urges that the principles of the Armed Services Procurement Act of 1947 be applied to all buying by agencies.

Presbytery Hits Race Quota Plans

The Presbytery of Washington yesterday voiced opposition to a reported plan of the Synod of Baltimore to limit participation of Negro young people in a denominational camp.

At a meeting at Western Presbyterian Church, 1906 H st. nw. the presbytery voted also to notify the synod committee on Christian education that it will "continue to insist upon following an absolute policy of nondiscrimination" at all camps and conferences.

The Rev. Benjamin Lynt, minister of education of Georgetown Presbyterian Church, said he had learned that the Synod of Baltimore planned to limit participation of Negro young people in a denominational camp to a quota of 10 per cent of any camp period and to three weeks of the six-week camp.

He pointed out that this action was contrary to the presbytery policy of nonsegregation and nondiscrimination. The camp, at Calora, Md., is owned by the synod, which includes Maryland, Delaware, the District and northern Virginia. It includes the Presbyteries of Baltimore, Washington City and Newcastle.

At the same meeting, the presbytery nominated the Rev. Halley B. Taylor, pastor of Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, to be moderator of the synod when it meets late in the spring. Since the Washington Presbytery chooses the moderator for this year's meeting, nomination practically assures election. Dr. Taylor would be the first Negro to hold the post, according to presbytery officials.

A resolution suggesting that each church in the presbytery bring at least one displaced person or displaced persons family to this country was adopted.

The Rev. Dr. Ralph K. Merker, stated clerk, reported an increase in membership of Presbyterian churches in the area from 19,476 in 1947 to 20,236 in 1948. The total amount contributed to the church during the past year increased 39.8 per cent for a total of $1,081,780, he said.

Ministerial commissioners to the meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. elected at the meeting were the Rev. Walter F. Wolf of Arlington Church, the Rev. Bernard Braskamp of Gunton-Temple Church, and the Rev. J. Edward Kidder of Berwyn Church. Elder commissioners named to attend the meeting were James Sherier, moderator of the Washington City Presbytery, and a member of New York Avenue Church, David E. Schott of Hyattsville Church, and Dr. Howard A. Edson of National Church.

Stunning Victory Is Claimed Over Greek Guerillas

Athens, Feb. 14 (AP).—The Greek general staff claimed a brilliant army victory and a guerilla disaster today at Phlorina.

A communique said that up to noon yesterday 618 rebel dead had been counted and 325 prisoners taken, against army casualties of 25 dead and 135 wounded.

It said there had been only slight damage to Phlorina, a strategic city near the spot where the Greek, Albanian and Yugoslav borders join. Only five civilians, of a population of nearly 20,000, have been hurt.

Sailor Aids Rector Boy . . .

The Washington Post

OFFERS SKIN FOR GRAFT—Robert Joseph Denyer, 23-year-old naval aviation machinist's mate, will offer his skin to help little Michael Rector when the boy has his fifth skin graft operation scheduled Wednesday. Denyer, who lives with his wife at 239 Burns st. ne., is holding his 21-month-old son, Robert Joseph, jr.

Navy Man Will Give Up Leave To Give Rector Boy Skin Graft

A husky 23-year-old Naval Aviation machinist's mate will sacrifice a week's leave and a chunk of his skin to help patch up the burned body of little Michael Rector in the boy's fifth skin graft operation.

The 6 foot, 200-pound sailor is Robert Joseph Denyer, a transport plane captain at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia. He will give up a week of his annual Navy leave for the operation, scheduled Wednesday at Casualty Hospital.

Denyer, who lives with his wife, and 21-month-old son at 239 Burns st. se., said he first got the idea to donate his skin when he read about Michael's condition last November.

But he thought there would be plenty of volunteers and it wasn't until he found out two weeks ago there was still a need for donors that he got in touch with Casualty Hospital.

A Washington native whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Denyer live at 127 E st., Denyer has never before taken part in a skin graft operation and doesn't know exactly what's in store.

"The boy's only 4-year-old, and I'm pretty big and healthy and I ought to be able to help him out," he said.

Denyer joined the Navy right after he graduated from Chamberlain Vocational High School, served on a patrol craft on convoy duty during the war, was stationed for a while in Japan, and has been in the Naval Air Reserve at Anacostia for the past two.

Earl Baldwin Defends Record

London, Feb. 14, (U.P.).—Earl Baldwin, 50, son of former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, said today that if he is fired as Governor of the Leeward Islands" . . . the whole of the West Indies will blow up."

Baldwin arrived in London unheralded apparently to face the music for being too socialistic a servant of Britain's Socialist government.

"I am certainly not going to resign," he said. "To be sacked by the Labor government would be very interesting. I have been preaching socialism in my islands.

"But I can tell you this. If I am sacked, the whole of the West Indies will blow up—Jamaica, Barbados, all of the islands. There will be real trouble."

Baldwin said white residents on the Leeward Islands have no idea how to treat the natives. The white population, he added, is "even more reactionary than the English Tories.

"All you are expected to be," he said, "is a perfectly orthodox governor, do nothing . . . retire and live in Cheltenham. If you try to be a human being it is almost impossible. I am a governor. I have a King's commission and I have looked after the people. I have kept peace and sympathy. These people in the islands are children and they want a father."

April 2, 3, Set For Cherry Blossom Fete

Washington's Cherry Blossom Festival will try to second-guess Washington's dearth of winter this year, and come off on the weekend of April 2 and 3.

The 1949 Festival Committee decided at a meeting yesterday, that with Palm Sunday falling on April 9 and Easter Sunday the following week, the first April weekend would be best for the affair.

Much enthusiasm was shown by Festival Committee Chairman C. J. Mack and other members at yesterday's meeting for a proposed cherry blossom ball to be held in the National Guard Armory. As tentatively planned, the ball would be a full-dress invitation affair, featuring a name band, and would provide the occasion for choosing the festival queen.

The ball would be held the evening of March 31 or April 1.

The two-day festival will be run off this year at the Tidal Basin. It was scheduled there last year, but when the basin's single blossoms burst forth too early, the festival was moved to Hains Point, to take advantage of the later-blooming double blossoms.

Crewless Plane Vanishes in Cloud At Full Throttle

Fort Lewis, Wash., Feb. 14 (U.P.). A small Army liaison plane took off while the pilot was cranking it today and circled the city of Tacoma, Wash.

A mechanic in the rear seat of the single-engined L-16 was thrown out of the craft as it took off, and suffered a broken leg.

Coast Guard headquarters at Seattle reported that the plane last was seen flying full throttle at 3000 feet over American Lake, south of Tacoma.

It disappeared into heavy clouds while flying in "lazy eights" officers said.

Falls Church Land Option Is Dropped

The Falls Church City Council last night dropped its option to buy the 4½-acre Gibson tract, which it once considered as a possible new city hall site.

Option on the land, which lies between Douglas and Hillwood aves. in Falls Church, would have expired February 17.

City officials said that the option was not taken up because Falls Church has no immediate use for the land, described as "expensive."

Solution of another problem—finding the site for a city property yard—was deferred last night by the council for further study. During the property yard discussion, however, Councilman Lee M. Rhoads said Druggist Manly Rust, who owns property on West Broad st. by the Washington and Old Dominion Railroad tracks, had offered to let the city use it without cost" for a year or two" as a property yard site.

Earlier in the meeting, homeowners in the vicinity of Lincoln ave. and Sycamore st. complained to the council that poor drainage and bad roads in their neighborhood were flooding yards and basements.

Mayor Albert Orme said the problem would be referred to the city manager for whatever action the road budget permitted.

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet notified the State Department yesterday that France will be very pleased" to contribute technicians and know-how" to President Truman's world co-op plan for aiding backward nations.

Bonnet said after a conference with Secretary of State Dean Acheson that he told him the French government "wholeheartedly approved" the program Mr. Truman outlined in his inaugural address.

My telephone table in the hall is a regular "catch-all" for books, magazines, old letters and recipes. This morning, I noticed that the telephone receiver was propped up on some of these books and what-have-you. I'd just put it back on the hook when someone rang the doorbell.

It was a young man from the telephone company. He said one of the other parties on my party line had reported his telephone out-of-order. He explained that when one receiver was off the hook, it took the whole line out of service. When he asked me if I would check my telephone, I turned a deep shade of crimson and told him what I'd discovered.

I made a note then and there to put a sign up over the telephone. In big, bold letters, I wrote, "Always replace the receiver carefully after each call."

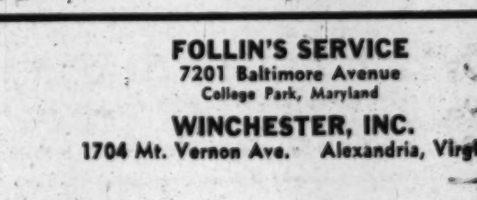
You enjoy new comfort. And new quietness . . . because you drive with windows closed. And new safety . . . because window-fogging problems are gone forever.

And bear in mind—this wonderful new system will delight you all year 'round. In spring, you'll breathe fresh dry air while driving in a downpour. In summer, you'll revel in fresh circulating air—even with windows closed and the car standing still.

Come in—see a demonstration!



Complete change of air every minute!

Even with windows tightly closed, and the car standing still, Packard gives you a complete change of air once every minute. No more noisy, hair-mussing drafts. No more stale, smoke-filled interiors. No more window-frosting problems.

No Gag, But Leadership

Some members of the House are likely to have the feeling of being left in the lurch when Congressman Rankin's scheme to give pensions to all veterans at age 60 goes to the floor. In the past demagogic ventures of this sort could be stopped by a wink from the leadership to the Rules Committee. Last month, however, the House amended its rules so as to prevent the Rules Committee from bottling up any bill reported out by a legislative committee with a favorable report.

If the Rules Committee refuses to give any such measure the green light, the chairman of the committee reporting it out can force a decision by the House itself. This means, in all probability, the House members will have to stand up and be counted for or against the veterans' pension bill.

In the minds of some this may tend to discredit the reform in the Rules Committee. Under the present arrangement legislators will undoubtedly have to face more unwelcome tests of their mettle than they did before. But the fact that democracy often puts public servants on the spot is no argument for either tyranny or for "gag" rule in a legislative body. As was pointed out at the time this reform was adopted, it should have the effect of enhancing the responsibility of the legislative committees and of the House leadership. If Mr. Rankin should hornswoggle his committee with his fantastic scheme for the payment of nearly 200 billion dollars in pensions over 70 years, it would become the duty of the House leadership to stop it.

This ought not to be done, of course, by throwing the bill into a Rules Committee wastebasket. Rather, it ought to be done through conferences among House leaders, consultation with the President and a party caucus binding members not to wreck the Administration by any such reckless action. With this preparation the Rankin bill could be voted down on the floor. The answer, in other words, is not a return to the "gag" rule but the strengthening of leadership to counteract mere vote-bait proposals. Such strengthening can best come, in our opinion, through the creation of a majority policy committee in the House composed of all the committee chairmen. The question of how to meet the pension menace is precisely the sort of issue that a majority policy committee should concern itself with. If the House had such a body to focus its leadership, the caucus would become a much more useful instrument of party discipline than it is today.

Overseas Employes

It should be apparent that the United States is going to need many trained administrators abroad for some years to come. Supervision of the Marshall Plan, military government (which we hope soon will be turned over to the State Department where it belongs), the foreign information and education program, implementation of Point Four of the President's inaugural address—these and other projects probably will set up a well-nigh permanent demand for more persons than can be supplied through ad hoc enlistment and the regular establishments. The need is for a streamlined method of classifying and continuing the services of qualified persons already in the field as well as recruiting new blood.

A case in point is the American civilian employes in Germany. Under Army administration, few of these employes have civil service status. When relations pass to the State Department, and the Germans themselves assume authority, there will be less need for American civilians. The nature of their jobs is temporary, and it is right that many of them return to their former pursuits when the need is over. But at least some of these workers are specialists—in food, transport and the like. It would be uneconomical for the Government to lose their services if need for officials with their qualifications crops up elsewhere. At the least, their services ought to be kept on tap.

Under the Foreign Service Act of 1946, the Foreign Service Reserve was constituted to provide a pool of specialized talent for overseas jobs. So far the operations of the reserve are on a very small scale, and most of the American employes abroad are not included. What is called for, in our opinion, is an expansion in scope of the Foreign Service Reserve to enlist the services of qualified employes now abroad for future foreign undertakings. This would be merely a clearing-house device that would not preclude administrative independence of agencies such as now prevails in ECA. But it would facilitate uniform classification and an up-to-date list of available talent beyond the stricter requirements of the Foreign Service proper. Although standardized training probably would not be feasible, this procedure would afford an orderly way of recruiting the caliber of administrators needed to uphold American prestige abroad.

Kettle Of Fish

All of a sudden the view that on objective grounds of strategy the Far East is secondary in importance to Europe is not regarded as the raving of a Communist sympathizer. Actually the view has just come out of Tokyo—in newspaper dispatches which give it as the judgment arrived at by the visiting Secretary of the Army Royall. Should the Soviet Union in a conflict with the West occupy western Europe's industrial centers, it is reasoned, the possession of Japan would be of little importance. The loss of Japan, on the other hand, would be unlikely to influence such a conflict either way. As to China, "it is felt that if the Communists should take over all China," to quote from the version given by the Tokyo correspondent of the New York Times, "they would inherit a severe headache—one that the United States has suffered in part for the past decade—rather than gain a springboard for further conquest in Asia."

The Royall view has created a furor in both Washington and Tokyo. Army officials in Washington have denied that Secretary Royall made any such statement, though the newsmen in Tokyo have provided chapter and verse by way of rebuttal. The Japanese are naturally concerned, because they feel they will be left in the lurch in time of emergency. General MacArthur seems to have allowed it to be inferred that SCAP is in profound disagreement with Secretary Royall. This would correspond with what has hitherto emanated out of the Supreme Commander's headquarters. However, there does not seem to be unanimity even in SCAP. The New York Times account of the curious episode relates the Royall view to "expressions of official thinking based on his visit." The impression left by this sentence is that at least some of the officials around General MacArthur feel the way that Secretary Royall does.

If this is correct, the knowledge is news, indeed. For, as General Marshall often says, the greatest danger to which incarceration in the same spot condemns a strategist or a policy-maker is localitis. Equally of interest would be knowledge of whether the Royall view is the consensus of thinking in the Pentagon. At present the military men are anxious only to cover up an indiscretion. But that there has been much pulling and hauling over priority in strategic considerations has hitherto been obvious. Now that General Eisenhower is here, perhaps there will be an approach to unanimity, for in the past General Eisenhower has expressed himself in identical strain with Secretary Royall.

The contrary view—that the Far East rates priority or even equality—never made sense. It is based on the same misconception about numbers and organization which cost us a lot in prestige and leadership when it governed policy on the Middle East. The Orient has numbers but little horsepower and less organization. Europe has all three in abundance. Not only is Europe the second most important industrial complex in the world, it is the very fount of Western civilization, the area where freedom still reigns, the part of the world against which international communism and Soviet imperialism have mobilized themselves. Surely these facts are decisive. The 270 million people in western Europe believe in our way of life, and, when they have recovered their vitality, are most likely to be on our side in the world-wide struggle for it. In the circumstances the most prudent course for our statesmanship is to concentrate on western Europe.

As for the Royall indiscretion, whatever damage has been caused by the Royall statement will now have to be repaired by statesmanship. Secretary Royall not only spoke in the accents of strategy, he spelled out the strategy. This was perhaps embarrassing, but, after all, Secretary Royall was merely giving a strategic base to the policy that the country is actually following in its statesmanship. The statesmen, to be sure, would express themselves differently. In their language, policy would consist of an effort to revive new trade with Japan, relating Japan to the Far East in particular and the world in general; but not as the major emphasis of world policy.

Ordeal By Wind

A good definition of progress rushing backward is the hint from Southern Senators that they might agree to the limitation of debate on any and all issues and motions if it were to be imposed only by a three-fourths majority. The present cloture rule, which can be applied to some talk-fests but not to others, requires only a two-thirds majority. Most of the reformers who are demanding abolition of filibusters insist that the application of cloture should require only a majority vote. To require a three-fourths majority to bring a measure to a vote in the Senate would be to mortgage the future of the United States to any reactionary clique that could line up the senatorial votes of 13 States.

The Senate Rules Committee has approved a measure that would permit the Senate to end any kind of filibuster at any time by a two-thirds vote. That is a weak compromise. Probably it would permit the Senate to break up the most offensive schemes of obstruction. At least it would prevent filibusters in anticipation of controversial measures being brought to the floor. But it is utterly out of harmony with the legislative responsibilities now resting on the Senate. The time has passed when any free country can afford to trust its fate to senatorial wind and laryngeal endurance. We think the reformers in the Senate should treat the suggestion that one fourth plus one of its members be permitted to defeat the will of the majority as a sardonic jest and proceed with their demand that the principle of majority rule be accepted by the Senate in practice as well as theory.

Export Wheat

Without much question the drop in domestic wheat prices will stiffen the determination of importing nations to hold out for a lower price scale in the international wheat agreement. From the standpoint of a wheat purchaser such as Great Britain, it would be pointless to agree to a five-year commitment for wheat at a ceiling of $2 per bushel when there is a prospect of buying more cheaply. Probably most importing countries hope for a reduction in parity and support prices for American wheat under the Aiken law. The current market drop, plus the fact that Russia may participate with an unknown quantity in the new pact, may force the United States to retreat from its insistence on the same price scale as in last year's version of the wheat agreement which Congress failed to ratify. That scale called for the United States to furnish 185 million bushels of wheat for export annually at a ceiling of $2 and floor prices declining from $1.50 to $1.10.

Actually, the fact that the pact did not materialize last year probably has had little effect on the position of American farmers. Commitments under the wheat pact would have overlapped with shipments under the Marshall Plan, and the country has been exporting just about all the wheat that facilities will permit. What the failure to join in the agreement has done is to cost importing nations—and ECA—more money, since market prices up till now have been substantially in excess of the $2 ceiling called for by the pact. But as respects the Government this has been a paper charge. If ECA had not bought wheat at the higher price, the Commodity Credit Corporation would have had to make up to farmers the difference between the wheat agreement ceiling of $2 and the higher market price. Indeed, under any sort of agreement, the CCC will have to have power to adjust the differential between the export ceiling price and the Government loan or market price.

Even though the United States may be forced to agree to a lower ceiling in the new wheat pact, the stabilization features of the pact are still desirable. They will help guarantee markets for the future when the country may be more concerned with promoting exports. Moreover, the pact will be a healthy stimulus for the revival of multilateral trade to replace the at present all too widespread pattern of bilateral exchange through exclusive agreements between two countries. Meanwhile, the hope domestically is that under a more realistic parity figure farmers will be induced to cease high-cost, inefficient operations on marginal land and turn it to more appropriate uses—in other words, to stop mining the soil.

Farcical Divorce

The question of what to do about this country's divorce system with its legal confusions, archaic laws and fraudulent practices is causing wide discussion as a result of the recent grand jury exposure of New York divorce mills. A summary of the problem and proposed plans of attack on it are presented in a study Marriage and Divorce by R. K. McNickle, just published by Editorial Research Reports. According to this, members of the bar are greatly concerned over the disrespect for law shown and the duplicity practiced by many who get divorces. Chiefly responsible is the antiquated premise of "guilt and punishment" underlying the whole concept of divorce in the United States. A committee of the American Bar Association, which has made a study of divorce laws, would substitute prevention for punishment in the handling of divorce cases. It points out that the present concept puts a premium on vindictiveness, vilification, exaggeration and fabrication, with the "smoothest perjurer, soonest rewarded."

The McNickle survey reports a "growing conviction that many marriages which are about to end in divorce can be saved, and that the State has a prime responsibility in this matter." The American Bar Association Committee recommends establishment of family courts which would try to find and remedy the basic causes of divorce applications. As to clearing up legal confusions resulting from the wide variation in State divorce laws, legal opinion generally favors reform of State laws and adoption of uniform standards for recognition of out-of-State divorces.

The American Bar Association has spoken out strongly against present divorce laws, calling them "rotten" and a "mockery." It suggests the appointment by the President of a special commission of citizens prominent in religion, medicine, sociology, education, and law to study the effects of present divorce laws, with the view of formulating a model State divorce law better adapted to the needs of modern society. Such a law if adopted by States would also clear up present legal conflicts. Basic to all these measures would be more general training for marriage and family life and more marriage counseling to prevent broken homes.

The civilizing of divorce promises to be a tremendous and long-time job. Hence some action should get under way at once on a national scale toward making divorce less an imbroglio and less a farce.

"Medaling"

In your February 12 editorial, "Medaling," you attack Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide, for allegedly permitting himself to be used as a "dupe" of the Argentine government and for allegedly committing another of a series of "blunders" by accepting a decoration from the Argentine government.

The Washington Post is quick to criticize and attack, often without regard to the facts. It seldom proposes a sensible alternative.

In connection with the Vaughan editorial, The Post gleefully cites two instances of past criticism of Vaughan, viciously and without any regard to the facts compares Vaughan to the late Hermann Goering and automatically convicts itself of using the very same tactics which the Nazis used to condemn their enemies.

Here are a few facts which The Washington Post ignored:

My recollection is that The Post itself reported without comment some months ago the fact that the identical Argentine decoration was bestowed on Gen. Omar N. Bradley and Gen. J. Lawton Collins. Lesser degrees of the same order have been bestowed on General Wedemeyer, General Aurand and General Bolling.

The Post does not bother to consider the diplomatic consequences which might have resulted had General Vaughan declined to accept the proffered Argentine medal; does not point out that General Vaughan necessarily discussed acceptance of the medal with the State Department and was under instructions to accept the award; does not emphasize that under the law General Vaughan was required to turn the medal over to the State Department to be held in escrow until such time as Congress decides whether or not it may be accepted formally.

It is my opinion that The Post would have been the first to leap on Vaughan's neck in the event he had taken it upon himself to insult the Argentine government—a government with which we maintain full diplomatic relations—by refusing to accept the proffered decoration.

Segregation's Cost

Your paper on February 7 and 9 reported statements by the executive board of the Federation of Citizens Associations assailing the Segregation in Washington report of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital and contending that the elimination of discrimination against colored people, as proposed by the National Committee, would lead to "chaos" and "further inflame both races."

The executive board of the federation, speaking purportedly for the white citizens of Washington, would have us believe that there is here involved a conflict between the races—that the elimination of racial segregation and discrimination would be disadvantageous to the white people.

As a white veteran of World War II, I suggest that the very opposite is true—that the elimination of the racial segregation and discrimination would be advantageous to the white people, even if we view it solely from the standpoint of self-interest, as white people.

The existence of racial discrimination and segregation in this country seriously impairs our unity and our national strength, militarily as well as industrially. It creates animosities and fosters hatred between groups of our citizenry. And it renders less secure the position of all of us against other potential threats to American liberty and freedom.

In addition, it severely impairs our international position. This is a world in which almost four fifths of the world's population is "colored." Many nations deeply resent our manifestations of racial intolerance. These resentments obstruct mutual understanding and trust, and can well develop into an important catalyst of another world war.

All of us, white as well as colored, will benefit economically by the elimination of racial discrimination. We need the full talents and productive ability of all our residents, and these we cannot obtain from those who are denied equal opportunity in every field of endeavor.

International WPA

President Truman's resurrected international WPA scheme to finance and master-mind industrial and agricultural production all over the world is a serious menace to America's manufacturing and farming industries.

An example is the citrus industry now suffering from overproduction. Two important sources of citrus fruits for European consumption are Palestine and French North Africa. Part of the recent United States loan to Israel doubtless will be used to expand citrus production there, while the French are increasing citrus plantings in North Africa. The result will be to eliminate American citrus products from European markets.

"Butterlegging"

Charles Ellsworth of the American Butter Institute (letter printed February 1) takes The Washington Post to task for the January 28 editorial urging the repeal of Federal antimargarine legislation.

Mr. Ellsworth fails to mention that approximately 96½ per cent of all margarine is sold through stores to consumers and to bakers, confectioners and the like. There is little danger of deception in this area. Nor does Mr. Ellsworth point out that pending repeal legislation would lessen any danger of fraud in restaurants by requiring all restaurants using margarine to make certain their customers know that fact. Enforcement of these standards is given to the efficient Food and Drug Administration.

Mr. Ellsworth seems to take it for granted that repeal of the margarine laws would greatly injure the dairy industry, even though butter today is the least profitable use of the dairyman's product. The production of butter has declined steadily over the years, not because of margarine's competition but because the dairymen have expanded their outlets for other uses. The real prosperity of the dairy industry lies in that continued expansion.

Undoubtedly, repeal would benefit manufacturers, but it also would greatly benefit cottonseed and soybean farmers, whose products go into margarine and millions of consumers.

Mr. Ellsworth ignores the fact that consumers today, if they serve margarine yellow, as they like to do, have to pay the 10 cents a pound Federal tax on yellow margarine or color the product themselves. This irksome task of mixing color, for which there is no good reason, has been the real impetus in the repeal drive.

Tito's Treachery

Joseph Alsop suggested in his column of February 9 that "we may have an opportunity . . . to establish businesslike, straightforward, genuinely friendly relations" with Tito's regime in Yugoslavia.

May I bring to your attention the following facts:

1. That Tito always was, and today still is, a Trotskyist, which means a believer in a world-wide Communist revolution, and not a Stalinist, or believer in Russian imperialist communism. Consequently the Western democracies have nothing to expect from the rift between Tito and the Cominform's "Peoples' Democracies."

As chief of the Yugoslav Prime Minister's military cabinet in London, I informed the Soviet military attache, Colonel Sizov, by note, on April 1, 1942, concerning the internal situation among the Communist partisans in Yugoslavia: "Unfortunately, partisan action is paralyzed from the inside. They are divided into Trotskyists and Stalinists. Hatred between them is so developed that, according to a recent report from Dalmatia partisan units not only fight each other, but certain Trotskyist elements send information to the Germans and the Ustashis about the movements of Stalinist units. Some Stalinist partisan forces have been annihilated in consequence of such treachery." This note was repeated by the Yugoslav government in a memorandum sent to the Soviet government on August 12, 1942 and confirmed by later reliable reports from Yugoslavia.

2. Tito's main support was Soviet Russia. This support he has now lost. The people of Yugoslavia never supported his regime. Latest reports state that less than 10 per cent of the population is for him. His only support at present comes from the members of his own Communist Party, many of whom would turn to the West if Tito were overthrown.

3. Tito has increased his terror tactics against the people since June 28, 1948, the day of the open split with Moscow. His attacks on the democracies have not diminished one iota. Under his regime, with no freedom in sight, the people of Yugoslavia will not fight for the glory of either Tito or Stalin.

4. The Western democracies have already once been double-crossed by Tito, with disastrous results not only for the independent and freedom-loving people of Yugoslavia, but for all the Balkan countries and Central Europe.

Instead of trying to establish "genuinely friendly relations" with Tito, the United States should refer the entire question of Yugoslavia to the United Nations.

Friendly relations should be extended to the people of Yugoslavia and not used to bolster up one ruthless dictator in his struggle for power against another.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Sop To Wallgren

A PRESIDENT has many friends. They come trailing out of his past, some loyal, some self-seeking, some just good-time pals.

President Truman has named an old friend out of his freshman days in the Senate to one of the most important offices within his power to give. He has nominated and asked the Senate to confirm Mon C. Wallgren, former Governor of the State of Washington, to be chairman of the National Security Resources Board at a salary of $14,000 a year.

Because this is a comparatively new agency, the far-reaching extent of the powers of the chairman and the board he heads are little understood. But the act passed by Congress creating the Security Resources Board spells out the most extraordinary authority to use Federal money in a variety of ways to develop and acquire natural resources and relocate and reorganize industry for the security of the Nation.

Take one example of the powers of the chairman. He can authorize a contract to any mining company or individual miner on the representation that important mineral resources are to be exploited. That mining company or miner can then go to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and get a loan for the development.

Besides the chairman, the board is made up of the Secretaries of State, Treasury, Defense, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor. These are all busy, overworked men and the tendency is to let the chairman run the board pretty much as he chooses. It has been said that, next to the President's own job, this is the most important assignment in the Nation.

THE FUTURE security of the country might well turn on how this assignment is carried out. It is either of the first importance and should be so regarded, or it is worse than nothing, since the mere existence of such a board might give a false sense of accomplishment.

Nothing in Wallgren's past would appear to equip him for this supremely important task. He has been an amiable politician, a good companion on a fishing trip or a party. For part of a term in the Senate he voted with the New Deal.

Wallgren left the Senate to become Governor of Washington. He was defeated for re-election last fall while the rest of the Democratic State ticket was swept into office and Truman carried the State.

During the campaign Wallgren was charged with favoring a clique of Democratic lawyers who were influential in obtaining licenses for so-called private clubs where liquor could be sold by the drink. There were also charges in connection with the sale of a company operating ferry lines across Puget Sound. Wallgren says this was purely politics, and he points out that nothing was proved.

He was considered a liability to Truman in the campaign in Washington. Yet not long after November 2 and his defeat Wallgren flew to Key West, Fla., to be with the President. Truman got him to give a demonstration of his skill as a billiard player for the newspapermen covering the presidential vacation.

SENATOR HARRY CAIN of Washington, a Republican, has said he will do everything in his power to block Wallgren's confirmation. He has even hinted that he would resort to the senatorial prerogative of declaring that Wallgren was personally obnoxious to him. But the precedent is that this applies only when the nominee is to fill an office, such as a judgeship, in the home State of the Senator applying the "personally obnoxious" label.

The Senate should examine this appointment with the greatest care. There should be hearings and, if necessary, extended hearings.

At the time of the Senate investigation into Howard Hughes' airplane contracts in the summer of 1947 Wallgren's name came up. He was listed as one of those attending gay parties given by Hughes' publicity man, John Meyer. Those parties were charged to the Government as expenses under the cost-plus contract.

Only a part of Meyer's expense accounts were available and the public never heard the whole story. It might be well to open those records to bring out what was held back. Asked by reporters about his presence at the Hughes-Meyer parties in New York, Hollywood and Palm Springs, Wallgren gave a rather flippant reply, pointing out that both Republicans and Democrats of prominence had enjoyed the lavish hospitality.

This may seem mere trivia not worth recalling. But, measured against the momentousness of the position Wallgren has been named to, it is not trivial. Everything is relevant in the career of the man on whom so much must depend.

Keeping Taft-Hartley

The House vote of 254 to 29 to give the Un-American Activities Committee $200,000 for the coming year is encouraging evidence that the House recognizes no mandate from the electorate to abolish the committee, as Mr. Truman has claimed.

It is to be hoped that Congress, in writing new labor legislation to replace the much-maligned Taft-Hartley Act, will be equally realistic.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Buffer Belt

THE QUESTION raised last week as a result of the visit to Washington of the Norwegian Foreign Minister was whether we preferred a united but independent Scandinavia to a divided Scandinavia,—with Norway joined to Britain and the United States while Sweden was isolated and Finland was sacrificed.

Lippmann

The question is of the greatest importance. It involves not only the position of three, indeed four, truly democratic nations but also the critical problem of our diplomatic strategy in the cold war.

For the line of policy, which led up to the Scandinavian crisis, will—if it is not changed—almost certainly increase enormously the costs and the risks of our whole action in Europe.

THE CRUCIAL question is whether the Atlantic Pact, at present confined to western Europe and North America, is to be extended to include the nations adjacent to the Soviet orbit. They are the three Scandinavian countries, Germany, Austria, Italy. There are, I believe, the strongest reasons for thinking that our own vital interests, the security of Europe, and the chance of an honorable and peaceable settlement, will be jeopardized if we do include this intervening belt of countries in our military coalition.

For to extend the pact in this fashion is to make it at once weaker and more provocative. It would add to our liabilities in an area where we acquired no additional assets. We shall be far better served, it seems to me, by a policy of understanding and friendliness towards a united and independent Scandinavia, a neutralized Germany, a neutralized Austria, and an unpretentious and quiet Italy.

THE CASE for recognizing and promoting such a buffer belt between the Soviets and the West rests on many considerations. One of the most compelling is that it can enable nations now within the Soviet orbit to detach themselves without running the additional risk of aligning themselves against the Soviet Union. There is, for example, Tito in Yugoslavia. It would be asking too much to wish him to switch alliances at this time, separating himself from Russia and joining up with us. Nor should we at this time wish to have him do that, and thus to have power politics make a cynical mockery of the whole ideological conflict.

But what we have a right to hope for and good reason to want is that Tito, as he ceases to be a satellite of Moscow, should withdraw into an independent position. That will be easier if on three of his frontiers—the Austrian, the Italian, and eventually the Greek—he has neighbors who, though determined to defend their independence and assured of support if they are attacked, are nevertheless not active members of a great military coalition.

SINCE our real purpose in Europe is not to create a satellite system of our own but to dissolve the Soviet satellite system, there are immense diplomatic and moral advantages to be had by making it respectable for nations to become part of the buffer belt. For then the satellites have some place to go as they detach themselves.

Without that, a country like Yugoslavia, or a country like Finland, a country like Austria, some day Czechoslovakia and Poland, have no place to go when they separate themselves from Russia.

BUT, OF COURSE, the paramount reason for the buffer belt is that it provides a place for Germany. No one can seriously believe, it seems to me, that the present partition of Germany can last very long without precipitating violence—probably in the form of a German civil war that would tend to become a European civil and international war. It is essential, therefore, that we should have a clear idea of the place which we wish Germany to have in Europe.

However we conceive it, say as German participation in a general European commonwealth, one thing is certain: if Germany, or any large part of it, is revived now as a military state, it will dominate the Western Union in that it will hold the balance of power. It will be stronger than France and Benelux, and therefore able to precipitate war against Russia or to make a deal with Russia.

There is, therefore, no tolerable line of policy for Germany except that agreed on during the war: that Germany shall be for this generation a neutralized and demilitarized nation. That solution, and there is no other, is possible only if Germany is not morally and politically isolated—if Germany, that is to say, is invited to take her place in a widening zone of buffer nations not actively participating in the world-wide conflict of the great powers.

IN THE EYES of many this conception is repulsive—in that it seems to say that some nations can and should be neutral between right and wrong. In reality it says nothing of the kind. A nation which is determined to defend its independence against aggression from without and subversion from within is not neutral between right and wrong. It is not to be despised, then, if that is all it is able to do, if as a matter of fact it is too small, too exposed, and too weak to risk its own annihilation on issues beyond its own self-defense.

Nor is it fitting that we—we of all peoples—should judge these questions harshly and self-righteously. We are very powerful, possessing a monopoly of the most devastating weapon ever invented. We are invulnerable in that the American homeland cannot be invaded, occupied, or seriously bombarded. We, too, have tried to stay out of two world wars as long as we could. And though now we have learned that we cannot and should not try to do that again, let us not with the excessive zeal of the new convert be blindly intolerant of those who do not immediately have the courage of all our own most recently acquired convictions.

Pan American Information Chief Resigns

Raul Diez de Medina has resigned as director of public information of the Pan American Union because, he said, his publications were forbidden to mention the existence of military dictatorships or other political problems in some of the American republics.

In a letter to Dr. Alberto Lleras, secretary general of the Organization of American States, Medina said the restrictions on this output made it "nearly impossible" to arouse public interest in the organization's work.

No Successor Named

A spokesman for Lleras said yesterday that no successor would be appointed "in the foreseeable future," and hinted there was much doubt about continuing the information department, which employs about 50 persons.

The department's future will be discussed at the next meeting of the organization's council.

Medina, former Minister-Counsellor of the Bolivian Embassy here, complained in his letter of an "irreconcilable conflict between what should be said and what can be said in the Pan American Union."

Writing Under Wraps

He declared he was not allowed to mention such problems as the recognition of revolutionary governments, or the Uruguayan proposal for a permanent committee to study methods of preserving democratic institutions.

"Unless the character of the organization is modified, permitting it to take up political questions," he wrote, "the existence of the department of public information in the Pan American Union is useless."

Motion to Delay Thomas Trial Under Study

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday took under advisement a motion to delay the District Court trial of Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), charged with a payroll-padding conspiracy.

William H. Collins, Thomas' attorney, asked that the trial which has been set for March 7 be postponed pending outcome of the Carl A. Marzani case, now pending for rehearing before the United States Supreme Court.

Scandinavian Crisis

By Sumner Welles

Russian Threats, American Blunder

THE PRESSURE which the Kremlin has been bringing to bear upon one or another of the Scandinavian countries since 1945 has now culminated in its threat to Norway. The present crisis emphasizes our direct interest in the preservation of Scandinavian independence and of Scandinavian unity.

Denmark, Norway and Sweden, together with Finland and Iceland, represent a powerful force for free institutions, progressive democracy, and the maintenance of those decent international standards which mean a peaceful world. The domination of any one of them by the Soviet Union would endanger the survival of the rest.

There has been a general tendency to think of Finland as merely another Soviet satellite. We are forgetting that, although they are in the shadow of Leningrad and subject to the onerous provisions of the postwar treaties imposed upon them by Moscow, the Finns in their national elections last spring dared to purge their government of its Communist members. They are resisting Russian domination under Stalin as courageously as they resisted Russian tyranny under the Czars.

It is significant that the Soviet propaganda of this past week, which charges Finland with "machinations" for the creation of a Scandinavian alliance, has been timed to coincide with the demands made on Norway.

UNTIL now the Politburo has sought to control the Finnish government by having its Communist stooges join in the establishment of popular front cabinets. It is the same strategy as that which has so successfully been employed in other eastern European states.

But after the Communists' defeat at the polls last May, Fagerholm's Social-Democratic government not only dared to reject Communist overtures for a new popular front, but succeeded in securing the support of all of Finland's democratic parties.

The Fagerholm cabinet has checked inflation. Because of its social legislation it has the support of industrial labor. As a result of its liquidation of the Communist-dominated state police and its resolute handling of the Communist strikes it has the backing of the conservative parties. Its immediate weakness lies in its failure to prevent a decrease in farm prices and to satisfy the demands of the rural workers.

Until now Moscow has feared the popular reaction that would be created in the rest of Scandinavia if Finland were occupied by force. It has seemed to believe that a Communist government could still be imposed upon the Finnish people by the kind of political coup d'etat that was staged in Prague.

A reorganization of the Communist Party began last September. It has been patterned on the Communist organization in France. Such Communist leaders as Hartta Knusinen and Malmberg are trying desperately to place Communists in key positions in the trade unions and agricultural organizations.

WHAT is quite as significant as the present Soviet propaganda offensive against Finland's Social-Democratic government is the fact that the secret plans of the Finnish Communists demand a total party reorganization by April 1.

Should Moscow's attempt to gain control of the Finnish government fail, however, there is unfortunately no question that the Red armies can overrun Finland and reach the Finnish-Swedish frontier within 48 hours. This is the nightmare with which the Norwegians and the Danes as well as the Swedes are now afflicted. It is hardly surprising that Swedish public opinion unquestionably supports Sweden's traditional policy, "no power must reckon to have us—or any of us—with it or against it."

Yet the Soviet threat to Norway may prove to be a costly blunder. Even the more timorous of the Scandinavians have not forgotten Hitler's cynical violation of the nonaggression pacts which he so lavishly offered the smaller countries of western Europe. They are even less likely to forget the way in which the Kremlin flagrantly disregarded its nonaggression pact with Czechoslovakia a few months ago.

OUR OWN diplomacy, however, has rarely been less skillful than in the preliminary negotiation of the North Atlantic defense pact. As Mr. Walter Lippmann has so clearly pointed out, our precipitancy and our failure to take into account the exposed position in which each Scandinavian state must find itself, until a comprehensive North Atlantic defense pact has come into force, have created uncertainty and growing confusion on the part of the Scandinavian peoples. Our own policy has done much to offset the resentment created by Soviet pressure.

A regional defense pact of the western European nations has become essential to the survival of the United Nations and to the security of the Western democracies. But it would be the height of folly for the United States to persist in a course that can promote Scandinavian disunion and subject every one of the Scandinavian countries to increased Soviet pressure before the American Congress has taken the action required to enable the American Executive to assure our partners in an Atlantic regional pact that this Government is ready and prepared to render adequate military aid in the event of aggression.

Wallace Unveils to Press His 'Budget for Abundance'

By Edward T. Folliard

Post Reporter

Henry Wallace, comparatively quiet since he ran fourth in the 1948 presidential race, came to town yesterday with a "budget for abundance."

He unveiled it at a press conference in the Willard, where, with wand in hand, he stood before a huge chart and took billions away from the armed forces to provide "better living for all."

In the Progressive Party budget, Federal workers would get a billion dollars in pay raises, war veterans an average bonus of $2000 over a number of years, school teachers would receive a raise, and the aged, disabled and unemployed all would be granted more generous benefits.

Fences With Reporters

Wallace looked tired as he fenced with reporters.

One wanted to know why he bothered to come here with a national budget when he could count on only two votes in Congress, those of Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho and Representative Vito Marcantonio of New York.

Wallace recalled that he had been "a voice crying in the wilderness" in the past, but had seen his ideas become law. He thought he had influenced President Truman's domestic program in '48, and predicted that he and his party would have "quite an impact" on the future. He sidestepped a question on whether he would run for President again in '52.

When asked to comment on the Hungarian situation, he laughed at first and said it was a "loaded question." He finally agreed, however, to give his views on the life sentence meted out to Cardinal Mindszenty.

Views on Mindszenty

"I am very glad that the cardinal was not sentenced to death," he said, adding that it would now be possible to look into the full facts of the case.

"I am glad, indeed, that the cardinal in his closing statement expressed the hope that there would be peace between the Communists and the Catholic world."

Asked if he thought Cardinal Mindszenty had a fair trial, he said he didn't have the full facts.

"The thing I deplore," Wallace went on to say, "is the increased tension. I have been trying to hold that down. I don't want to do anything to increase it."

Later, he quoted a Negro as asking why there should be so much "hullabaloo" over Cardinal Mindszenty in view of the "difficult things" that Negroes are facing here at home.

"Secure and Prosperous"

Wallace, in a prepared statement, said that the Truman budget for 1950 added up to "more cold war for the world and increasing hardship and insecurity for the American people." His own budget for abundance, he said, would end the fear of war and depression and make America secure and prosperous.

In making up his own budget, he cut in half the amount that President Truman recommended for the armed forces. This left those forces with $7,200,000,000, an amount still about six times greater than they were allowed 10 years ago.

Wallace was reminded that this was a surprisingly large defense budget in view of his "confidence" in Russia. He conceded this, and said some of his Progressive Party associates had wanted it lowered. He himself thought it was "realistic" for the time being, and said that the establishment of "real peace" would make possible substantial cuts in the future.

He said his budget was predicated on peace, but emphasized that he would put it into operation without waiting for any understanding with Russia. Also, he said, he would stop making atomic bombs. The United States, he said, already had enough of them—how many, he didn't know.

Reminded that the Truman Administration feels that Russia's word is no good, Wallace scoffed and suggested that America's own word was none too good. He was asked to cite one instance where this country had violated a treaty or an agreement.

The Iowan said that merely opened up an old, old story, one with twists and turns that went back to 1919 and showed that no one nation ought to be saddled with guilt.

It's a book that you must read if you want to be in-the-know on discussions of international affairs. Here's the reason: Whether you agree with the author or not—and you have a right to disagree violently—it says some things that can stand saying and it offers hope where there was only fear before. When you've finished it you will know why civilization is here to stay.

Shreve Calls For U. S. Halt To Socialism

By S. Oliver Goodman

Earl O. Shreve, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, last night denounced a Government trend toward "creeping socialism" which he said could be as ruinous as "galloping communism."

Speaking before more than 450 persons at the annual meeting of the Electric Institute of Washington in the Mayflower, Shreve berated "politicians on the left" who are trying to lead the Nation a step nearer the completely-controlled state.

"The paternal state is already here in a big, expanding way," he said. "Let us call the trend 'creeping socialism' and not some sort of 'deal' or the currently popular label of the 'welfare state'.

"Big Government now is dramatized by a 42-billion-dollar Federal budget, by Government gifts to large segments of the population, by the dependence of increasing millions of people on Government for jobs, pensions, subsidies, grants, handouts in many guises."

He declared that "all these bounties cost money" with the result that the Nation's savings "are almost exhausted" and its financial future heavily mortgaged.

"The rich have been soaked—hard—and business has been plucked to the point where the goose is in danger of delivering a diminishing return of eggs for lack of capital nourishment."

The drop in grain prices, following the record crops of 1948, signalled the turn in the inflationary spiral, he added. "The most urgent postwar demands for consumer goods have been satisfied. Supply lines are mostly full, dealers' shelves are replenished with an abundance of goods. Warehouses are stocked with food."

On the other hand, he said, the need for new capital investment is far from filled. Placing such capital needs at about 50 billion dollars for the next few years, Shreve stated that "national policy from here on should emphasize enterprise . . . stimulate new capital investment."

Steps in this direction, he asserted, would be economy in Federal spending, repayment of national debt, stabilization or reduction of taxes, limitation of Federal activity in the fields of enterprise.

"Under present graduated income tax rates," he pointed out, "the levelling of wealth has gone far toward the attainment of socialist goals. The danger is that this trend will continue until the sources of capital for enterprise, and incentive for enterprise, disappear and the American economy loses its drive for expansion . . . The time has come to recognize this danger and to decide whether th United States should take the path to more enterprise . . . or towards more socialism."

Leaders in the Washington electrical appliance field and their guests attended the dinner session at which J. A. Mitzelfelt, Electric Institute head, presided. The institute is a non-profit organization composed of more than 225 firms.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 14 (AP).—Soybeans led a sharp advance in all commodities on the Board of Trade today. At the finish all beans contracts were up 10 cents, the daily limit, with bids in the pit and nothing offered.

Grains were mixed early in the day, but lagged along when beans started their rise. When beans hit the limit advance, buying orders spilled over into other pits and the grain advance gathered momentum.

Wheat closed 5 to 6 cents higher; corn was 2½ to 5¼ higher; oats were 1 to 3 cents higher; rye, 2½ higher, and lard, 63 to 73 cents a hundred pounds higher.

While grains are still well under their prices of several weeks ago, they have made substantial recoveries from the extreme lows touched during the forepart of the session last Wednesday. Compared with those lows, wheat closed today 17¼ to 21⅝ cents a bushel higher.

Corn ended 18⅜ to 20⅛ above Wednesday's lows; oats, 7⅛ to 12¼ higher; soybeans, 22¼ to 23½ higher, and lard, $1.65 to $2.33 a hundred pounds higher. In the case of grains and soybeans the largest recoveries have been made by the nearby contracts.

St. Lawrence Seaway Need Is Voiced

Warning that New England will continue to lose industry unless it is provided more and cheaper electric power were sounded yesterday as advocates of the St. Lawrence Seaway opened a drive to push the project through Congress this year.

Representatives of labor, agriculture and industry and members of Congress urged prompt approval of the seaway as a "defense" project to relieve power shortages and transportation bottlenecks. They spoke at a meeting of the National St. Lawrence Association.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), stirred up a fight with opponents of the seaway when he attacked them as "men of little vision" whose only argument against the project was that of "selfish greed."

Carroll B. Huntress, chairman of the opposition National St. Lawrence Project Conference, replied by issuing a statement charging that Reuther's "socialistic views definitely stamp the project for what it is."

Senators Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) and Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) attended a luncheon session of the association and heartily indorsed the seaway. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) did not attend the session, but has long been an advocate of the project.

Emil Rieve, president of the CIO United Textile Workers, told the meeting the exodus of industry from New England could be stopped only by the development of cheaper power from the St. Lawrence and other rivers.

Others who called for prompt congressional action on the seaway included Albert Goss, master of the National Grange; James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union; Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) and Julius Barnes, Duluth, Minn., industrialist and president of the association.

Pekingese, Scottie Are Challengers

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—A scottie and a Pekingese, both English importations, emerged as standout challengers to Ch. Rock Ridge Night Rocket, owned by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Rockefeller of Greenwich, Conn., for top honors in the Westminister Kennel Club show today as the seventy-third annual canine classic opened in Madison Square Garden.

The Scottish terrier, Ch. Walsing Winning Trick of Edgerstoune, created the greatest stir among observers at the opening session of the show's two-day run when he was selected as the best of his breed in a classy field of 60.

A black brindle dog who won't be 3 years old until next September, Winning Trick was exhibited by Mrs. John G. Winant of New York, widow of the late Ambassador to England, who brought him to this country a year ago.

Among his victims in the first round today was Ch. Independent Ben, shown by Joseph W. Kelly of Wellesley Hills, Mass. Independent Ben was a preshow favorite, having defeated 72 other scotties in the specialty show of the Associated Terrier Clubs only two days ago.

The Peke who won his way into the second round with other breed champions in the toy group was Ch. Bonrave Fo Yu of Orchard Hill, owned by Mrs. Richard S. Quigley of Lockhaven, Pa.

Bonrave, who whipped 38 others of his breed, has been a consistent winner since being brought to this country last fall as a 2-year-old.

Along with other breed winners in today's competition, and others still to be selected, they will enter the second round of judging tomorrow to pick the six variety group winners for the finals tomorrow night.

Woman's Half-Burned Body Found in Furnace

Chicago, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—The half-burned body of Mrs. Rose Kaplan, 50, was found in her furnace today and police said all evidence pointed to a suicide in which she leaped head first into the roaring flames.

Her husband, Sam Kaplan, said she had been ill for some time and several times had threatened to take her own life.

Alexandrian Charged With Shooting Wife

Alexandria police yesterday charged a man with shooting his wife in the leg as they walked along the street in the early morning.

Mrs. Margaret Johnson, 39, 1209 Cameron st., Alexandria, who was admitted to Alexandria Hospital with a gunshot wound in her right leg, told police she and her husband, Russell, 43, had been arguing most of Sunday at the restaurant they operate at 211 N. Payne st.

They were still arguing when they closed the restaurant, she said, and as they walked along Payne st., Johnson pulled out a gun and shot her. He was held under $1000 bond for hearing at Alexandria Police Court when Mrs. Johnson can appear in court.

In another Alexandria shooting, 15-year-old Philip Rittenhouse of 1116 Wilkes st., Alexandria, was in Alexandria Hospital with a bullet wound in the hand received mysteriously Sunday.

The boy said he was walking on Wilkes st. a few blocks west of his home about 6 p. m. when he heard a gun blast and felt a stinging sensation in his left hand.

At the hospital it was found that the bullet splintered a bone. He was reported in good condition last night. Rittenhouse said there was no one in sight in the vicinity either before or after the time he was hit.

Air Progress Exhibit Opens Today at Washington Hotel

"The Span of Flight," an exhibition of aeronautical progress ranging from 200-horsepower engines to an 8350-horsepower gas-turbine wheel, will open at 10 a. m. today at the Washington Hotel.

The show, which will include more than 30 examples of aircraft engineering since the original flight of the Wright brothers, is open to the public. It is sponsored by the Curtiss-Wright Corp.

Functioning of turbo-jets, ramjets and compound engines will be demonstrated, along with a display of the world's largest propeller—the 19-foot blade used on six-engine B-36 bombers.

Herbert Fisher, test pilot for Curtiss-Wright, who was the first flyer to completely reverse the propeller pitch of a plane while in flight, will demonstrate ground control radio flight procedures for blind flying.

Visitors will be permitted to operate many of the exhibits, including "feathering" and "reversing" a four-bladed propeller and a four-engine synchronizing unit that has the same controls and reactions shown by a giant bomber.

Edward Owen, former Navy test pilot from the Navy Patuxent River Air Base, and other trained personnel from the Curtiss-Wright engineering divisions, will be on hand during the one-day exhibit to explain the principles and features of the display. The exhibit closes at 10 p. m.

PUC Maps Plans To Reroute Buses In SE Sector

The District Public Utilities Commission will act within two weeks on the Capital Transit Co. proposal to re-route several bus lines in Southeast Washington.

PUC took the plan under advisement yesterday following a brief morning hearing at the District Building, during which it was disclosed that the Bolling Air Base had withdrawn previous objections to the extension of the W-4 Portland st. line, one of the changes under consideration.

The transit company wants to extend the W-4 line, originating at Bolling Field, from its present terminus at 11th pl. and Alabama ave. se., to 36th st. and the Avenue. It would also eliminate the five-cent fare from Bolling Field to Nichols ave. on the W-4 route.

POWER PLANT
that uses its Head!

LIFT the hood of a stunning new 1949 Buick, and this is the husky thrill-producer you find filling the bonnet.

Look it over—and you'll observe, among other things, that this is a valve-in-head straight-eight.

This means that years ago Buick engineers lifted the valves from the side of the cylinders, where they're found on most cars, and put them directly overhead.

Right away, engines began to "breathe" better. Fuel charges flowed in, exhaust gases sped out, with a new freedom that definitely stepped up power, life and ginger.

Then you'll notice also that this is a Fireball power plant.

It's built with a special and exclusive type of piston that squeezes more good out of each fuel charge, adds an extra zip and zing all its own.

You'll observe too that this engine runs with soft, new quiet. Self-setting valve lifters automatically keep valves properly seated, ending tappet noises for good.

But the biggest point of all about this design is something entirely different.

In valve-in-head design, stepping up compression ratios is largely a matter of bringing the head closer to the piston face. No difficulties are presented getting fuel in and exhaust out.

So Buick power can—and has—kept pace with the quality of gasoline actually available. There's no waiting for next year's fuels to get lively action from this year's engines.

Gasolines are getting better, higher in octane ratings. Undoubtedly this will emphasize the swing toward valve-in-head design.

But that's what Buick has right now. A power plant that uses its head to giv you power and lift and soul-satisfyi thrill—with today's fuels.

It's a mighty good reason for your Buick dealer—with or witl car to trade—to get an order in.

New Andre Gide Film in Works

By Richard L. Coe

ABOUT THE TOWN: In the States for two semaines of look-see is Joseph Bercholz, producer of the Playhouse hit, "Symphonie Pastorale" . . . This Parisian producer claims that in the making of movies the story's the thing that counts, a point no Hollywoodian would deny . . . Bercholz is particularly pleased that aged Andre Gide is working on a script for him to produce; it's beyond the stage of simply penser-ing about it . . . The script is likely to be an adaptation of a Gide story, like "Symphonie Pastorale," which was written 25 years ago . . . On the latter, Gide worked closely with script writers, Jean Delannoy and Jean Aurenche, which may account for the well-knit quality of the Playhouse film . . . Bercholz points out that it's got to be cheaper to make French films than Hollywood pictures because the French market is comparatively limited . . . Unlike many travelers, he declares that a good French film will outsell American pictures in Paris, which isn't the way I generally hear it . . . Awaiting customs okay at New York is Bercholz's latest, starring Michele Morgan . . . The French title's from Baudelaire, "The Eyes of Memory," but the producer thinks the American title should be "Souvenir," which is probably box office, but not half so poetic.

KEITH'S is at it again . . . "Rogues Regiment" was definitely set to open today, along with a new "This Is America" short I'd been looking forward to, "Berlin Powderkeg" . . . While the Air Force has a short on the airlift and the RAF does, too, I've been mildly surprised how lacking we've been in movie reports of that fabulous story . . . Now "Berlin Powderkeg" and the Dick Powell melodrama will be waiting another week for Ingrid Bergman and "Joan of Arc" to rack up a five-week stay.

THE CAPITOL has a way for 70 of you to win a chicken dinner as fried by Haje's, and it gives you, too, the chance to turn reviewer . . . There are blanks in the lobby explaining the cause when you toddle away from the screen's "Chicken Every Sunday." . . . Oh, yes . . . The other day I forgot to mention a mighty fine short at the Capitol, one visiting Calumet Farms, where you get some good shots of Citation and Whirly, the former both grazing and at work from Hialeah to Belmont Park.

THE THEATER GUILD'S next subscription play in its Baltimore series will be "The Heiress," with Basil Rathbone and Beatrice Straight in the roles they played last season. Miss Straight taking over from Wendy Hiller . . . This is the Jed Harris production from Henry James' novel, "Washington Square" . . . Considering that the Guild subscription is for five plays and that this is the second, coming in March 7, it looks as though Miss Bess Davis Schreiner will be putting the pressure on 52d st. for her subscribers . . . As usual, it's been an unpredictable season for the theater and Baltimore isn't the only town that suffers from the lack of enough road shows to keep the theaters lighted . . . All most paradoxical.

WILLIAM SAROYAN, present on the news stands in the current issue of Tomorrow, has more to say on this tangled topic, dividing the blame between the Dramatists' Guild, the agent, the producer, the backers, the director and the critics. . . To the question, "How may a playwright do his work, maintain his integrity and manage to survive economically?" Saroyan has an answer: "I sometimes bet on the horses—horsebetting establishes more swiftly than any other activity the essential irrelevance and worthlessness of money" . . . Which is all very well, Bill, but where do you get the dough to put on the ponies?

ARLINGTON FARMS' evidently lively Recreation Hall is up to something Thursday night, an extravaganza with WOL's peripatetic Mike Hunnicutt, Idaho's Dean Oliver, Louisiana's Norman Liuska, Henderson Hall's Jimmy James and Fort Myer's Al Jolson.

THE ALEXANDRIA Little Theater will present A. A. Milne's "Mr. Pim Passes By" Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at the Recreation Building, Cameron and Harvard sts. . . . Murray Sheehan is directing. Brown Rolston, Bob Rainsbury, Helen Todd and Dorothy Myers, among others.

THE COLUMBIA'S NEXT STARS: These delicate denizens are the center of things in "Unknown Island," opening Thursday at the Columbia. They're supposed to be relics of a prehistoric age found on a hidden Pacific island by Navy fliers of World War II. Virginia Grey, Philip Reed and Richard Denning are the other attractions

Postlude

Tartini Fares Well in Hands Of Hollander, Young Violinist

By Paul Hume

Ralph Hollander played his second recital in the Phillips Gallery last night, with David Garvey as his pianist partner.

The evening's sonata was by Tartini, the concerto, by Tschaikowsky. An adagio and fugue from the Bach sonata in A minor was the other large scale music.

Hollander plays with musical awareness. His tone is good and solid, and he does not abuse it with an excess of vibrato as numerous young violinists do today. He gave a good account of the Tartini, but Tschaikowsky is a different matter.

We had thought of describing the concerto as threadbare. But when two young men asked a gallery guide which piece of music was being played while Hollander was in the midst of the opening movement, we decided it was only threadbare to those who attend concerts regularly. Thus perhaps it becomes legitimate for fiddlers to continue playing it. But it is hard on Tschaikowsky to present the work with piano, for in spite of Garvey's good offices, the piano is no substitute for the splendor of the orchestra.

Hollander has no difficulty understanding the music, but he was not able to eliminate a feeling of technical exercises in the trying passages just before the climax in E major in the first movement. This concerto is for the biggest violinists. Younger men in the field would be wiser to play music we hear less often, if for no other reason than to avoid the greatest competition.

And finally, though Hollander did well by the music he played, he ought to take his country to heart more openly, and to love its music enough to find it a worthy place on his programs. Last night's composers read: Tartini, Tschaikowsk, Bach, Lully, Sarasate, Falla and Wieniawski. Where are the American sonatas and concertos? There are plenty of them, and just as good as last night's sonata and concerto.

Glover Park Unit Hears Plea For Abolition of Segregation

The controversial report of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital was defended by a committee representative last night at a meeting of the Glover Park Citizens Association.

The speaker was Phineas Indritz, an attorney. He was invited by the group to reply to an attack on the report by Clifford Newell, former president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, in December. A discussion period followed the speaker's plea for the abolition of segregation here.

The 75 persons, gathered at the Benjamin Stoddard School, 40th and Calvert sts. nw., also heard Gordon Reid and Mrs. Joseph Bursteen urge support of the National Symphony Orchestra's sustaining fund drive.

S. E. Business Men

The Southeast Business Men's Association last night reiterated its stand in favor of a sales tax for the District but opposed personal property and income taxes.

The businessmen felt that property taxes are an unfair burden on merchants required to keep a heavy goods inventory. Association Secretary Louis B. Frick said. The income tax was deemed objectionable because it does not apply to all District residents such as Federal Government workers, he said.

Meeting at 314 Pennsylvania ave. se., the group also voted to oppose any increase in liquor taxes or liquor licenses, local suffrage for the District and reduction of taxes for unincorporated businesses.

Takoma Park Association

The Takoma Park Citizens Association (Md.-D. C.) went on record last night as opposed to proposed rezoning of land east of the B & O railroad right of way and south of Van Buren st. nw. from commercial to industrial. The group met in the Takoma Park Library, 5th and Cedar sts. nw.

Burleith Citizens

The Burleith Citizens Association last night indorsed the sales tax outlined in HR-1937. It opposed rezoning of the Friendship Estate, bounded by Wisconsin ave., 34th and R sts., and Reservoir rd. nw., from residential to commercial. The group met in Gordon Junior High School, 35th and T sts. nw.

St. Laurent Satisfied With Truman Talks

Ottawa, Feb. 14 (AP).—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent returned home today from Washington. He said talks with President Truman had satisfied him that the negotiations over Newfoundland military bases now held by the United States will be settled "without embarrassment."

The Prime Minister did not elaborate. He said he did not plan to make any statement to Parliament on his trip since there was nothing urgent.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

AS LATE AS 1945, before Jackie Robinson, it was still being presumed that day was far distant when a colored ballplayer would crash the racial barriers set up and guarded for so long by organized baseball.

Certainly it wasn't dreamed that within four years, two major league clubs would be squabbling over property rights to a Negro player. But that is what is happening in the case of the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians who are making public issue of their battle for title to Art Wilson, a shortstop of the Birmingham club of the Negro American League.

POVICH

It is of no moment that the Yankees intended to sign Wilson for one of their minor league farm teams while Cleveland was ready to give him a big-league tryout. The point is that the Yankees are new converts to the business of signing colored ball players, the fifth major league club to dismantle prejudice.

The spectacle of two big-league teams feuding over title to a Negro prospect points up the new evaluation of the colored ball player.

CLEVELAND'S success with colored players apparently hasn't been lost on the other clubs. The Indians, first American League club to ignore the color line, have batted 1000 in their experiments with Larry Doby and Satchel Paige. They're both fixtures with the Indians, and President Bill Veeck has ridden out the stormy accusations that he signed them for exploitation at the box office.

Doby was a flop as a second baseman, true enough, but when he got his chance in the outfield he made good sensationally with his .301 batting average, his fleetness on the bases and his tremendous throwing arm. If he was green in the outfield he was no less green at the outset than a dozen other rookies, and his improvement has been so vast he is now a good outfielder.

In the case of Satchel Paige, of uncertain age, Veeck was accused of making a farce of the game by introducing the pitching clown of the colored leagues to the majors. But Paige won seven out of eight games for the Indians, had the best earned-run record in the league and gave the Indians the kind of pitching that would have won the pennant for either the Red Sox or Yankees.

THE INDIANS picked their colored ball players carefully in contrast to the Browns who had no success with a pair of Negro rookies whose names are not quite important to this dissertation. The Browns' pair obviously wasn't ready for the majors and there was some reason to the complaint that they were brought up for whatever their value might be at the gate.

Certainly the Brooklyn Dodgers, whose Branch Rickey pioneered the lot of the colored ball player in organized baseball, need no apologies for their efforts. The Dodgers have brought up three Negroes, Jackie Robinson, Catcher Roy Campanella and Pitcher Dan Bankhead. They batted .667, with only Bankhead failing to make the major league grade.

Robinson made good at the first asking. He got his chance at Montreal in Triple A ball, and was so sensational he moved immediately to Brooklyn, hit well, fielded superbly and led the league in base stealing. He didn't bat .300 last season, but he can content himself with the fact that he still had the best average on the team. He shuttled back between first and second base because he was the best man on the club at either position.

IN THE CASE of the Birmingham outfielder, the Yankees are taking their complaint to Commissioner Chandler with charges that Veeck was "unethical" in signing Wilson to a contract. Already, the Yankees claim, they had bought Wilson's contract through channels from the Birmingham club. He was technically Yankee property when Veeck slipped away to Puerto Rico to sign him out of a winter league.

It's in contrast to the earlier manipulations with colored ball players when a major league club disposed to sign one merely by-passed the club with which he was under contract and, ignoring its property rights, signed the player directly at little outlay.

Commissioner Chandler has ruled that kind of business out. Colored teams aren't to be raided, and now enjoy the same protection as the organized leagues under the commissioner's jurisdiction. The colored league, after all these decades, is getting a recognition it never could claim until some of its boys made good, after getting that chance.

Mt. Rainier Boys Club Win

Mount Rainier Boys Club defeated Cheverly Boys Club, 68-34, in the Prince Georges County League last night.

Fraser, Berling Signed by Nats

The Nats yesterday signed two of last year's local high school and sandlot stars and assigned them to their Class D farm club Emporia of the Virginia League.

The players are Al Berling, 19, pitcher for Gonzaga, and Ralph (Monk) Fraser, jr., 18, outfielder for Anacostia. Fraser's late father was a reserve outfielder on the 1924 National League champion New York Giants.

Berling, 5-foot 10-inch right-hander, won 19 and lost none for Gonzaga and two sandlot teams, McKee Pontiac and Naval Air Station, last summer. Fraser, a righthanded hitter and thrower, who stands 6 feet tall, batted .320 for Anacostia

Colts Upset, 41-40, by Anacostia

Coolidge stumbled and Western fell yesterday as the Interhigh basketball stretch drive for the three remaining playoff spots began with a doubleheader at the Armory.

With only 501 spectators there, Coolidge led off by taking a 41-40 upset licking at the hands of lowly Anacostia. The Colts dropped into fourth place. In the second game, seventh place Rooseve't, playing like a champion, eliminated Western from contention, 60-31.

An off-balance one-handed jump shot by Ronnie Brooks with 18 seconds left sent Coolidge down to its second straight defeat. Hot on the Colts' heels now are the fifth place McKinley Tech Trainers, who can tie them for a playoff berth if they can beat Central Friday.

Winner of only two previous games, usually erratic Anacostia, with nothing at stake, ran and passed circles around the tense Colts.

The score was 10-10 at the end of the first quarter, and Anacostia led, 22-21, at halftime. Coolidge took a 29-28 lead into the final period.

A center jump, won by Anacostia's Joe Carr with 20 seconds left and Coolidge ahead, 40-39, provided Brooks with his chance. Carr outjumped Coolidge's Denny Hevener, tapped the ball to Buddy Sherbert. Sherbert dribbled once, passed to Brooks, and Ronnie let fly with his game-winner.

Roosevelt looked like a wonder team in the second game, setting up its plays beautifully, and sinking 24 out of 41 shots from the floor. In addition, the Riders made 14 out of 20 foul line tries.

Stars in their upset triumph were Bob Zamsky, Bob Cooper and Eddie Graham. Zamsky, playing his last game for the Riders (he graduates in June) scored 20 points.

Cooper held Bucky Poston, the league's top scorer, to one field goal, by waving his hand in the Western star's face, and giving him a constant tongue lashing. Graham, only 6 feet tall, controlled both backboards.

Tech Alumni Beaten

McKinley Tech's varsity gave its alumni team a basketball lesson, 60-45, last night at the Tech gym, but the victory was costly.

Ritchie Gaskel, a regular varsity guard, suffered a badly sprained ankle, and will be lost in Tech's final drive for an Interhigh playoff position.

Hoyas, Terps Renew Rivalry, Play Oct. 1 at Byrd Stadium

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Georgetown and Maryland, football sparring partners who have taken intermittent cracks at each other since 1894, go at it again next fall.

The two ancient foes fill renew their series October 1 in Maryland's Byrd Stadium, according to announcement from both schools which yesterday released their 1949 cards.

It'll be the first meeting since 1941 when the Hoyas rolled over the Terrapins, 26-0, to make it 11 triumphs in 15 starts against the College Parkers.

Efforts to stage the hometown feud in a park larger than Byrd Stadium, which can seat only 14,000 at best, failed. Griffith Stadium will be occupied by the Nats until October 2 and Maryland's new 35,000-capacity stadium will hardly be available by October 1, although Dr. H. C. Byrd, Maryland prexy, believes that it will.

Excavation work on the one-million-dollar project hasn't been completed yet. Hoya and Terp athletic officials even thought of shifting the game to Baltimore, but dismissed the idea almost as quickly as they thought about it.

Maryland Schedule

September 24, Virginia Tech, at Blacksburg.
October 1, Georgetown, at College Park; 8, Michigan State, at East Lansing; 15, open; 22, North Carolina State, at Raleigh; 29, South Carolina U., at Griffith Stadium.
November 5, George Washington, at Griffith Stadium; 12, Boston University, at Boston; 24, West Virginia, at Griffith Stadium (Thanksgiving Day).
December 2, Miami, at Miami, Fla.

Georgetown Schedule

September 24, Holy Cross, at Worcester, Mass.
October 1, at Maryland; 7, Wake Forest (site undetermined); 14, New York U.; 21, at Boston College; 29, at Fordham.
November 4, Villanova; 12, at Denver; 19, George Washington.

Hoyas Drop Tulsa

The only change on Georgetown's 1949 schedule is the substitution of Wake Forest for Tulsa, a change the Hoyas may regret. They whipped Tulsa in 1947 and last year, but hardly figure to do that against Wake Forest, a sophomore ball club that is expected to be one of the best in the Southern Conference next season.

Maryland takes on one new foe—Boston University—and resumes relations with two other schools—N. C. State and Michigan State—after a lapse of one and two years, respectively.

N. C. State replaces Duke on the Terp card, the contract with Duke having expired. Michigan State is on in place of Delaware. Otherwise, the Terp card includes V. P. I., South Carolina, George Washington, West Virginia and Miami.

Terps Close With Miami

The Miami game closes the schedule in the Orange Bowl, December 2. The Floridians were added when North Carolina asked to be released after scheduling Notre Dame. The Tar Heels re-

Arduini Loses; Petro TKO's Rogers in 2d

Raw courage kept Johnny Arduini upright but couldn't avert a loss by unanimous decision to Art Llanos, of Puerto Rica, in the feature of four 8-rounders on the Turner's Arena boxing program last night.

Before a slim crowd of 921, paying a gross $2049.90, Arduini, 116-pounder of Washington, stayed to the end with his classier foe. His only trip to the canvas came in the fourth. Llandos weighed 119.

The wildest battle of the night saw Washington's Danny Petro, 128½, after being warned for every sort of foul blow in the book, register a technical knockout over Corky Rogers, 126, of New York, at 2:19 of the second round.

Referee Charley Reynolds called Petro for hitting low, hitting while his opponent was down, hitting while coming out of a clinch, and hitting as he offered to touch gloves with his slender foe. A crazy left, delivered while Rogers was going backward, finally dumped the New Yorker and shortly thereafter Reynolds had to stop it.

Herbie (Biff) Jones, 133½, of Washington, patty-caked his way to an 8-round verdict over New York's Johnny Johnikin, 130.

In his first loss as a pro, Garland Edwards, 158, dropped a split decision to Holly Mims, 155, in the third meeting of the Washington pair. Edwards had previously beaten Mims and fought him to a draw.

Satch Signs, Says He Got Slight Raise

Kansas City, Feb. 14 (AP).—Leroy (Satchel) Paige, the ancient and fabulous Negro pitcher, slept through today's snowstorm and most of the morning but finally got up and announced he had signed his 1949 contract with the Cleveland Indians with more pay.

And with a little prompting, "Ole Satch" reported, he had been given a little boost in salary—he didn't care to say how much. Last season Paige is believed to have earned about $15,000.

"I think I got a pretty good contract," Satch said. "But, you know, how it is we all think we coulda done a little better."

And with that he announced he was going to fly to Cleveland this weekend to "talk some more" with Bill Veeck, president of the club.

"You know, last season I had a little trouble with my stomach," he said. "And for a while I was a little worried about it. But I've been up to see my physicians—you know I have two of them here in Kansas City—and I'm feeling all right."

Four Plead Guilty in Shapiro Case

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Four men pleaded guilty today to charges that they tried to "fix" a college basketball game by offering a player $1,000 to see that his team lost by at least 18 points.

Pleading guilty to bribery and conspiracy charges were Joseph Aronowitz, 35; Philip Klein, 34, and Jack Levy, 40. The fourth man, William Rivlin, 43, pleaded guilty to conspiracy.

The four were accused of attempting to bribe David Shapiro, 25-year-old war veteran and co-captain of the George Washington University basketball team. Shapiro's team won the game, against Manhattan College early last month, 71 to 63.

Tipped Off In September

The District Attorney's office here said Shapiro informed it of the bribe offer last September, more than three months before the game. The player also aided investigators in their probe of the proposed gambling coup and subsequent seizure of the four defendants.

The defendants, indicted February 4, were continued in $20,000 bail, to await sentencing March 10. They were indicted under a state law which makes bribery or attempted bribery of a participant in amateur sports a criminal offense.

Rivlin faces up to three years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine. The others could be sentenced to as much as five years in prison and fined $10,000.

D. C. Action Depends On N. Y. Sentences

The four men who pleaded guilty in New York yesterday of trying to bribe Dave Shapiro, George Washington U. co-captain, to fix basketball games, may yet be brought to trial in Washington.

The office of the U. S. District Attorney for the District of Columbia declared it is "watching" the sentences to be passed by the New York General Sessions Court.

"Our action will depend upon the New York sentences," said John Fihelly, Assistant U. S. Attorney here, who helped draw three-count indictments against the quartet in the District Court.

Fihelly pointed out that the maximum penalties under the Federal statute applied to the District of Columbia provide for sentence as long as five years and fine as much as $10,000 on each

Record Set By Bowlers First Night

The third annual Washington Post bowling tournament for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club got off to a flying start last night with action on 27 alleys.

Many alleys reported double the entries for an opening night of the past two years.

At Chevy Chase Ice Palace, special ceremonies were held. Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett; Capt. John Fondahl, Eighth Precinct; Wash B. Williams, Police Boys' Club campaign chairman; Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, president of the Women's Auxiliary, and Lieut. Forrest L. Binswanger, director of the clubs, joined in the program staged by Manager Hap Newman, cochairman of the tournament.

The 70-piece Metropolitan Police Boys' Club band, under Maj. Leon Brusiloff's direction, furnished music on the outside of the building as well as inside. Major Barrett tossed out the first ball and the auxiliary women made a wonderful start signing up entries in the various leagues.

Approximately 200 entries were registered at Ice Palace.

Hi-Skor reported 110 opening night entries, with interest at these mapleways due to mount with each passing day, Manager Eddie Winslow said.

Bethesda Bowling Center on Georgetown rd. announced around 100 entries. Manager Fred Murphy said that he planned to have 100 per cent participation tonight from 38 teams in his Bethesda Women's League.

Incomplete entries at Brookland were put at a 60 figure, while a big turnout was reported a nearby Colonial Village and many other alleys.

St. Louis Loses To Ohio State

St. Louis, Feb. 14 (AP).—An under-dog quintet of Ohio State Buckeyes staged a major basketball upset tonight when they toppled the St. Louis Billikens, who are ranked second nationally, 68 to 60. It was the Bills' second defeat in 18 games.

Surrattsville High Wins

Surrattsville High School defeated the American Auptomobile Association team, 34-29, last night. Bob Roylance scored 11 points for the winners and "Hot-shot" Brown 14 for the losers. The victory was the twelfth for Surratsville against two defeats.

Chisox After Scarborough, Nats Say 'No'

An offer for Pitcher Ray Scarborough by the Chicago White Sox has been laughed off by the Washington Club, it was learned yesterday.

Commenting on an Associated Press dispatch from Chicago that revealed the bid by the White Sox Vice President Calvin Griffith of the Nats admitted the offer was made but termed it "ludicrous."

"I got no consideration here," said Griffith by telephone from Orlando, Fla., where the Nats have set up winter offices. "They offered us a couple of second-rate players and a small amount of cash. Anyway, Scarborough isn't on the market."

The players offered by the Chicago club are Second Baseman Don Kolloway, a .271 hitter last year, and Rookie Pitcher Walter Pierce, it was learned. Pierce went from Detroit to the White Sox in a trade in December.

"The White Sox are just the latest of a long list of clubs who have made offers for Scarborough," said Griffith. "It's hard to make them understand that we wouldn't part with our top pitcher. We've had offers from Boston, New York, Cleveland and Detroit that would make Chicago's offer look laughable.

Scarborough was a 15-game winner with the Nats last season. The 30-year-old right hander whose defeat of the Red Sox cost that team the pennant in the last week of the 1948 season, as yet has not accepted terms for 1949. When he does, it will be at the top salary on the Washington club.

Johnny Cox Gets Navy Job

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 14 (AP).—Capt. H. H. Caldwell, director of athletics at the United States Naval Academy, today announced the appointment of John T. Cox of Newport News, Va., as sports publicity director at the academy. Cox succeeds Jerry Flynn who resigned February 1.

Cox resigned his post as director of public relations at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., to accept the Naval Academy appointment, Captain Caldwell said. He is expected to take over his new post March 1.

Hoya Matches Shifted

Georgetown University's boxing match with John Carroll University, of Cleveland, has been shifted to March 12 in Washington.

PGA Gives Good Dates To Annual Event Here

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The 1949 renewal of the National Capital Open golf tournament, for two years a feature at Prince Georges Golf and Country Club, will be staged at the Landover, Md., course on July 1-4, it was announced by the Professional Golfers' Association yesterday.

Those are the best dates ever allowed the local extravaganza, which attracts the Nation's top golfers on their summer golfing-for-gold tour.

The two previous National Capital events were held in early June (1947) and late April (1948), when weather conditions were uncertain.

$15,00 in Prizes

Again the National Capital will offer $15,000 in prizes, the PGA minimum, and be over the 72-hole route. It will come midway of the summer schedule, this season cut from 25 to 15 tournaments to allow for the late summer Ryder Cup matches in England.

Only richer meets than the Capital Open will be the $30,000 PGA tourney at the Hermitage Country Club, in Richmond, May 25-31, and the George S. May $55,200 golfing circus at Niles, Ill., between August 6 and 14.

Last year the Prince Georges feature was won by Skip Alexander, former Duke University golf captain, with a 68 on the final round. His 271 total easily beat out South Africa's Bobby Locke, who wound up with 277.

Locke, incidentally, is expected to return to the United States in time for the Prince Georges meet. He missed the winter circuit in this country while playing in his homeland.

The complete PGA schedule for 1949:

Coaltown Equals World Record for 1⅛ Miles at Hialeah

Calumet Ace Also Breaks Track Mark

Miami, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP).—Coaltown ran in an inconspicious overnight race at Hialeah today and when the dust settled, the Calumet flyer had knocked three fifths of a second off the track record and equalled the world's record for the mile and a furlong.

And although it won't go into the racing record books, he also bettered two world marks.

Coupled with Free America as a Calumet Farm entry, Coaltown covered the mile and an eighth route in 1:47 3/5—three fifths of a second better than Hialeah's track record shared by Brevity and Stagehand equal to the world mark set by Indian Broom in 1936 and later equaled by Shannon II..

Unofficially, Coaltown also broke two world's records — for the 7-furlong dash and for a mile even. The sensational 4-year-old was teletimed at 1:21 1-5—three-fifths of a second better than the 7-furlong record shared by Honeymoon and Buzfuz. His time of 1:34 1-5 for the mile was a fifth of a second faster than the 1:34 2-5 world record set by Equipoise and equalled by Prevaricator.

Just for the record, Mrs. E. L. Hopkins' Three Rings was second and Coaltown's stablemate, Free America was third in a field of five.

Coaltown picked up $2600 first money for his sensational effort, and left Hialeah $2624.35 in the hole from a place minus pool. Because the Calumet team was such a prohibitive favorite, and the field so slim there was no show betting. The Calumet entry returned 20 cents on the dollar.

Coaltown won by 6 lengths, but at one point was 10 lengths in front of the pack. At the 6-furlong post he was two fifths of a second off the world 1:08 2-5 mark set by Fair Truckle at Golden Gate Fields in 1947.

Coaltown carried 114 pounds and was ridden by Apprentice Jockey Eldon Nelson.

count. "It's stiffer punishment than the New York State statutes provide," he said.

A Washington grand jury indicted the four on separate counts of attempting to bribe Shapiro (1) to throw George Washington's game with the University of Virginia, (2) to fix a game scheduled against North Carolina and (3) to fix remaining games on the GW. U. schedule.

"We may be disposed to ask New York to send the men here under guard for trial in the District," said Fihelly. "That sort of a request is usually met by other States. In any event we will put a detainer on our indictment here to provide for any prosecution we may seek in the future."

Armstrong Can Win Title Today

The Negro Interhigh Basketball League ends its season today with a 3:30 p. m. doubleheader which will decide the championship. Armstrong Tech, champion or co-champion for the past five years, can wrap up its sixth straight title in the first game at the Armory. It's foe is the weak Cardozo Quint.

Dunbar and Phelph clash in the second game, and if Armstrong falters, the winner of the nightcap will be proclaimed cochampion with the Techmen.

Quantico Beats William & Mary

Quantico, Va., Feb. 14 (AP).—The Quantico Marines won their eleventh straight basketball victory here tonight by downing the William and Mary Indians of the Southern Conference, 41-36.

Cy Waldrop, former Navy star, led the night's scoring with 16 points. Center Waldrop also limited Chet Giermak, Virginia's leading college scorer, to 12 points.

A. U. Tries to Stop Loyola And Big Jim Lacy Tonight

The final regular-season outing of Jim Lacy, scoring ace of Loyola of Baltimore, in a Mason-Dixon clash with American University tonight, features a four-game schedule for local collegiate fives.

The Loyola-American game, set for the A.U. gym at 8:45, is one of two Mason-Dixon games involving Washington teams. In the other, Catholic University goes on the road for a meeting with Mount St. Mary's at Emmitsburg, Md.

In an all-local clash, Gallaudet tangles with Wilson Teachers at Eastern High at 8:30. The night's program is closed out by Georgetown, in a road game with Holy Cross.

Tonight's headliner at A.U. pits the M.D.'s leading team, Loyola with an undefeated record in eight games, against the loop's fourth-place club. American boasts eight victories in 10 games, although it lost a earlier decision to Loyola by 21 points.

For Lacy, who has run up a total of 1935 points this season, tonight's game provides a chance to grab third place in the national scoring race.

The C.U.-Mount game brings together the conference's seventh and fifth-place clubs for what may prove a terrific battle.

Georgetown's prospects against the Crusaders could be called something less than even. The Hoyas have a 7-9 mark for the season, and against this Holy Cross goes into tonight's tiff with 12 games won and only 6 lost.

Berwyn Riflemen Win

Berwyn clinched third place in the Maryland Rifle League last night with a 1407-1342 victory over National Capitol No. 1 at the College Park range. In other matches, National Capitol No. 2 defeated Tee Gee's, 1340-1300, and Maryland Frosh whipped Greenbelt No. 2, 1337-1214.

Maryland plays George Washington in Griffith Stadium November 5—two weeks before the Hoyas take a crack at Bo Rowland's Colonials.

The Terrapins have one open date—October 15—on the schedule and it may be filled in the next month or so. The Terps will also play a Thanksgiving Day game next fall, meeting Dud DeGroot's West Virginians in Griffith Stadium.

Balloting Shows

Realistic Art Favored In District

Most popular at exhibit.

The best way to have your brushwork get the brush-off in Washington is to make it appear unreal.

This is the consensus of some 1000 art lovers who have trooped to the Corcoran Gallery of Art since January 9 and had their say about the "De Gustibus" exhibition of 59 American paintings.

The show, covering works of America's foremost artists since 1830, has brought varied and highly critical comment from the public in balloting to determine the visitors' favorite.

Most popular of the original works is one that professional critics have not praised so extravagantly as others. It is a richly realistic still-life painting by William M. Harnett called "Old Models," done in 1892.

Judging from visitors' comments, Harnett's picture of a violin and bow, bugle and music book caught their fancy because it looks exactly like a violin and bow, bugle and music book.

Said one, "I almost dusted it." Another—perhaps a musician—said, "I tried the violin, and it was in tune." Others commented, "It is so realistic," and, "The detail is superb, still holds element of reality."

Here and there, however, were those who actually enjoyed abstract and impressionistic works of recent years.

One anonymous critic felt that latter-day art should be consigned "to the trashbaskets, which are too good for it."

Voters were asked to select their favorite decade of American painting since 1830, and the period of Harnett's work (1890-1900) was first.

Results of the balloting as announced by J. P. Leeper, public relations director of the gallery, with totals for first and second place in that order, are as follows: "Old Models," 60 and 23; Thomas Hovenden's "Breaking the Home Ties," 42 and 22; Albert Bierstadt's "Mount Corcoran," 39 and 11; Eastman Johnson's "Old Kentucky Home" (painted on F st. in Washington), 27 and 15, and Winslow Homer's "The Fox Hunt," 26 and 18.

Following the 1890's, the most popular decades were the 1880's, 1930's and 1860's, in that order.

Directors of the gallery discovered they made an appropriate choice of title for the exhibition in the Latin proverb: "De gustibus non disputandum est"—There is no disputing of tastes.

The show will continue through February 20.

The Greenbelt (Md.) Town Council last night lowered its present tax rate for each $100 property valuation from $3.27 to $3.1195.

The lower rate was in line with an $8000 slash by the Federal Public Housing Administration in the budget submitted by the town for this year.

Greenbelt residents pay no taxes on real estate because their land is owned by the Government. However, in determining the amount to be given the town for municipal operation, the PHA bases its calculations a real estate assessment.

According to Town Manager Charles T. McDonald, several municipal services will be curtailed because of the budget reduction. Among them are travel accounts, new lighting and other facilities for the library, and $682 that would have gone for payment of a police officer filling in for other officers on vacation.

In other actions last night, the council by a 3-to-2 vote decided to ask the Maryland General Assembly to designate Greenbelt a city. In presenting the motion, Councilman Frank J. Lastner said the present population—between 7000 and 8000—gives Greenbelt "the right to be called a city."

The decision to ask for a change in classification was tagged on at the end of a long session, in which the council approved 10 changes to the Greenbelt charter.

Most of the projected changes pertain to minor alterations in existing town election rules. One, however, would set up a three-man grievance committee to hear complaints of town employes fired by the town manager.

The present charter provides the town manager may appoint and remove at his discretion any of the town employes. The three-man committee would be advisory, but the town manager's decision would be final.

One of the suggested changes in election rules would bring Greenbelt in line with county laws, which provide that "permissible electioneering" could be done up to 100 feet from polling places.

Possibilities of the Greenbelt school system going on a two-shift basis next fall brought passage of a resolution urging Prince Georges County delegates at the State Legislature to approve a bill which would quadruple the Governor's incentive fund.

According to Councilwoman Elizabeth Harrington, the bill, if passed, would permit the county to issue about seven million dollars in school bonds. She said the money would permit construction of sufficient school facilities to handle the growing student body.

Funds Recommended In Deficiency Bill To Hire Thousands

Funds to pay the salaries of thousands of additional employes were recommended to the House yesterday by its Appropriations Committee in the first deficiency bill. This is the lineup:

AGRICULTURE: Its production and marketing administration asked for $9,734,500 and every cent of it was recommended to the House. The bulk of the new money would be used to hire about 4150 additional employes in the county agricultural conservation associations, and about 330 in the national and State offices.

CCC: Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation also would come in for a big increase. The $3,239,700 recommended for it would be used to pay the salaries of about 1200 additional employes in its commodity offices. There would be some expansion here but most of it would be in the field.

RECLAMATION: The committee recommended that the limitations which forced this Interior agency to fire about 4000 of its employes since last July 1 should be lifted. It reported that the restrictions appear "inordinately costly to administer and interfere unduly in the bureau's efforts to maintain and improve administrative standards and employe morale."

With the personnel restrictions off, it is estimated that the 4000 jobs will be re-created and possibly more. The committee recommended $17,600,000 for the agency.

The committee also recommended repeal of another legislative rider of the Eightieth Congress which prevents Commissioner Mike Straus and Richard L. Boke, a regional director, from being paid salaries because they aren't engineers. It explained that both the President and the Interior Secretary were pleased with the services of these two officials.

USES: This was another agency that was kicked around by the Eightieth Congress—the United States Employment Service. And like Reclamation, the new Democratic-controlled committee gave it a more sympathetic hearing.

USES was recommended for every cent it asked for. The money, if granted, will prevent another major layoff. In fact, the agency will be able to expand by several hundred jobs.

The agency had 43,000 employes in its State offices on last July 1. That number is now down to 37,500 and another 2500 will have to be fired unless the deficiency money goes through. The committee approved funds for about 38,000 State jobs.

HOUSING EXPEDITER: The committee recommended it be given $4,800,000, a reduction of $2,650,000, in its request. The full sum would have enabled the rent control boss to hire an additional 900 employes. The reduction, if approved, would limit the office to an increase of around 400 new people.

CENSUS: It will come in for a big expansion to conduct a census of business. Its officials told the committee that 240 new field offices would be set up and 5100 temporary enumerators would be hired throughout the Nation to take the census. The offices are now being opened up and they will be closed when the work is completed in September.

But when the field work is through, the work will be sent here, where it will be edited, tabulated and published. It's estimated this work will require an additional 1200 temporary employes.

The committee cut Census by $950,000 and urged a more economical operation.

WAA: War Assets Administration will continue to lay off employes. The committe gave it all it asked for—15 milion dollars. Even so, more than 1200 of its 5000 employes will be laid off before June 30.

The committee also recommended the upset of another Eightieth Congress action which requires WAA to go out of businesslike operations, that WAA be continued in its present form until June 30.

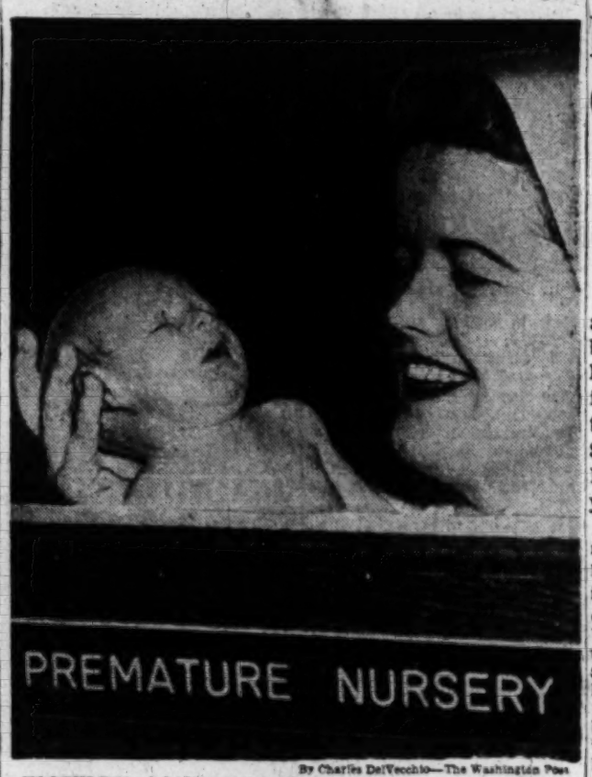
FHA: Federal Housing Administration was given four million dollars by the committee, $1,435,000 to meet the cost of the $330 pay raise, and $3,370,000 for additional work. Its officials told the committee that the money would not be used to hire additional employes. However, it will be able to fill vacancies that have been left unfilled due to the uncertainty over its finances.

DPC: The Displaced Persons Commission also would have funds for a modest expansion. Chairman Ugo Carusi told the committee his agency would have a peak of 73 employes here and 245 in Europe.

ODT: The Office of Defense Transportation was given $95,000 to continue its operations through June 30.

SALARY BILL: If there are no hitches, the Murray subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee today will give its approval to the Administration's No. 1 pay bill. That bill would give retroactive raises to Foreign Service and the District's classified workers. In addition, it would raise the salaries of Federal executives although the proposed raises for some officials may be scaled down a bit.

Two Front Teeth in Two Days



By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

TOOTHLESS AGAIN!—Michael Dennis Zell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas Zell, 121 E st. se., surprised everyone, including his doctor, when he sprouted two lower incisors two days after he was born prematurely on February 8 at Providence Hospital. Dr. Robert Martin, head resident on the pediatric ward, said he hadn't seen another such case in over 7000 at the hospital. Last night Michael was back on a milk diet, because Dr. Martin had his two front teeth pulled to keep the infant from chewing his upper gums. "Mike", who is being held by Joan Hughes of 1736 S st. se., head nurse in the premature nursery, has an older sister, Patricia Louise, now 8, who was born with a tooth or two. Other children in the Zell family are Shirley Anne, 7, and George Thomas, jr., 4

Loan Groups Pledge Aid On Housing

To Stress Financing Of Low-Cost Homes, Meeting on Economy Construction Told

The 27 building and loan associations which are members of the D. C. Building and Loan League will restrict their financing as far as possible to homes selling for less than $10,000, President Edward L. McAleer of the league pledged yesterday.

McAleer's announcement was made as a drive for lower-cost housing, sponsored by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, opened with a meeting at the Washington Gas Light Co. auditorium. The goal mentioned was $7500 for "small, but sound" homes.

The meeting, first of a series to be conducted here by the Advisory Committee for Economy Housing and part of a nationwide drive being conducted in 65 cities, drew more than 200 builders, Government housing officials, mortgage bankers and others concerned with home and apartment building.

Will Assist Campaign

McAleer said the building and loan associations will finance low-cost homes to aid the campaign, and to spread the available mortgage money more widely.

Referring to an accusation by a real estate man who said, according to McAleer, that the associations are "killing the real estate market," the league president declared the local associations made loans for home financing totaling 35 million dollars in 1947, and 107 million dollars in 1948.

"Last year our associations borrowed 22 million dollars," he said, adding that "we can loan only what is lent us by members." Normally, he said, the building associations supply about 40 per cent of home financing in the area.

Would Reduce Costs

William S. Banks, president of the Home Builders Association and chairman of the local economy housing program, called for acceptance of certain innovations in home building to reduce costs.

He said city and county authorities still oppose some of these innovations, among which he listed houses without basements but having concrete floors set directly in the ground, semi-flat roofs, no dining rooms, and light-weight roof trusses. The public and the loaning agencies are beginning to accept such houses, he said.

Oliver M. Walker, chairman of the finance subcommittee of the economy housing program, and a representative of the Mortgage Bankers' Association, said he was confident the building industry could produce what is now needed, a "small but sound home," designed so it can later be expanded, at a sales price of $7500.

Family Needs Cited

James A. Hewitt, director of the D. C. Insuring Office of the Federal Housing Administration, warned that "merely providing houses of minimum size with one or two bedrooms will not meet the needs of many families."

He said construction of a substantial number of moderate-cost three and four bedroom units also is essential. The FHA is seeking additional legislation to aid in financing larger dwellings, he added.

Hewitt also stressed the need for lower-cost rental and cooperative housing, particularly for Negroes and other minorities.

Morgan B. Callahan, loan guarantee officer of the Veterans Administration, pledged the cooperation of all VA offices in the campaign, and pointed that that "we have adopted the same standards and qualifications as the FHA."

Rep. Sabath Tests Old and New House Chairs

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

DOCTOR'S ORDERS—The House Chamber in Capitol will soon have new chairs because doctor for Congress says present chairs are bad for the health of Congressmen. Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.), dean of the House, made a personal inspection yesterday and (left) sits in his seat on the House floor. These seats have hard bottoms and backs. When Representative Sabath tested the proposed seat (right), he said it was softer but harder to get out of, because of its curving seats. Said Representative Sabath of the proposed chair: "It's so low and comfortable it may keep the members in their seats."

The indictments disclosed that vice squad officers found numerous numbers slips and more than $5000 in cash when the premises were surrounded by raiding police at 3:15 p. m. December 12, at a time when lottery headquarters are at their busiest.

Undercover officers made numerous bets before the raid was pulled off, the indictments stated. Indicted as a result were:

Winston Sims, 48, and Ben Hillman, 49, both of the Champlain st. address; Josephine Anderson, 1637 Rosedale st. ne.; William T. Sullivan, 39, 2412 17th st. nw.; John T. Henderson, 29, 1637 Rosedale st. ne.; and Annie Harris, 32, 1745 Kalorama rd. nw.

Indicted in other cases as numbers writers were Charles H. Cooper, 55, 919 62d pl., Cedar Heights, Md., and Harry Johnson, 66, 1775 California st. nw.

Louis Bonbrest, 47, a used car dealer, was indicted for allegedly swindling $6145 from customers in automobile sales deals.

Bonbrest was charged with 12 counts of embezzlement and grand larceny. The victims, according to the true bill, were Charles H. Gill, Sidney A. Kegeles, Bruce C. Beck, and John B. Fenner.

Bonbrest kept an office-trailer called Right Auto Sales Co. in the 2900 Nichols ave. se. block. He shot himself, police said, on January 3 when they began investigating the auto deals, but has recovered.

Monroe Johnson, 37, of 1606 New Jersey ave. nw., was charged with first-degree murder in the fatal stabbing January 9 of his common-law wife, Elizabeth Steel, alias Elizabeth Johnson, 32, of the same address. The slaying occurred after the couple had argued over money.

Charged in Stabbing

Mrs. Alice Booker, 33, 2635 I st. nw., was charged with second-degree murder in the fatal stabbing of Simpson Wilson, 52, of the same address, after a drinking party.

Ralph S. Willette, 29, a sergeant at the Bolling Air Base, was charged with taking indecent liberties with a 3-year-old boy whom Willette had been paid to mind as a babysitter January 14.

Joseph Statesman, 47, of 76 L st. nw., was indicted for assault on a member of the police force. According to the police information, Statesman while under arrest for drunkenness began fighting with Pvt. John V. Dolan. The officer said that he was forced to use his baton, breaking it over Statesman's head. But, it was said, no mark could be found on Statesman's scalp after the incident.

Church Leader Asks Doubling Of DP Quota

U. S. Has Resources And Room for 400,000, Dr. Reissig Declares

The quota of displaced persons admitted to this country under the present Displaced Persons Act should be doubled, Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary, Washington Federation of Churches, said last night.

We have the room and resources to care for 400,000 refugees, Dr. Reissig said. The question is, he added, are we Christian enough? We must work to cut the red tape of the present law, he added, which works to prevent the homeless and nationless people of the world from coming to this country.

Dr. Reissig spoke at the twenty-first annual dinner meeting of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society held at the Church of Reformation, 212 E. Capitol street.

On the program with him were Nicholas Zebergs, former Latvian Legation officer in Moscow, now a researcher in the Library of Congress, and attractive Evelyn Ott, former Estonian model, now a Navy Department employe.

Both spoke in praise of the Inner Mission Society's newly inaugurated Displaced Persons Resettlement Service, that helped them on their arrival in this country.

Prior to their speeches, society reports for 1948 were presented by the Rev. Robert W. Long, president; the Rev. Donald F. Bautz, director; Miss Irene Ritchey, social worker, and F. G. Umhau, treasurer.

Maryland U. Asked to Study Silver Spring

The Silver Spring Junior Chamber of Commerce decided last night to ask the University of Maryland to determine the best form of local government for Silver Spring.

It requested the University to petition the Montgomery County Council for permission to make the study through its bureau of Public Administration.

The action was taken at a dinner meeting of the organization with heads of all civic and service groups in Silver Spring. The meeting was at Four Corners, Md.

The club representatives asked to bring the matter to the attention of their respective organizations within the next two weeks.

Procedure of the survey was explained by Dr. Joseph Ray, director of the bureau of public administration, University of Maryland. He said the survey will consider the whole metropolitan area of the county, and the Silver Spring report could be applied to similar areas in the county.

He said he thought the survey could be completed within three to five months.

Lawrence V. Lutes, jr., president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, explained that the request was not directed toward incorporation of Silver Spring, but determining the "best form of government" for the community.

He appointed Gregg Evergam to head a committee to follow the project "through to completion." Working with Evergam will be Robert Wallace, Richard McKeever, James Conley, and Plummer Shearin.

Johnston Urges Social Justice to Cure World Ills

Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, yesterday urged the spread of social justice as a means to rid the world of its ills at a special Variety Club "Brotherhood" luncheon at the Statler Hotel.

"When the individual is treated as the most precious thing on earth, and the scales tip in favor of human rights if the two conflict—that is social justice," said Johnston, a member of the National Conference of Christians and Jews' Brotherhood Week committee.

Washington area leaders of the NCCJ outlined the local campaign to raise $35,000 during Brotherhood Week, February 20 to 27, toward a national goal of $3,500,000. The money will be used to finance a program for improving intergroup relations among Catholics, Protestants, and Jews.

Bill Extends Life Of Freedom Train

The House yesterday passed unanimously a bill to start the Freedom Train traveling for two more years. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The train and its cargo of historic American documents was operated for 16 months by the American Heritage Foundation. Under terms of the legislation, the Government would assume a $2,500,000 cost of keeping it going until July 5, 1951.

The train would be operated by the Archivist of the United States under a bipartisan Freedom Train commission drawn from both houses of Congress and the executive branch.

Rights to Job After Maternity Leave Studied

Education Board Weighs Erroneous Teacher 'Demotion'

The right of a teacher returning from maternity leave to her former teaching status was taken under consideration by a complaints committee of the Board of Education yesterday for a ruling.

Mrs. Jessie H. Jackson, 319 Division ave. ne., told the board's complaints and appeals committee that through an error of a school official she was deprived of her high school teaching post after taking a job in a junior high school.

The teacher said that a year ago when she returned from maternity leave she accepted an appointment at Terrell Junior High School with the understanding she would receive the next opening at a high school. Before going on leave she taught mathematics at Armstrong High School.

First Assistant Superintendent of Schools Garnet C. Wilkinson said that through a clerk's error Mrs. Jackson was mistakenly informed about her job rights.

Once reinstated as a junior high school teacher, she lost her right to the high school job, he said.

Father Given Nonsupport Jail Sentence

Robert C. Hood was sentenced in Bethesda Police Court yesterday to 15 days in jail for failure to support his wife and two small children.

Hood, 33, a photographer, of 6046 Wissioming rd., Glen Echo Heights, Md., was sentenced by Judge Warren Browning after the wife, Floria, 24, testified she had received only $70 from her husband to support herself and her two children since January 1.

Although Hood still maintains his residence at the Glen Echo Heights address, Mrs. Hood told the court she has seen him only about once a week. She said the house was poorly heated and she often had to chop wood to provide warmth for the children, Gloria, 4, and Robert, jr., 3.

The photographer claimed he made only $2700 all last year, while his wife contended he netted $3000 profit in a single month.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Browning said, "You married her for better or worse, and regardless of your feelings toward her, you are obligated to support your children. It is ridiculous that you should be driving around in a station wagon while they are eating beans."

Hood opposed the jail sentence. He was released under $500 bond pending a hearing on the appeal in Montgomery County Circuit Court.

Doctor Orders Better Seats For Congress

Is your favorite legislator in a slump?

Does he echo the old GI moan about "my aching back?"

Is he absent on roll calls? Does he sag in the middle? Does he run, not walk, to the nearest House exit?

If so it's probably all the fault of his congressional seat. But things are going to be different in a couple of years.

They're going to make a seat in the House of Representatives just about the most comfortable thing there is around Washington.

Doctor's Diagnosis

Furthermore, it's just what the doctor ordered.

The doctor in the case is Capitol Physician George W. Calver. His diagnosis:

Chairs now in the House chamber are so deep, measured from front edge to rear edge of the seat, that when a man sits back in one, the front edge catches him under the knees so that it cuts off some circulation in the lower part of the legs.

This leads to pain and cramps in the lower legs.

To avoid that, members tend to slide (Editor's note: slump) forward in their seats. This puts them in a poor position in terms of posture. The stomach pushes up against the diaphragm, breathing is retarded.

In contrast, the man who sits up straight gets a better chance to inhale, gets more oxygen, gets a more normal metabolic exchange.

Here's Prescription

The prescription:

New seats for the House, specifically a seat of which a model is now in the outer office of Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.). It is comfortable—springy cushions, gently reclining back.

And hard cash to adopt this course of treatment was voted yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee—a $2,274,500 fund to remodel the House chamber, top it with a new roof, and install the new chairs.

When Capitol Architect David Lynn was telling the House Appropriations Committee about the plans, Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) ranking minority member of the committee, wanted to know what kind of seats they would install in the House.

"A specially designed seat that will be very comfortable," said Lynn.

"So that they can all go to sleep while somebody is talking?" asked Taber.

"No, sir," said Lynn. "However, Mr. Taber, we have had a great many complaints from members of Congress because of the uncomfortable seats in the House Chamber. Dr. Calver has strongly recommended that we put new seats in for the members."

A one-minute survey of the House late in the afternoon showed Dr. Calver's posture analysis to be correct. A dignified slump was the general rule.

One-Day Closing Asked

Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) yesterday introduced a bill to require closing of District barbershops one day a week.

Teachers Ask Pay Increase In Arlington

Association's Request Involves Boosts From $600 to $1100 Yearly

Arlington teachers have asked the County School Board for pay increases ranging from $600 to $1100 yearly—raises which top the present scale paid to District teachers in two comparable categories.

The boosts were requested by the Arlington Education Association—the teachers' organization—in a closed conference with the School Board on Sunday.

One source estimated the pay increases would cost Arlington about $500,000 more annually.

Schedules Compared

According to Forrest Peterson, chairman of the association's salary committee, the old and proposed schedules are as follows:

Present scale for teachers without degrees, $2200 to $3800; proposed $2800 to $4200 over the same 16-year period.

Teachers with BA degrees now get $2400 to $4000; the association wants $3000 to $4000.

For teachers with MA degrees, the pay now ranges from $2600 to $4200; the new request is for $3500 to $5300.

Board to Consider Proposal

The Arlington school board will "consider" the teachers' proposal prior to a public hearing on the 1949-50 school budget on February 23, Board Chairman Barnard Joy said last night.

The proposed pay boosts would top salaries in the two comparable classes for District teachers, who now make between $2500 and $4000 with a BA degree, and $3000 to $4500 for an MA degree.

Increases in both categories, however, cover a 15-year period compared with Arlington's 16-year cycle. The District has no scale set up for teachers without degrees.

Blood Donation Clears Motorist On Traffic Ticket

A motorist who was delayed while giving a blood transfusion was one of 94 motorists for whom traffic tickets were adjusted last week by police.

He was identified on the list of adjustments as Maurice Goldstein, of 735 New Jersey ave. nw. Police said the ticket given him for parking in a "no parking 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone was changed to a warning.

Tickets were canceled for the following motorists because of diplomatic immunity: Paul F. Blanc, French Embassy, obstructing a driveway; Knut J. R. Bernstein, Swedish Embassy, parked in an alley; Dario Bragile, 1725 Lanier pl. nw., parked in a "no parking anytime" zone; Miguel A. Lopez Lecube, Argentine Embassy, disobeying an officer's signal.

Bootlegger Gets 30-Day Jail Term

Nathaniel E. Minter, 34, 2536 14th st. nw., was sentenced yesterday to serve 30 days in jail for bootlegging here.

Police undercovermen testified in Municipal Court that Minter was contacted in an alley in the 200 block of Portner pl. nw., and sold them a half pint of whisky. His original price was $3 for the bottle but they argued him down to $2.

The trial was held before Judge John P. McMahon. Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph A. Lowther was the prosecutor.

28 to Testify on Taxes

Twenty-eight persons representing Washington civic, business, and other groups, are scheduled to testify Wednesday in joint Congressional hearings on the proposed District sales tax.

Great, Near-Great and Ordinary Joes Are Sad

The Faithful Bid Fond Farewell to Johnny's

As any reminiscing newspaperman would wish, this is "one for the road," for the establishment of John Papas, 1313 E st. nw., hangout for the great, the near-great and ordinary Joes who work for The Washington Post.

The establishment will still be there, at the same old stand, but Johnny himself is getting out of the restaurant business, and when 1313 E st. nw. opens up this morning some of the old customers are going to feel just a little homesick, for a while, for the old faces.

Since late in 1939, when "Johnny" took over his two-by-four restaurant-bar just east of the National Theater, Johnny's walls have bounced to many a call for "spaghetti with" or "gimme the stew" and "draw one—make it two—no, four" as customers ate and drank their fill.

These customers who, over the years, got to know each other at least by face, and often by name, have included Commissioner Guy Mason, who would amble over from the District Building for his lunch, James Roosevelt and Attorney General Tom Clark, who stopped by Johnny's during the National intermissions, and most of the legitimate theater stars who played the National before it turned to celluloids.

To accommodate his theater trade, Johnny had a special kitchen entrance from the National. They could come in, slip up the back stairs and eat or whatever before they went on. And they did come in—grease paint, costumes and all.

Some of them came back after the show was over, to join the downstairs trade and sit and chat over a friendly drink. In the winter time, as Johnny's regulars spun their yarns and relaxed their weary muscles, the front window would steam up, shutting out the noise and lights of E st. outside.

You could count on seeing some of the printers and pressmen in after the "bulldog" edition, wearing their ink-stained clothes and their folded newspaper skullcaps.

You could count, also, on seeing a scattering of reporters or editorial writers, clustered in a booth and discussing anything from predestination to the Battle of Hastings.

When, a couple of years ago, Posters went through a fad phase of "word games"—six blocks across, six down, Johnny thoughtfully prepared the backs of menus for the endless scribbling, and was always interested in whose vocabulary had bested the business.

Newsmen know they will miss the gray-haired man standing behind the cash register who greets you by your first name and sees that you get quick service.

John Papas is tired. He has sold out his restaurant business and is going to rest for awhile. What he will do then, he doesn't know. He says he probably will be back.

Gene Autry's Visit Thrills Dying Boy

A 5½-year-old boy who is dreaming of fighting Indians with two six-shooters strapped to his waist, got the biggest thrill of his life Sunday from a visit by his cowboy hero, Gene Autry.

Grave, brown-eyed "Sonny" Thomas is dying at Children's Hospital from leukemia, an incurable blood ailment. Despite eight blood transfusions and drug injections, physicians hold no hope for his recovery.

Sunday, in his room at the hospital, plastered with pictures of cowboys, Indians and stage coaches, his thin body shivered with excitement when suddenly in walked Gene Autry complete with spurs, Stetson and six-gun.

He smiled wistfully as Autry sang, "Back in the Saddle Again," and explained that with the present shortage of "bad Indians" one six-gun, not two, was enough "hardware" for any cowboy to carry.

Last night the happy alertness Autry brought him, by slipping away "between shows" at Uline Arena for the visit, was almost gone but he was still quietly content.

"Sonny," the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Thomas, 1108 Linden ave., Takoma Park, entered the hospital on January 3. Autry came to see him at the request of "Sonny's" mother.

He is the couple's only child. His father is a machinist for the National Cancer Institute.

Putty Proves Guilt

Putty on his keys sent Kenneth Butler, 25, 2211 M st. nw., to jail yesterday for the next three months for attempted housebreaking.

According to testimony before Judge Walter J. Casey, Butler tried to break into the house of Southwick Briggs, 1018 29th st. nw by removing a windowpane. He used his key to loosen the putty around the window, it was said.

When arrested, according to police, Butler still had putty on his keys and mud on his shoes. Both the putty and the mud matched.

Held on Rape Charge

William R. Wilson, 46, of Medina, N. Y., was held yesterday under $5000 bond for grand jury action on a rape charge. He was arrested Sunday on complaint of a 19-year-old woman who said he forced her into sexual relations in her home, 231 8th st. se., last Tuesday. Her husband, Carl J. Hall, 22, was ordered held for grand jury action charged with forcing her to engage in prostitution.

Held in Sister Stabbing

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered Miss Mary Ella Wrenn, 37, of 1017 Browning pl. ne., held for the action of the grand jury in the fatal stabbing of her sister, Mrs. Oaddie Taylor, 46, of the Browning st. address.

Mrs. Taylor died at Casualty Hospital at 5:45 a. m. Sunday, less than six hours after she had been stabbed in the throat with a butcher knife during an argument in their home.

Snatcher Gets $376

A brown paper bag, containing $376 in checks, was snatched from the hand of an employe of the Eagle Sales Co., 1007 7th st. nw., while she was en route to the bank to deposit the checks around 1 p. m. yesterday.

The employe, Miss Doris Levine, 19, of 1216 Missouri ave. nw., said she was walking near 7th and N sts. nw., when the thief grabbed her from behind and snatched the bag from her hand. She described him as being a Negro, about 35 years old, with a mustache and wearing a brown overcoat and brown hat.

Marriage Annulled

The marriage of a 15-year-old girl was annulled yesterday in District Court. The girl, Ralphine Warner of 700 Alabama ave. se., was married to Eugene E. Kniskern in Maryland in September, 1948. At the time, Ralphine said she was 18 years old. Kniskern is in District jail awaiting sentence for an abduction-robbery here in which, according to police, Ralphine was a participant.

Indorsement Of Roadway Bill Deferred

The Montgomery County Civic Federation last night deferred, pending further study, a proposal to indorse legislation which would give the State Roads Commission authority to zone land adjoining State highways.

Postponement of action was voted by members of the federation meeting at the Bethesda Elementary School. The vote followed a lively discussion in which it was brought out that most delegates have not had a chance to study the proposed bill in its entirety.

Under the measure, the Roads Commission would be empowered to regulate use of land 200 feet on each side of State highways, but the commission would yield jurisdiction to those communities which already have zoning laws.

During the discussion, opposition of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau to the proposal was expressed by O. W. Anderson, county farm agent. Anderson said the bureau felt the Roads Commission was not sufficiently experienced in zoning matters.

Bill to Switch Plans Power Introduced

Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 14.—Emasculation of the planning, building inspection and zoning functions of the Maryland National Park and Planning Commission in Montgomery County and transfer of these powers to the County Council are provided in bills introduced tonight by the county's all-Republican delegation in the House of Delegates.

The Planning Commission would have little more authority in the county than the control of parks if the bills are enacted into law. However, similar bills were introduced at the last session of the General Assembly but were defeated.

With the General Assembly safely Democratic, there is little possibility that the bills, designated as "ripper" bills by Democratic leaders, will be enacted, leaders said. The bills were referred to the ways and means committee.

Republican leaders said the proposals are backed by the Montgomery County Council and that they will "return home rule" to the county.

Delegate John R. Reeves said transfer of the planning and inspection functions of the Park and Planning Commission to the county council will provide economies and consolidate functions. He also said the 3-cent tax collected for the Maryland-Washington regional district would no longer be necessary since the costs of planning and zoning would be met by the county treasury.

The Planning Commission will have little more planning duty than to act as liaison agent between the county and the Federal Government agencies and would not require a paid commission, Reeves said. Such minor expenses as are involved could be met by the county, he added.

Inspection Measure

Under another bill the County Council would set up its own inspection service, set building inspection fees, and have power to enter and inspect public places and regulate their compliance with fire regulations. Another would remove even advisory powers in zoning from the Park and Planning Commission and transfer them to the County Council. Another would remove Montgomery County from the Maryland-Washington regional district.

Another bill sets up a five-man board of zoning appeals appointed by the County Council.

Two Prince Georges bills were introduced tonight by the delegation from that county. One provided for extension of the municipal limits of Mount Rainier to include the following territory: Beginning at the intersection of 34th st. and northern line of Arundel rd., extending in an easterly direction to the center line of the Northwest Branch and running with center line of the branch in a northwesterly direction to intersect with the present boundary line of the city of Mount Rainier. The other provides a special assessment by the city council for the Mount Rainier volunteer fire department of not more than 15 cents. The present tax is 10 cents.

House Passes 3 Bills

Three Prince Georges bills were passed by the House tonight. They were:

HB 119—To incorporate the town of Forest Heights and provide for municipal government.

HB 120—To levy 10 cents fire tax in part of Second Precinct of Nineteenth Election District for the benefit of the Riverdale Heights Volunteer Fire Department.

HB 220—To eliminate semiannual collections of county taxes.

HB 221—Providing that no service or utility equipment may be installed in any county building during construction without a building permit.

HB 222—To increase from two to three the number of guards at the County Jail.

Bonus Bill Given House In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 14 (AP).—A 100-million-dollar veterans' bonus bill, exact counterpart of a Senate measure, went into the House of Delegates tonight with the names of 42 sponsors on it.

The number of sponsors represented more than a third of the House membership.

The measure is identical with one introduced a week ago in the Senate by minority leader Kimble (R., Allegany).

It would provide that persons in service between September 6, 1940, and September 3, 1945, who have honorable discharges would be paid $10 for each month of service in the continental United States and $15 for each month overseas.

The top amount for any veteran would be $500.

The Maryland Veterans Commission would handle distribution of the 100-million-dollar bonus, with all applications to be on hand by January 1, 1953.

The bonus bond issue would be financed from the State's 2 per cent sales tax. However, to adhere to the constitution a property tax is provided for. The State Board of Public Works could abandon the tax if in any year there was enough money from any source to meet bond requirements.

The House bill went to the ways and means committee.

Gambling Raid Bill Ends in Committee

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 14 (AP).—A bill to allow confiscation of money in gambling raids has met its end in a House committe, on the ground that it didn't say exactly what money.

The Senate had passed the measure but Delegate James (D., Harford), head of a subcommittee of the house judiciary committee, said his group voted it down.

James said the measure was too loosely drawn and it was feared that if it became law "the police could seize not only the money in the pot, but also the money in the operator's pockets."

Trial of Woman's Suit for Reward Of $1000 Starts

A suit over $1000 in rewards offered in 1946 in connection with a killing here went on trial yesterday in Municipal Court.

Suing for the money is Mrs. Mary Glover, 1536 Marion st. nw. Defendants are the Jewish War Veterans and the D. C. Pharmaceutical Association, who had offered rewards for apprehension of the slayers of Maurice L. Bernstein, a druggist here.

The murderers, Jesse James Patton, 23, and Reginald J. Wheeler, 28, were subsequently apprehended and executed. Mrs. Glover claims the money, saying she told police Wheeler was in Ridge Springs, S. C., where he was arrested.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, chief of police, was among those in court. He remained there most of the day, but was excused by Mrs. Glover's attorney without being called to testify.

Legislators Back St. Marys College Plans

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 14.—Support for enlargement of St. Marys Female Seminary to a junior college that would serve Calvert, Charles and Prince Georges Counties as well as St. Marys County was pledged tonight by southern Maryland senators.

J. Spence Howard of the institution's board of trustees, met with the legislators in a dinner meeting at Carvel Hall and asked their support. The group unanimously agreed to support the proposed enlargement and to try to arrange for a meeting Thursday or Friday with Governor Lane.

Those present were: State Senators Paul Bailey (R., St. Marys); L. Harold Sothoron (D., Prince Georges), James B. Monroe (R., Charles), and Louis L. Goldstein (D., Calvert) and Delegates Oliver R. Guyther and Joseph A. Mattingly, both Democrats, of St. Marys County, and Howard.

Howard told the legislators that the change would cost $669,000 and would provide junior college facilities for 200 students at a greatly decreased individual cost to the state. The seminary officials are asking for $450,000 for a new classroom and laboratory building; $12,000 for additional land; $25,000 for a bulkhead on the St. Marys River shore; $150,000 for a central heating plant; $28,000 for water, sewage and roads facilities incident to the enlargement and change of name to the St. Mary's Junior College.

Howard said the board of trustees has gone as far as possible under present financial and space limitations to bring the seminary within the State board of education requirements. The school naw has 29 scholarships from each of the State senators of Maryland and 60 paying students.

Review of Rebate Claims on War Policies Refused

The Supreme Court yesterday refused to review court decisions here which dismissed claims for rebates on wartime insurance policies issued by the War Damage Corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell R. Knowles of Rosemont, Pa., sought the rebates for themselves and other wartime policy holders. They said that out of more than 300 million dollars insurance premiums paid in by more than six million property holders across the country claims were so small that the War Damage Corporation ended operations with a $250,000,0000 surplus.

The Knowles said they paid in $18 in premiums on $9000 insurance and sought a proportionate rebate from the surplus, which Congress directed should go into the United States Treasury. The suit was dismissed in District Court here, and the United States Court of Appeals upheld the dismissal by a 2-to-1 vote.

ABC Is Upheld In Tavern's Liquor Permit Suspension

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has power to suspend licenses of tavern keepers who allow intoxicated persons to remain in the taverns, it was ruled yesterday in District Court.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff made the ruling in upholding a seven-day suspension imposed by the ABC Board last autumn on the Avenue Grill, 320 Pennsylvania ave. se. The judge's ruling was appealed late yesterday.

Attorneys for the Avenue Grill maintain the ABC Board exceeded its authority and can suspend licenses if actual sales are made to drunks, but that mere presence of intoxicated persons is insufficient for a suspension.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 14 (Spl.).—The Montgomery County delegation to the Maryland General Assembly tonight postponed a decision on whether they will introduce a bill permitting sale of liquor by veterans' organization clubhouses in the county.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength — and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that S.S.S. Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the S.S.S. Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, S.S.S. Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on S.S.S. Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. S.S.S. Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Benefit Luncheon for Heart Patients Draws 700

Short, Side-kick Skirts Steal Valentine Show

THE Day of Hearts was marked by a fashion show and luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel, with proceeds for the benefit of the Washington Heart Association. Mrs. Robert E. Moran, chairman of the Women's Auxiliary, District Medical Association, which sponsored the benefit, looks on as Mrs. Harry T. Andrews, wife of the South African Minister, drops her ticket in the box.

By Peggy Preston

SAUCY LITTLE suits, with side-kick skirts and fly-away jackets, stole the hearts of the ladies at the St. Valentine Day benefit fashion show-luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday.

More than 700 guests crowded the hotel's Blue Room to its limits for the event that was sponsored by the Womens Auxiliary of the District Medical Association. Proceeds are for the benefit of the Washington Heart Association.

Maurice Rentner's spring collection, brought from New York by Julius Garfinkel & Co., was the chief attraction. Every other piece was a "sweetheart", right down to the gown that literally stopped the show—a spectacular $2000 white taffeta and rhinestone creation.

But there were other attractions as well. Miss Arlene Francis, stage and radio comedienne, was on hand to wow the audience with her running commentary during the show and the presentation of prizes; there was a program of music by Gene Archer, baritone, accompanied by Eddy McIntyre; and there were tiny bottles of perfume for each guest, and lots of excitement for all.

High and Fancy

FASHION stepped high and fancy in the show. Mr. Rentner, one of the New York designers who dared give a cold shoulder to the "New Look" a few years ago, showed hemlines at 13 inches from the floor. He never approved of long, droopy dresses, and his clothes this year are as trim and neat as ever.

Skirts on his suits and dresses are slim, but fluid, with fullness springing out when least expected. He delighted guests with his side-kick skirts in which the fullness is gathered to the back at one side, and allowed to swing out with every movement of the body.

Miss Francis, ignoring the prepared script, declared this skirt as "one you might wear when riding side-saddle."

There were lots of other delectable Rentner touches. For instance, the bells boleros, figure molding and jaunty; the flying-jib jackets, short all around, fitted closely in front but allowed to ripple merrily in the back; suspender on high waisted skirts; a tunic dress and wide, notched collars that hug the cheek bones.

In his evening collection, skirts tend to be ankle length in front and sweep the floor in back. One of the outstanding was a navy organdy over taffeta, embroidered with flower scrolls of white organdy. A white shoulder cape of the same fabric turned the formal gown into a dinner frock. Lace, heavily traced with gleaming stones, figured prominently in the evening division and, of course, there was the magnificent white gown that concluded the show.

A collector's item, the dress, valued at $2000 was designed by Mr. Renter for the March of Dimes fashion show in New York last month. Spectators yesterday found solace in the fact that the dress is not for sale.

Among the Guests

WATCHING the show with evident pleasure was Mrs. Robert E. Moran, chairman of the successful event. Also on hand was Mrs. Charles F. Brannan wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, who is chairman of the Women's Committee of the Washington Heart Association.

Others in the throng included Mrs. Jesse M. Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General; Mrs. Harry Andrews, wife of the South African Minister; Mrs. Carl Spaatz, Mrs. Wilbur K. Miller, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. Samuel Alexander and others.

The Washington Post

BLACK marquisette and flesh-colored Chantilly lace create a charming dinner frock for spring and summer. The gown is from the new collection by designer Maurice Rentner, shown yesterday at the luncheon-fashion show at the Shoreham Hotel for the benefit of the Washington Heart Association. Fashions were presented by Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Newspaper Women's Club Is Host

Trumans Attend Gala Valentine Ball

By Genevieve Reynolds

DIPLOMATIC, official and residential Washington society plus the fourth estate turned out some 750 strong last night when the President and Mrs. Truman appeared as ranking guests at the American Newspaper Women's Club's gala benefit Valentine ball, held in the Statler Hotel.

The Chief Executive and the First Lady arrived promptly at 10:15 p. m. at the celebrity-studded fashion show and dance, given to raise funds for a new clubhouse. Mrs. Truman wore a handsome, floor-length, black pan-velvet dress cut on slender lines with a side drape and a slight back train. A deep circular collar encrusted with white alencon lace formed a graceful off-the-shoulder neckline. With it she carried an old fashioned nosegay of variegated spring flowers.

Reception Committee

Mr. and Mrs. William Canby—she headed the general ball committee—escorted the First Family from the entrance to the Federal Room where they were received by Miss Grace McGerr, club president, and her nephew, Malcolm C. MacKinnon, jr., a student at St. John's Military Academy. There, too, to greet the Trumans was a three-man committee composed of Senator Clinton D. Anderson, former Secretary of Agriculture; Presidential Adviser John R. Steelman, and former Federal Trade Commissioner Robert E. Freer, who in turn escorted the Trumans to the spacious presidential ballroom, just as the scarlet-coated Marine Band struck the first notes of "Hail to the Chief."

In the presidential box with the ranking guests were Mrs. Max O'Rell Truitt, daughter of the Vice President, and Club President Miss McGerr. Mrs. Truitt wore a stunning aqua-silver brocade frock with a full, billowing skirt, a tight, round, low neck bodice with miniature puffed sleeves. Highlighting her costume were matching aquamarine, ruby and diamond necklace, earrings and watch. Miss McGerr's becoming formal was a flame colored chiffon, featuring a wide skirt, and a matching stole.

Petite, blond Mrs. Tom Clark, wife of the Attorney General, who was one of the models in the fabulous fur fashion parade, threw a red rose Valentine to the President as she pirouetted in front of the Truman box. Incidentally, the posey-throwing episode that brought a big friendly grin to the President's face required advance clearance by the White House Secret Service. Mrs. Clark's own gown was an ice-blue taffeta, designed with a modish, bouffant skirt, tight bodice and draped neckline.

In Fashion Show

Handsome, elegant Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, was glimpsed in a sheaf-like white lace frock with halter straps and a butterfly motif highlighting the back skirt. Around her neck she wore a diamond necklace centered with a pigeon-blood ruby. Her matching bracelet carried out the same design. Mrs. Whitney was in the group of prominent models displaying Parisian designed furs, which were brought over from France by Jandel, Inc., especially for last night's benefit.

Modeling the expensive chinchilla wraps, mink stoles and other furs, in addition to Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Whitney, were Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, wife of the Secretary of the Army; Mrs. Harold H. Burton, wife of Associate Justice Burton; Mrs. John R. Steelman, Mrs. Clinton P. Anderson, wife of the New Mexico Senator; Mrs. Clifford Davis, wife of the Tennessee Representative; Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air; Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Mrs. Robert Elliott Freer, Mrs. Atherton Macondray, and Miss Marguerite Griffin.

While Mrs. Gladstone Williams and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, jr., fashion show commentators, kept up a lively narrative as the models paraded husbands of the models watched from the sidelines. They included Attorney General Tom Clark, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Associate Justice Harold Burton, Presidential Adviser John Steelman, Senator Anderson, Capt. Macondray, Representative Davis, Mr. Freer.

'Fantasy of Furs'

One of the most spectacular outfits worn in the "Fantasy of Furs", which depicted the story of furs from the Caveman era to 1950, was two leopard skins worn over a bathing suit by club member Mrs. Elizabeth Churchill. It was the high style around 1000 B. C. Later in the show came the Lincoln era, when Mrs. Churchill reappeared in a sealskin coat and stole. Bringing a lot of laughs were the fur fashions of the flapper era, complete with open galoshes. Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and a new associate member of the club, was seen in a modern version of the Russian sable cape.

Glimpsed among those from diplomatic row were the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet—she in a Christian Dior model of pearly gray tulle with a voluminous bouffant skirt, strapless fitted bodice studded with rhinestones. The Italian Ambassador and Mme. Tarchiani chatted with the Secretary of the Senate and Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. J. Mitchell Gould, and Philip Cortney of New York, who represented Grover Whelan. Mme. Tarchiana's modish gown was made of black Venetian lace and chiffon.

The Dominican Ambassador and Senora de Thomen were among the early arrivals as were the Assistant Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Gordon Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, the Clark Cliffords, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John Snyder—she in a becoming dress of brown imported lace.

Internationally known hat designer Lily Dache was there, as were Dr. and Mrs. Charles Stanley White, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas de Rachet.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man, Living With Married Son, Has Become Source of Embarrassment, Due to His Sharp Talk, to Family and Guests, About Adultery

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband's father, who lives with us, has become very unpleasant. He seems obsessed with the idea of infidelity in married women. He is quite elderly, so perhaps the problem has its origin in senility; but we hardly think so, as he carries on ably in his profession.

John and I are very devoted, we have lovely children and a nice home, and we are gregarious and enjoy having guests and parties; but Dad's harping on infidelity has become quite embarrassing to us. When we are alone or if we have guests, he is certain to quote statistics on married women's immorality and cite cases—in detail—of same.

If I go out alone, as I do infrequently, Dad repeatedly asks the children and the maid where I've gone. He has even called the telephone number I've left with the maid—for no valid reason, just to check on me. And invariably he is angry when I return. All of this is doubly annoying, as I am utterly faithful to John and we trust each other completely.

Devoted Couple Implore Solution

WHEN JOHN and I go out at night, Dad dislikes it and can scarcely speak to us next day. And when we have guests he is frequently rude to them and has been openly insulting at times. He claims to despise company and parties; says what he likes is to read and work; which is all very well for him, if such is his preference; but it happens not to be ours.

Things have reached a point where we are afraid to invite anyone here, for fear Dad will either insult them or start them wondering about my morals, due to his pointed harangues about infidelity. He never makes direct references to me, nor has he accused me directly; so we have little opportunity for rebuking him.

Both John and I have suggested to him that he try to take his mind off sex misbehavior and think of the pleasant things in life; but this has no effect. So what on earth can we do? We can't allow the situation to continue, yet we don't know how to stop it. We have racked our brains and see no solution. Have you any suggestions? We shall be very grateful for any help you can give us. S. S.

Father's Long Been Problem to Himself

DEAR S. S.: Dad is a problem to others because he is a problem to himself, lonely and out of tune with life, a jealous, distrustful person who thinks the worst of human nature, especially feminine nature.

Somewhere along the line, possibly in squalling infancy, he "felt" he got a raw deal from the opposite sex; and the shock of that conviction has been reverberating through his "unconscious" and his nervous system ever since. He has never experienced love-security in relation to a woman with total assurance, although, of course, he's been married and may have had various flaming romances, too.

His wife may have been utterly devoted, as you are to John; but Dad always felt in his bones (perhaps without thinking it in words) that "infidelity" was coming to him, that it was implicit in his fate. And although, of late, he translates that feeling into sordid indictment of all married women's morals, basically his outlook and sensibilities are warped by a dread ingrained sense that "nobody cares" about his heart-hungers; that sly neglect (in pious dress) will always be his portion.

Is Dad Envious of Son's Life?

DAD is emotionally ill and getting worse, due to advancing years and increasing loneliness, and to the fact that he is less able, less strong mentally and physically, to repress the hostile jealous tensions that have been ossifying in his personality for decades.

Also it may be that the close unity and strong mutual devotion so amply evident in his son's marriage have an aggravating effect on his neurosis, causing him to feel "fifth wheel" and "put out," and to argue, incessantly and indirectly, the envious "sour grapes" theory that John (or any satisfied husband) is living in a fool's paradise.

As head of the house, John has rightful authority to campaign for civilized conduct therein. He should speak realistically to Dad about his morbid harangues and surly manners, offensive to family and friends; quietly emphasize that "this can't go on," and if Dad can't be decently agreeable, he'll have to live elsewhere. There is a chance that his neurosis might subside, at least temporarily, if he were lodged in a less intimate, less personal abode. And he should be steered, if possible, into specialist care—the appropriate source of help for him. M. H.

Keep in Trim

Joints Also Grow Rusty With Disuse

By Ida Jean Kain

It's a natural fact that everybody wants to live a nice long time . . . but nobody wants to grow old, or stiff.

There is one way to ward off stiffness, and that is to keep the joints from getting rusty. The oil of exercise helps to keep them from creaking. But it isn't really exercise. It's just normal movement that puts the joints through the motions nature designed for them. If the joints are used infrequently, or in a limited way only, naturally they tend to get stiff and their motion more limited.

We have all kinds of joints, some of them permit much more motion than others. Nature did a superb job of designing the joints to best fit our needs. The hinge joint at the elbow, for example, permits wide motion—but in one plane only. Since it doesn't work backward, we can't pat ourselves on the back . . . which is probably a good thing.

Need Exercise

But let's start with the knee joints, for they're the ones that seem to grow old fastest—or so it sounds. When knee joints creak, it's a sure sign they need a little exercise oil. Oh, nothing so rugged as the deep knee bend. Just sit on a table and swing the legs freely back and forth at the knee joints—then from side to side in unison.

Now try a bit of leg swinging for the hip joints. Stand with one hand on the table for balance, then swing one leg back and forth gently and loosely from the hip. Swing several times. Of course, full range of motion of this joint means moving in a circle—circle leg from the hip, making a wide outward circle. Start with small circles first.

To Lessen Tension

For the shoulder joints, swing alternate arms rhythmically in wide, loose circles—swinging up, around, back and down, going through the full range of motion. Then swing arms together. Next, cross wrists and swing arms far out sideward.

To get rid of tension through the shoulders, shrug. Hunch shoulders up around ears, and move them back and down in lazy circles.

It's also a good idea to exercise the finger joints, the wrists, the ankles, and the toes.

And don't skip the waist—that's a sort of joint too. To keep limber there, stretch up and bend sideward, and even circle at the waist.

A Cleaner Lawn

When the winds start blowing papers begin to gather on the lawn and unless removed there is soon an ugly accumulation of them. An old broom stick with a large nail hammered in one end makes a splendid spear for these papers. After hammering in the nail, flatten the head of the nail into a point with very heavy strokes of the hammer.

Cooking Cues

Cook small white onions, mix with cooked green peas, season well with salt and freshly ground pepper, add a generous amount of butter or margarine and heat thoroughly before serving.

Saute squares of veal steak, pounded until very thin, in a little butter or margarine. Season, add a small amount of stock, cover skillet and cook gently until tender. Serve over wide, cooked noodles and garnish with parsley.

For delicious baked apples sweeten with maple syrup and baste frequently during baking.

In making tea, be sure to rinse the teapot with boiling water before the tea leaves are added. Allow the boiling water and tea leaves to stand from three to five minutes before pouring.

Haitian Envoy Awards Six Decorations

A LAVISH buffet supper at the white stucco Haitian Embassy last evening headed the list of social events which kept Washington society—especially the diplomats—attending parties "on the double."

Occasion for the Haitian party was the decoration of half a dozen men with medals of honor. Haiti's Ambassador Joseph Charles presented the Grand Croix, his government's highest award, to the Cuban Ambassador Guillermo Belt, Mexican Ambassador to the Organization of American States, Dr. Luis Quintanilla, and former Senator William King of Utah, who received his award in absentia since he was unable to make the trip to Washington.

Dr. Alberao Lleras, secretary general of the Organization of American States, and Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, were presented the Grand Officer. And William Manger, assistant secretary of the Organization of the American States, received the Commandeur.

Folowing the decoration ceremony, which took place in the drawing room of the Embassy, an elaborate buffet was served in the dining room. The table boasted sumptuous turkeys, ham and salmond and many other delicacies.

The French Ambassador Henri Bonnet was there, as were the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani, the Paraguayan Ambassador, Dr. Morales, the Colombian Ambassador, Dr. Restrepo-Jaramillo and the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de la Colina.

Miss Muna Lee of the Department of State discussed the information and cultural program of that department at the luncheon meeting of the Women's Democratic Club yesterday.

As an indication of a demand for American information, Miss Lee told of a recent report of the Embassy of Mexico which stated that one American documentary film was shown 3500 times to 1,500,000 people in one month.

A film on election procedure entitled "Tuesday in November," showing a typical American family going through the voting procedure, was circulated in Turkey in 1946 when that country held its first national election, Miss Lee said in giving examples of the department's work.

An exchange of students, professors and national leaders is also fostered in the long-range cultural program, she said.

Tall Girl Fashions

Tall girls should wear high heels, big hats, dramatic accessories—and stripes, if they like them.

"In fact, the smart modern woman capitalizes on her height by accenting it, rather than trying to hide it." This revolutionary fashion talk comes from a young woman who makes it her business to see that long-stemmed lassies are well and comfortably dressed. She is Miss Ruth Hutcheson, stylist for Tall Type clothes, and one reason for her authority is her own height. Measured in her 3-inch heels she stands a stunning 6 ft. 1 in.

Miss Hutcheson arrived in Washington yesterday with a boxful of extra long costumes which should strike a chord of joy in the hearts of her tall sisters. She displayed them at Erlebacher's, the local store where Tall Types (coats and suits only) may be purchased.

Modeling a few of the garments, Miss Hutcheson pointed out the features that make them desirable for women who measure from 5 ft. 8 in. to 6 ft. or over.

"First of all they are cut with long waistlines, sleeves and skirts. Details, such as shoulders, lapels, buttons, etc., have all been designed with an eye to improving the figure and breaking lines that might otherwise appear too long."

There are several fitted coats in the collection, style items that tall women have difficulty in finding.

Miss Hutcheson believes that the fitted silhouette is flattering to women that are above average height. "It tends to break the long line from shoulder to hem. Tall women should always emphasize the waistline."

According to this expert approximately 10 per cent of the women in America require extra-long clothes. Their number is growing each year, she points out, and the present generation of young girls are far taller, on the average, than those of 30 years ago.

Tall Girl clubs are springing up all over the country and members are demanding ready-to-wear fashions that they can step into without expensive alterations. They are also being encouraged to wear high heels, "because they make their legs look prettier"; large hats and accessories that give them drama and excitement.

About Cleaning Numdah Rugs

Can you tell me the most satisfactory way of cleaning Numdah rugs? I have been assured that they can be washed, but I thought that you might have some hints which would help. Would it be possible to wash them in a washing machine?
W. D. W.

Because Numdah rugs are pressed, not woven, washing them in a washing machine would pull them apart. As a matter of fact, any cleaning method used must be a very gentle one. With care, they could possibly be shampooed by laying them flat on a heavy layer of papers and brushing a good rug shampoo or the lather of a mild soap into them. Use a soft brush and do not brush longer than necessary to clean them. Remove suds and rinse by wiping with a soft cloth wrung out of clear water. Another way to freshen them would be to have them dry cleaned professionally.

To the lady who spilled the iodine: I broke a bottle in the bathroom once which immediately saturated rug and tile with household ammonia. The iodine simply disappeared. Then I washed the places with soap and water.
A. W. A.

To K. L. C.: My little girl came home from school with the contents of a bottle of iodine down a brand-new dress. I called my neighborhood druggist and he advised me to make a past of ordinary starch and cold water, spread ito on the stain and wash in clear water. It came out immediately. The same might apply to a floor or wall.
G. R. W.

Thanks to R. C., E. W., J. A. A., G. W. M., M. N. and others who sent in the following recipe from the "Modern Priscilla" cookbook for E. C. T.:

Mock Indian Pudding

2 cups stale bread crumbs (graham, whole wheat, or half graham and half cornbread)
1 quart milk
2 eggs
1-3 cup molasses
½ cup light brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
⅛ teaspoon mace

Soak crumbs in half the milk for an hour or two. Bring slowly to scalding point. Beat eggs and add first mixture to them, beating constantly. Add sugar, molasses, spices, and the rest of the milk. Bake in a slow oven until firm. Serve warm with plain or whipped cream or top with a generous spoonful of currant, quince, or apple jelly. (Bake 1½ hours at 300-degree temperature.) This recipe serves 8.

I expect to move in a new basement apartment very soon. As this will be the first time that I have lived "on concrete," can you give me any information which will make the apartment more pleasant and easy to keep clean? I would particularly like to know whether concrete floors can be waxed. If so, is there a special wax to be used on them?
R. T. G.

Yes, concrete floors can be waxed and the process will make it easier to keep them clean. Apply the wax in several thin coats, allowing each coat to dry thoroughly and buffing well before the next is applied, and it will not be slippery. It would be a good idea to rent an electric buffer for a day and give the floor three or four thin coats of wax during the session. In that way, you will build up a good coat of wax on the floor.

Will you tell me what can be done to remove beer stains and restore the lustre to a heavy black rayon satin evening skirt? The beer was spilled over a rather large area on one side of the skirt and that part is now dull and slightly wrinkled, even after dry cleaning at a reputable place.
A. D.

I'm sorry, I know of no way this lustre can be restored by home methods.

Please correct a mistake made in the printing of the original German sweet chocolate recipe for "Chocolate Ice Box Cake" on February 8. This recipe calls for 2½ teaspoons water, not tablespoons as given in the paper. Too much water could make the pudding mixture too thin and the cake soggy. Thanks so much for printing this ultra-delicious recipe.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Who Polices the Driving Habits of Policemen?

Harold L. Brill of 8629 Piney Branch rd., Silver Spring, Md., voices a heartfelt gripe about the speed at which local police cruisers are operated.

Harold charges that the prowl cars are invariably driven at 20 miles per hour. Inasmuch as the speed limit is 25, it's very difficult to pass them.

If they were driven at 25, there would be no problem. If they were driven at 15, passing them would be simple.

But at 20, they merely serve to add to congestion, as other cars pile up behind them.

Harold's complaint reminds me that I also have a pet peeve about police cars.

Too often they're parked in the spot that creates the worst hazard and bottleneck for other traffic.

Rather than walk 50 extra feet to a drugstore, or hamburger joint, some cops will park in a cross-walk, safety zone, or other forbidden spot.

If the man in the cruiser wants to talk to the cop on the beat, he thinks nothing of stopping (or double-parking) where civilians would get tickets.

Then they chew the fat for 20 minutes, while everybody else detours, or misses them as best they can.

I'm not suggesting that police vehicles on emergency business should be required to observe all the traffic regulations.

I'm merely pointing out that the parking and "stopping" laws were evolved to expedite the flow of traffic, and it's a poor policeman who snarls things up for no better reason than the fact that he's too lazy to walk 20 extra steps.

ON RAISING CHILDREN

The other day we had a Give-Away item from a woman who wanted to find a new home for her cat, because her little girl pulled the cat's tail.

Mrs. Max D. Bovey of 320 S. Tennessee ave., Martinsburg, W. Va., questions the wisdom of solving the problem in this manner.

She points out that a child's life is enriched in many ways by association with pets—and one of the most important benefits is the lessons in kindness, gentleness and consideration which are learned.

If the child pulls the cat's tail, the child must be taught not to mistreat her pets. Giving the cat away, says Mrs. Bovey, is no solution.

In a way, I'm inclined to agree. But there's also another factor to be considered.

If the child is not old enough to understand and follow such instruction, then I'd say it's far better to find a new home for the cat than it is to make the animal suffer for the child's youthful misdeeds.

Another year and another pet will serve the purpose just as well.

But there's no argument with Mrs. Bovey's main point. No child should grow up without (at one time or another) owning a pet.

PERSONAL NOTES

Bob Wolff Fans: The correct wording of the clew runs like this (I think):

From a Bible-loving father
To an ordinary article;
To and from the port,
That's my record in a particle.

What this means, I haven't the foggiest notion. All I know is that even if you don't guess this guy's identity and win the contest, you're helping the American Heart Association when you enter.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

The Red River that rises in Texas does not flow into the Mississippi, though it appears to, on the map.

It actually flows into the Atchafalaya, which is really the Mississippi's other mouth, and empties into the Gulf of Mexico via Atchafalaya Bay, about 100 miles west of the Mississippi Delta.

That patch of water, 8 miles long, which appears on the map to be the last of the Red, emptying into the Mississippi, is really called "Lower Old River" to distinguish it from "Old River," a defunct channel that once connected the Mississippi and the Red.

James M. Cain
6707 44th ave.
Hyattsville, Md.

Dear James:

Thanks. But you've just wrecked my faith in encyclopedias.

Bill.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Eighteen-month-old male black cat; real mouser, ideal pet." (Shepherd 3496).

PIED THOUGHTS DEPT.

Letters about mishandled dependence allotments often contain rare (if unintended) humor.

The following excerpts have gained wide circulation, but should still bring a chuckle to anybody who hasn't seen them before. They're literal quotes:

"Please let me know if my husband made application for a wife and baby."

"In answer to your letter I gave birth to a boy weighing 10 pounds. I hope this is satisfactory to you."

"I can't get any pay. I got six children, can you tell me why this is?"

"My baby was born two years ago and is two years old. When do I get relief?"

"I have already wrote the President, and if I don't hear from you I will write Uncle Sam and tell him about you both."

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—The Republican leaders who, in Omaha, criticized Dewey's campaign tactics knew what their approval of these tactics was recorded by Herb Brownell, a week before election day. Brownell had arranged a "conference phone," with telephone hook-ups to leaders throughout the country, and all the leaders said that Dewey was doing fine. "I'm recording all this," Brownell warned them all, "for historical purposes." . . . After Mayor O'Dwyer returns from his trip to California, he'll announce whether he's a candidate for re-election.

Thomas E. Dewey, jr., now 16, is 6 ft. 2 and has just made the swimming team at Albany Academy . . . Kingsbury Smith, whose correspondence with Stalin became front-page news, was rewarded last week with a bonus from his employers, INS.

Guenther Stein, the correspondent named as a Soviet spy in the report from General MacArthur's headquarters last week, rushed from New York to Paris on Friday in such a hurry to get out of the country that he didn't even have time to cancel an appointment with a N. Y. magazine editor. The apointment, for Friday afternoon, was to discuss his all-important expense account.

Salvador Dali visited an antique shop in Beverly Hills, Calif., and bought an old harp. He ordered the harp's strings removed and replaced with barbed wire. "Send it to Mr. Harpo Marx," said Dali, and the dealer said: "I suspected that." The artist then gave him his card to be inclosed. The dealer glanced at the name, and said: "Naturally. Who else would think of such a thing?" . . . Dali's harp-with-barbed-wire was sent to Harpo's home. Harpo acknowledged the gift by sending Dali a photo of Harpo holding up bandaged fingers.

Lord John Hope, M.P., son of a Viceroy of India, who recently married Somerset Maugham's daughter, says of his current lecture tour of America: "I thought I had some distinction of my own, but I've had to go through America as the son-in-law of Mr. Maugham."

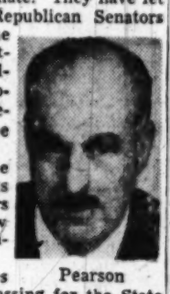
State Dept. Put on Spot in Senate

By Drew Pearson

State Department officials have certainly put themselves on the spot in the Senate. They have let a group of Republican Senators pick up the State Department's own policy on Indonesia and demand that it be carried out.



This can be the first serious foreign-affairs rift of the new Truman Administration.

What makes things embarrassing for the State Department is that its own delegates to the United Nations took the lead in opposing Dutch aggression against Indonesia. The Indonesian statement of Dr. Philip Jessup, United States delegate to the U. N., was one of the most masterful ever delivered. It set an example to the world. Behind his forthright denunciation of Dutch aggression was the knowledge that once the peace machinery of the United Nations is weakened it will become as flabby as the old League of Nations. And in Indonesia, the Dutch were just as brazen in thumbing their noses at U. N. peace efforts as the Jap warlords in Manchuria were with the league.

But after the State Department took this fine public stand, several Democratic Senators drafted a resolution supporting it and going one step further. They wanted to cut off Marshall Plan aid to Holland, which actually has financed the Dutch army in Indonesia.

When the State Department got wind of the resolution, however, Bob Lovett, then Acting Secretary of State, phoned Majority Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois, asking him to lay off. The resolution, he said, must be blocked.

GOP Grabs Ball

Lucas, somewhat against his better judgment, did so. Obediently, the Democratic Senators pulled in their horns—on the promise that new Secretary of State Acheson would come up to the Senate and explain his view on the resolution.

Senator Lucas pointed out that Acheson had just become Secretary of State and might not agree with retired Undersecretary Lovett, so it was only fair to hear him. Therefore the Democratic Senators waited—and waited—and waited some more. Acheson did not show. Finally, State Department Counselor Chip Bohlen telephoned to say that Secretary Acheson would not come at all. Instead, he, Bohlen, offered to explain things to the Senators.

By this time, the Senators were hopping mad. When a dozen leading Democratic Senators ask for views of the Secretary of State it is customary for him to appear before them. That was why Democratic Senators refused to hear Bohlen, said they would hear Acheson or no one.

While the Democrats were being obedient Democrats, however, the Republicans picked up the ball. They introduced a resolution identical with that prepared by the Democrats, supporting the State Department's stand against the Dutch in Indonesia, but asking the State Department really to carry out its words by cutting off the American ECA subsidy to the Dutch army.

They intend to make a major attack on the Administration, charging the State Department with delivering fine phrases before the United Nations while playing footsie with the Dutch aggressors under the U. N. table. And it looks as if they were right.

Gratitude Gifts

What different States are doing with their Gratitude Train gifts: New York City converted the veterans' center into a virtual museum tastefully displayed French gifts in showcases. Thousands lined up to see them. . . . Massachusetts will conduct an essay contest in high schools on French-American friendship, giving nonhistoric gifts as prizes to winners. . . . Ohio will mount its 40-and-8 boxcar on wheels for a tour of the State. . . . Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry will display the 40-and-8 box car for a month, together with the French gifts, after which they will be taken around the State. . . . Some States have offered high schools a chance to display gifts, provided manual-training class build proper glass cases for display.

Merry-Go-Round

President Truman has placed his entire domestic program in the hands of Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan, an able citizen. All members of the Cabinet have been told by Truman to take orders from Brannan in testifying for the Truman domestic program. On the legislative front, Brannan is now assistant President . . .

Testifying before the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee on territorial affairs, congressional delegate A. Fernos-Isern of Puerto Rico reported there wasn't a single breach of the peace when Puerto Rico elected its first Governor. "The people accepted the verdict of the polls," said the Puerto Rican delegate. "How different from the people of the United States," commented Chairman Joe O'Mahoney. "We rejected the polls" . . .

After VFW National Commander Lyall Beggs retired as District Attorney for Dane County, Wis., he defended a drunk he had previously prosecuted twice for tipsy driving. Chief witness was a WCTU woman, who testified that she had never even smelled whisky. "How, then, did you know that the defendant was drunk?" asked Beggs. "He had a glassy stare," replied the lady. When the defendant took the stand, the first question Beggs asked was, "How's your eyesight?" "Okay in my good eye," was the reply. "My other eye is glass." Beggs won the case . . .

Democratic Senators who have been working nights to repeal the Taft-Hartley law complain privately that the American Federation of Labor's chief lobbyist, Lewis Hines, is secretly veering against labor. Publicly Hines takes the official AFL stand, but privately, say the Democrats, he seems very palsy-walsy with Republican Senators Bob Taft of Ohio and Ed Martin of Pennsylvania.
